Modi, Biden will discuss war in Ukraine and food security at Quad meeting

New Australia PM to be at Summit hosted by Japan's Kishida

SHUBHAJIT ROY
NEW DELHI, MAY 22

US PRESIDENT Joe Biden will have a "constructive and straightforward" conversation with Prime Minister Narendra Modi on the "impact" of Russia's "brutal invasion of Ukraine", US National Security Advisor Jake Sullivan said on Sunday, ahead of their bilateral meeting on the sidelines of the Quad Leaders' Summit in Tokyo on May 24.

Responding to questions on India's ban on wheat exports, Sullivan told reporters on Air Force One, the US President's aircraft, "Food security will be a topic of conversation at the Quad."

THE INDIAN Navy's Information Fusion Centre-Indian Ocean Region (IFC-IOR) may play a key role in a Quad initiative against illegal fishing.

Quoting a US official, the Financial Times reported that the initiative, to be announced by the four leaders of the Quad at the group's Tokyo Summit, will bring together existing surveillance centres in Singapore, India, and the Pacific to create a tracking system for illegal unregulated and unreported fishing (IUUF) in the Indo-Pacific region.

Chinese trawler fleets are seen as responsible for most of the IUUF in the Indo-Pacific region, CONTINUED ON PAGE 4

SWEETY KUMARI
KOLKATA, MAY 22

DAYS AFTER criticising the Central government over its jute policy, BJP MP from Barrackpore, Arjun Singh, on Sunday returned to the Trinamool Congress (TMC).

Singh's return to the TMC nearly three years after he had left the party ahead of the 2019 Lok Sabha elections is yet another blow to the BJP in West Bengal, plagued by the exit of several MLAs and leaders since its defeat in the last year's Assembly elections in the state. The BJP also conceded that Singh leaving the party was a huge loss for them. "What can we say if someone wants to do politics for their personal benefit. But it's a huge loss (to the party)," BJP national secretary Anupam Hazra said.

Addressing a press conference after joining the ruling TMC in the presence of its national general secretary Abhishek Banerjee at

THE TWO Kolkata boys had dreamt of lifting the Cup on Sunday.

Pushan Sadhukhan and Souryadeep Chatterjee, both 14, had made the cut in the semi-finals on Saturday of the inter-school regatta final organised by the Bengal Rowing Club (BRC). The two had then opted for a round of practice in Rabindra Sarobar at 3 pm in "good weather".

What happened next was what no one ever imagined would happen.

"From around 3:30 pm, the skies started to turn grey. But it wasn't bad. The squall and rain came suddenly, when they were in mid-water," Arijit Nandy, two years their senior at South Point school and an eyewitness to the tragedy that unfolded, told The Indian Express.

"The wind speed was vicious, and there was a stiff current. There were other boats also and everybody started to come back. Unfortunately, their boat overturned. It had five people, including an experienced cox (the rower who steers the boat) who tried his best. He saved two rowers but couldn't save Pushan and Souryadeep. Maybe, their hands were ripped clean off the boat," said Nandy, who was competing in the senior boys section.

The two students were from the city's Lake Club, where they had cut their teeth in rowing. According to Lake Club joint secretary Debu Datta, six-seven boats capsized and the rowers were brought back to the club. When they found two of them missing, a search operation started.

Inquiry report

February 22, is learnt to have recommended criminal proceedings against former WBSSC chairpersons Professor Saumitra Sarkar and Ashok Kumar Saha; the organisation's former advisor, Dr Santi Prasad Sinha; programme officer Samarjit Acharya; and West Bengal Board of Secondary Education (WBSE) president Dr Kalyanmoy Ganguly.

The Committee is said to have found out that a "lack of transparency in preparation and uploading of the panel (of candidates)" on the WBSSC website "and keeping the said panel a guarded secret from the chairpersons of the Regional Commissions" helped commit the alleged fraud in the recruitment process that began in 2016.

Sarkar, Saha (WBSSC Secretary at the time of the alleged offence), and Sinha allegedly recommended the names of unsuccessful candidates in Group C posts before and after the expiry of the panel on May 18, 2019, "in the garb of increase of marks of those candidates by way of re-evaluation of OMR (answer) sheets on the basis of their applications under RTI (Right to Information Act)". The answer sheets were allegedly destroyed after the manipulation of marks.

The three allegedly compelled Acharya and another programme officer to fabricate WBSSC note sheets on May 14, 2019, and June 18 and June 20 "to give colour of increase of the marks of the candidates due to re-evaluation of OMR sheets on consideration of applications under RTI Act". In other words, the note sheets were falsified to provide a veneer of legality to the entire process even though it was "in violation of the provisions of School Service Commission Rules, 2009".

Sarkar and Sinha allegedly "collected vacancies" in an unauthorised manner — gathered information about vacancies that opened up after the recruitment exams were held — and recommended unsuccessful candidates for those posts.

Using the names that the former WBSSC advisor supplied, Acharya is said to have prepared 381 recommendation letters for unsuccessful Group C candidates (almost 250 were not even on the merit list). In Group D, the rules were allegedly bent to favour 609 unsuccessful candidates.

"Acharya has candidly admitted that he has prepared more than 300 recommendation letters in favour of unsuccessful candidates in Group C posts and more than 500 recommendation letters in favour of unsuccessful Group D candidates under the instructions of Dr Santi Prasad Sinha by using the data from the server of the Central Commission and by using scanned signatures of the chairpersons of the Regional Commissions by keeping the chairpersons of the Regional Commissions in the dark and also by manipulating memo numbers of the Regional Commissions from the computer system of the Central Commission ..." said Bag Committee member and HC advocate Arunava Banerjee.

Sinha allegedly handed over a "bunch of fake recommendation letters" to WBSE president Ganguly "on four to five occasions" after the "expiry of the panel". The Bag Committee report is learnt to have found that Ganguly issued instructions to a subordinate for the preparation of appointment letters based on these forged letters and bypassed the "normal chain of hierarchy" and did not send the recommendation letters to the Board's Appointment Section. Instead, the appointment letters were allegedly handed over to Ganguly himself or to the WBSSC officials who were part of the alleged scam at the Commission's new office in Kolkata's Salt Lake area.

"No explanation is forthcoming before us why Dr Kalyanmoy Ganguly did not follow the normal procedure of generation of appointment letters on the basis of recommendation of the School Service Commission and distribution of those appointment letters after notifying the names of the candidates in the website of the Central Commission for verification of testimonials and for collection of appointment letter on the notified date from the office of the Board or any other notified venue," the Committee report is learnt to have said.

These actions, the Bag Committee reportedly said, indicate that Ganguly was "hand in glove" with Sinha "in making appointment letters on the basis of fake recommendations".

The CBI, in keeping with the Committee's recommendations, has booked Sarkar, Saha, Sinha, and Ganguly under IPC Section 120-B (criminal conspiracy). It has also invoked IPC Sections 465 (forgery), 417 (cheating), 468 (forgery for purpose of cheating) and 34 (acts done by several persons in furtherance of common intention) against Sinha and Acharya.

Responding to the allegations against him, Saumitra Sarkar told The Indian Express, "I have not seen the Bag Committee report yet. We had to publish the panel after the expiry because of a court order. But I do not know how the names of new candidates came into the list."

Denying the allegations, Ganguly said, "The Board has no power to make recommendation letters. It basically works as a post office. We got the recommendation letters and as per the rules we distributed them. I do not know anything more than that."

While Sinha declined to speak to The Indian Express, Acharya and Saha could not be reached for comments.

‘Squall and rain’

Around 7.40 pm, the Kolkata Police's disaster management team managed to pull the two out of the lake and take them to SSKM Hospital. They were declared "brought dead".

Pushan was in Class IX, Souryadeep in Class X. Both were south Kolkata residents — from Santoshpur and Raja Basanta Roy Road, respectively — and "good swimmers" but couldn't negotiate the 90kmph storm and the choppy lake.

"They were good students, too. Very enthusiastic about sports. We are trying to build our rowing team, and they were the most junior members, very active. We all are very upset," South Point principal Rupa Sanyal Bhattacharjee told The Indian Express. The school issued a statement, condoling the death of its students. "We appeal to the authorities to consider reviewing the safety standards for rowers," it said.

School trustee Krishna Damani told The Indian Express that usually, "follow speedboats" accompany the rowers and act during emergencies at most rowing venues. But Calcutta Rowing Club secretary Chandan Roy Chowdhury said intervention by activists had put an end to this practice at Rabindra Sarobar, which is shared by all rowing clubs in the city.

"We call the rescue speedboats 'follow boats' and they mandatorily accompany the rowers everywhere in India. What has happened here is that a few self-styled environmentalists were constantly writing to the Kolkata Metropolitan Development Authority to stop the use of speedboats to prevent water pollution and safeguard fish. We received an order from the Authority on May 18 that speedboats could no longer be used," Chowdhury said. "Rowing started here in 1928 and for the first time, such a tragic incident has happened. We are devastated."

According to those who knew the two students, rowing was a passion for Pushan and Souryadeep. But in the end, that extra practice session proved to be fatal.

Modi, Biden to discuss war in Ukraine and food security at Quad meeting

The discussion on Ukraine between Biden and Modi "won't be a new conversation", Sullivan said. "It will be a continuation of the conversation they've already had about how we see the picture in Ukraine and the impacts of Russia's brutal invasion of Ukraine on a wider set of concerns in the world, including this food security concern."

The American NSA said the two leaders have already had the opportunity to engage on the issue of Ukraine, and Biden had an extended discussion with Modi at the virtual Quad Summit in March.

"And they also got to speak about it when they had a short video bilateral meeting at the top of the 2+2 when the Indian ministers came to Washington," he said.

"So, they'll talk all of that through. And I will leave the specifics of it to what has been a set of private and constructive exchanges, and I expect that this will similarly be constructive and straightforward," Sullivan said.

Modi, who left for Tokyo on Sunday night, said in a pre-departure statement, "I will hold a bilateral meeting with President Joseph Biden, where we will discuss further consolidation of our multifaceted bilateral relations with the US. We will also continue our dialogue on regional developments and contemporary global issues."

Asked about Washington's balancing act between economic cooperation and accountability on human rights issues, Sullivan said: "President Biden has been clear from the beginning of this administration that we'll speak out when we see any form of departure from or deviation from basic principles, fundamental freedoms, human rights, the values of democratic institutions, and the rule of law. That's true for a range of countries. And, you know, we don't single India out."

He said the US had "found a way both to pursue practical cooperation with countries that are democratic and non-democratic, while at the same time being clear and consistent of where our values lie".

Sources said the Quad leaders — Prime Minister Modi, President Biden, Japan's Prime Minister Fumio Kishida, and the newly-elected Prime Minister of Australia Anthony Albanese — are expected to launch a new maritime initiative aimed at curbing illegal fishing in the Indo-Pacific. This is aimed at countering China, which is responsible for an estimated 80 to 95 per cent of the illegal fishing in the region.

The planned initiative will use satellite technology to interlink maritime surveillance centres in Singapore, India, and other parts of the Indo-Pacific, and prevent Chinese vessels from fishing illegally in the region.

In his statement, Modi said, "In Japan, I will...participate in the second in-person Quad Leaders' Summit, which will provide an opportunity for the leaders of the four Quad countries to review the progress of Quad initiatives. We will also steps to protect cows," he said.

Adityanath spoke about how a "grand Ram temple" is being built in Ayodhya, the "splendour" with which the Kashi Vishwanath temple complex has been rejuvenated, and new life being injected into pilgrimage sites such as Mathura, Vrindavan and Chitrakoot.

According to the Chief Minister, UP has started moving towards becoming the No.2 economy in the country under a "double engine" government, with the BJP at the helm in the Centre too.

"In 70 years, UP has reached the sixth position among economies in the country. In the last 70 years, the per capita income of UP had remained one-fourth of the nation's. In the past five years, we have doubled it. In ease of doing business, UP has climbed up to No.2 spot in the country. And in ease of living, in 44 schemes, UP is No.1. The maximum infrastructure development is happening in UP and the state is now known as an expressway," he said.

Goa Chief Minister Sawant said his government has made a budgetary allocation for renovation of temples destroyed by the Portuguese.

"In the 450 years of Portuguese rule, there was destruction of Hindu culture and many people were converted. Temples of the state were destroyed. We are going to rejuvenate all of them...I believe wherever there are temples in destroyed condition, they should be rebuilt," he said.

Sawant said that beyond beaches, the Goa government was promoting cultural and spiritual tourism in the hinterland and coaxing people to go to temples.

"In every village, there are a couple of temples. We have to take people from the beach to the temple," he said.

Sawant said Goa already has a Uniform Civil Code, and urged other states to implement it. "We have discussed the Goa UCC with other chief ministers also," he said. The Goa government is also working on restarting mining in the state, he said.

Uttarakhand's Dhami said

exchange views about developments in the Indo-Pacific region and global issues of mutual interest."

Prime Minister Albanese would join the Quad Leaders' Summit for the first time, Modi said. "I look forward to a bilateral meeting with him during which the multifaceted cooperation between India and Australia under the Comprehensive Strategic Partnership, and regional and global issues of mutual interest will be discussed."

With 71 per cent of the vote counted in Australia's federal elections until Sunday night, the Labour Party led by Albanese had won 72 seats, four short of majority in the 151-seat House of Representatives, the lower house of parliament. The Sydney Morning Herald reported on its website.

Albanese and his core team, including Foreign Affairs Minister Penny Wong, were scheduled to be sworn into office on Monday. Wong will accompany Albanese to Tokyo.

Modi recalled in his statement that he had hosted Japan's Prime Minister Kishida for the 14th India-Japan Annual Summit in March this year. "During my visit to Tokyo, I look forward to continuing our conversation further, with an aim to strengthen the India-Japan Special Strategic and Global Partnership."

Modi and Kishida are likely to meet on Tuesday, as per the current schedule. "Economic cooperation between India and Japan is an important aspect of that apart from moves to bring in the Uniform Civil Code, a special drive was on to identify infiltrators and that the anti-conversion law will be made "stronger".

"We have decided to form a committee on Uniform Civil Code. The committee will have legal experts and stakeholders. We will implement the draft that the committee submits... We will implement Uniform Civil Code for which we are making preparations and we want other states to follow suit," he said during an interaction with Hitesh Shankar, editor of Panchjanya.

Asked about "infiltrators" like "Rohingyas" or those having criminal records settling down in the state, Dhami said: "We have done surveys and a special drive by the police is also on to identify such elements."

and the initiative is likely to be viewed as a Quad pressure point against China.

The US is also expected to launch a new economic and trade agreement called the Indo-Pacific Economic Framework that is also aimed at containing China's economic clout in the region.

The IFC-IOR was established in 2018 for regional collaboration on maritime security issues including "maritime terrorism", IUUF, piracy, armed robbery on the high seas, and human and contraband trafficking. The Gurgaon-based data fusion centre has information sharing links with 50 nations and multinational/maritime centres, according to its website.

The IFC-IOR "aims at strengthening maritime security in the region and beyond, by building a common coherent maritime situation picture and acting as a maritime security information hub for the region", according to the website.

The centre was established as part of the government's SAGAR (Security and Growth For All in the Region) framework for maritime co-operation in the Indian Ocean region. It hosts international liaison officers from our Special Strategic and Global Partnership," Modi said. During the March Summit, the two leaders had announced their "intention to realize JPY 5 trillion in public and private investment and financing over the next five years from Japan to India", he said.

Modi said he would also meet with Japanese business leaders "with the goal of further strengthening economic linkages between our countries". A series of meetings with leaders of Japanese industry — including Nobuhiro Endo, chairman of IT and electronics company NEC Corporation, Tadashi Yanai, chairman/president & CEO of the clothing brand UNIQLO, Osamu Suzuki, Adviser, Suzuki Motor Corporation, and Masayoshi Son, board director at Softbank Group Corp. — are lined up for Monday afternoon, followed by a roundtable with Japanese business leaders in the evening.

In between, the Prime Minister will attend the Indo-Pacific Economic Framework event hosted by President Biden, during which a wide-ranging trade agreement is expected to be launched, with separate modules for "fair and resilient trade, supply chain resilience, infrastructure and decarbonisation, and tax and anti-corruption".

Japan is home to nearly 40,000 members of the Indian diaspora, and Modi said he looked forward to interacting with their representatives. An interaction with the Indian community is scheduled for Monday evening.

partner countries, which include both India's immediate neighbours in the Indian Ocean region and from further afield, including Australia, France, Japan, Singapore, the UK and the US.

The two other data fusion centres likely to be involved in this initiative are the Singapore Navy's Information Fusion Centre, and the Australia-sponsored Pacific Fusion Centre, set up in 2019 in Port Vila in Vanuatu.

In recent years, IUUF has been seen as growing into a bigger threat to maritime states than international piracy. Studies have said that unregulated and underreported fishing are bigger challenges than illegal fishing, as they deplete stocks and deprive vulnerable regional economies of an important food source.

In a January 2021 paper, the American think tank Brookings called IUUF "a national security concern" that "may indeed become an increasingly important mission for the United States and its security partners and allies around the world, and most certainly those in the Indo-Pacific."

The paper ("National Security Imperative to Tackle IUUF", Michael Sinclair) argued that Chinese fishing practices presented "a truly unique and dire" threat.

"First, China boasts the world's largest fishing fleet. It uses this fleet to devastating effect to meet its population's huge demand for protein. It also provides generous subsidies, which has incentivised the rapid proliferation of large, capable, "distant water" vessels that can harvest staggering amounts of catch in a single voyage, often by dragging the ocean bottom without regard to fish type, age, or quantity limits. When working together in fleets, these vessels are rapacious".

Ahead of the 2020 presidential election in the US, an article in the journal The Fletcher Forum of World Affairs said "the flagrancy and scale of IUU fishing tramples sovereign rights, undermines the rule of law, and robs coastal states of a valuable economic resource."

"In this age of global great power competition, IUU fishing should be seen as an international security threat and should be given appropriate priority by the next administration, irrespective of whether Donald Trump or Joe Biden occupies the Oval Office."

behalf of the Telangana government, handed out cheques of Rs 3 lakh to each of the families of the 712 farmers who lost their lives during the agitation against the farm laws. He also distributed Rs 10 lakh each to the families of the four soldiers from Punjab who died during clashes with Chinese troops in Galwan Valley in June, 2020.

Speaking at the event, Rao hailed farmers for the way they carried out their agitation.

"The way you launched the agitation and continued the fight till the end, and forced the Centre to withdraw the farm laws — I bow to those farmers and their leaders. We cannot bring back those who were martyred. But we can say that the entire country empathises with you."

Urging farmers to continue the agitation, he said: "The farmers from the north, east, west and south should get together and fight for our rights. We grow food for the country. We should get justice. Agar kisan chahe toh satta palat sakta hai. Koi badi baat nahi. (If farmers want, they can overthrow the government of the day. It is no big deal)... The agitation should continue till the farmers get the right price for their produce and a constitutional guarantee to it. We should vote for only those parties who give these guarantees... Governments from across the country who love farmers will get together and when you start your agitation, we will be with you. Kejriwal ji is fortunate that this (the protest against the farm laws) was happening at his (Delhi) border. He served the agitation. He tried to save the farmers. Now, we all will get associated with the agitation and fight till the Centre agrees to our demands. I urge the farmers to come forward."

Kejriwal, who was on his first visit to Chandigarh since Mann's swearing in as Punjab Chief Minister, said the AAP government in the state would make a farmers' model in Punjab that would later be replicated across the country.

"That Chandrashekhar ji is here shows that the entire country is with you," Kejriwal said, addressing farmers. Regarding the protests at the Delhi border, he said, "It was not the andolan (movement) of a section of society, but the entire nation. It happened at the Delhi border. It was like a yajna (ritual) in which I also made an offering. Whatever we could do, we did. I remember when the farmers from Punjab and Haryana had started and were on their way, we got a file from the Centre that farmers are moving towards Delhi, and to arrest all of them, we would have had to convert Delhi's stadium into jails... But we refused the Centre, and said we would not clear this file... We stood with the farmers, we helped them in setting up toilets and providing water."

Earlier, Mann set the tone of the function, hailing the farmers for ensuring that the farm laws were repealed.

In an emotional address, he said, "When I used to raise the issue of suicide of Punjab farmers, then MPs of other states would surround me and ask me if farmers of a prosperous state like Punjab were also committing suicide. I told them that Punjab is no more the state it used to be — a happy state where the Punjabis danced to the tunes of bhangra. Successive governments had brought it to this situation. But we will restore its glory."

The event, organised by the Punjab government at Tagore theatre in Chandigarh, was also attended by farmer leader Rakesh Tikait.

in letter and spirit. A mission statement should be made," said Baldeep Singh.

Other experts believe the harmonium can co-exist with traditional instruments. "It is said the harmonium was played at Harmandir Sahib for the first time in 1901 or 1902. There are kirtani jathas that use both the harmonium and string instruments, and still come up with very good performances," says Punjabi University professor Dr Alankar his Camac Street office in Kolkata, the Barrackpore MP said, "The way TMC is working on the development of Bengal is worth appreciating. I am from the jute mill area where people have been suffering due to the Centre's unjust jute policies."

Arjun Singh

The BJP is losing ground in the state because its politics is limited to air-conditioned rooms and social media, he claimed. "The BJP as an organisation is limited to Facebook. It is not possible to do politics only on Facebook. Ground politics is important in Bengal. I am back in the party as I was facing problems working for the development of the people of Bengal," he added.

On holding the MP's post as a BJP member, he said, "Two TMC MPs who joined the BJP should first resign from the post first. If they do, I too will resign. If the party asks me, I will resign in a minute."

Abhishek Banerjee said on Twitter, "Extending a warm welcome to Arjun Singh who rejected the divisive forces... People across the nation are suffering and they need us now more than ever. Let's keep the fight alive (sic)."

Singh has been targeting the Centre, claiming that it was neglecting the jute industry of West Bengal. He had even threatened to hit the streets if the issue of jute price capping was not resolved. He had met several Central leaders in Delhi over the issue. The Jute Commissioner had revoked the decision to cap the prices of jute.

He had also softened his stance against TMC supremo and Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee, setting the speculations that he may rejoin the party.

Earlier in the day, Arjun Singh left Bhatpara and reached a five-star hotel in Alipore where he met a friend and stayed there for about half an hour. He left for Abhishek Banerjee's office only after getting a call from the party. Abhishek held a meeting with party leaders from Barrackpore and North 24 in his office before Singh was called in to rejoin the party.

Sources said Abhishek had serious deliberations in a meeting on whether or not Singh should be inducted in the party. The meeting was attended by minister Jyotipriya Mallick, Barrackpore MLA Raj Chakraborty and Naihati MLA Partha Bhowmik.

"I worked with Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee even before she formed a party," Singh said. In a recent interview to The Indian Express, Singh had blamed poor candidate selection for the BJP's loss in Assembly elections last year. He had also said that the BJP workers felt abandoned by the party after it lost in the Assembly elections. "I have 165 cases against me. Half of my family members have left the state. My supporters cannot afford to be in jail. If the party doesn't fight, is it possible for Arjun Singh to fight with the government here? We have not been able to help our workers. So, many lost their jobs, you also need money to fight court cases," Singh, then with BJP, had said.

The Barrackpore Lok Sabha constituency has a strong presence of Hindi-speaking people, many of whom work in the jute mills. Singh, a heavyweight leader from the area, has been elected to the Assembly four times on Trinamool ticket. Before the 2019 Lok Sabha election, he joined BJP and defeated Dinesh Trivedi in a closely fought contest.

Of the seven Assembly segments in the Barrackpore Lok Sabha constituency, the BJP lost six in the state election last year.

Meanwhile, senior Congress leader Adhir Ranjan Chowdhury said, "There is an understanding between the BJP and the TMC. All corrupt people from Mamata Banerjee's party will eventually rejoin her."

Taking a dig at Singh, CPI (M) leader Sujan Chakraborty said, "Till few months ago Mamata Banerjee described him as a criminal. He had the TMC on his right and the BJP on his left. He switches right and left."

Singh, who has specialised in Hindustani classical music and Gurmat Sangeet.

"It is true that the harmonium doesn't play slide notes like string instruments. The British have naturally affected our music. Sikhs believe that everything happens with the will of the Almighty. I would humbly request that instead of saying we will not play the harmonium, we should say we need to encourage the use of string instruments more," he said.

Remove harmonium from Golden Temple? Sikh music scholars strike differing notes

KAMALDEEP SINGH BRAR
AMRITSAR, MAY 22

AKAL TAKHT Jathedar Giani Harpreet Singh has asked the Shiromani Gurdwara Parbandhak Committee (SGPC) to phase out the harmonium within three years from Harmandir Sahib (Golden Temple) so that the kirtan, or singing of Gurbani, can be accompanied by traditional string instruments.

But not everyone is on the same note.

One group of scholars in Gurmat Sangeet, the Sikh tradition that has parallels with Indian classical music, support the move and say the harmonium was "imposed" by the British. Then there are those who ask: the world can't go back in time, why should music?

Every day, 15 ragi jathas, or groups of hymn singers, are deployed in turns to perform at Harmandir Sahib for 20 hours in one of the mainly 31 ragas that are chosen depending on the time of day and season. According to SGPC officials, only five of these groups have the experience and skills to perform without the harmonium, using only string instruments such as rabab and saranda. Most of the over 20 departments of Gurmat Sangeet in SGPC-runs colleges have started training in string instruments only recently.

"The harmonium was an invasion by the British. But then, it made inroads. We had met the Akal Takht Jathedar with a demand to revive string instruments. It is good that they are taking steps in this direction," said Bhai Balwant Singh Namdhari, who is a master in Gurmat Sangeet and string instruments.

Bhai Baldeep Singh, a direct descendant of Guru Nanak Dev's disciple Bhai Sadharan and renowned Gurmat Sangeet exponent, also wants the harmonium out. "Guru Nanak Dev ji was the first kirtaniya (kirtan singer)... The harmonium was introduced as part of British interference in Sikh affairs. They had no idea about our heritage. Before the British came, every Gurudwara had a jagir (property) and part of the earnings from this would go to rababis and Sikh kirtaniyas. There were Muslim rababis, too, who used to play in gurdwaras. This system of supporting ragis and rababis collapsed after the British came,"

Baldeep Singh said.

Balwant Singh and Baldeep Singh feel the harmonium affects the quality of singing. "The harmonium covers up your limitations as a ragi. String instruments demand dedication and hard work," said Balwant Singh.

"There is no space for sympathy if someone feels bad about the harmonium being excluded. The Akal Takht Jathedar should call all scholars of string instruments if he wants to implement the edict in letter and spirit. A mission statement should be made," said Baldeep Singh.

Other experts believe the harmonium can co-exist with traditional instruments. "It is said the harmonium was played at Harmandir Sahib for the first time in 1901 or 1902. There are kirtani jathas that use both the harmonium and string instruments, and still come up with very good performances," says Punjabi University professor Dr Alankar

‘Strongman’ Arjun Singh’s ghar wapsi ‘equal in scale to Mukul Roy’s return’

Singh, who left TMC in 2019, has been critical of state BJP leaders

ATRI MITRA & SWEETY KUMARI
KOLKATA, MAY 22

ENDING DAYS of speculation, BJP vice-president and the party's Barrackpore MP Arjun Singh joined the Trinamool Congress on Sunday — the latest in a long list of BJP leaders to return to the Mamata Banerjee-led party.

Around 4 pm Sunday, Singh drove to Trinamool Congress (TMC) leader Abhishek Banerjee's Camac Street office. Minutes later, the TMC national general secretary extended “a warm welcome” to the Barrackpore MP.

Singh joined the party in the presence of Banerjee and other TMC leaders, including state minister Jyotipriya Mallick and Barrackpore MLA Raj Chakraborty, both leaders from North 24 Parganas, the district to which Singh belongs.

Singh is among the biggest leaders to return to the TMC, which they deserted for the BJP ahead of the elections to the Lok Sabha in 2019 and the Assembly in 2021.

Within a month of the TMC's landslide victory in the Assembly election, Mamata's lieutenant Mukul Roy resigned from the BJP and joined his old party in the presence of the TMC leadership. He was followed by Rajib Banerjee, Joyprakash Majumder, Babul Supriyo, among many others.

However, according to a senior TMC leader, Singh's “ghar wapsi” (homecoming) can only be compared to Mukul Roy's in scale.

“TMC suffered the most when Mukul Roy, Arjun Singh and Suvendu Adhikari left the party. Mukul has already returned and Arjun joined today. So, it's a big gain for the TMC and a huge, huge setback for the BJP,” the leader said.

into politics. In 1995, Singh was elected to the Bhatpara municipality on a Congress ticket. But he quit the party and joined Mamata Banerjee, when she left the Congress to set up the TMC in 1998.

Singh's family originally hails from Siwan of Bihar, a connection that helped him build the TMC organisation in the industrial belt of North 24 Parganas, where most of the voters are Hindi-speaking migrants from Bihar and Uttar Pradesh.

In 2001, he became TMC MLA from Bhatpara and followed it up with three more wins from the seat. He also headed the TMC's Hindi wing and was in charge of the party in Uttar Pradesh, Bihar, Jharkhand and Punjab.

In March 2019, ahead of the Lok Sabha elections, with the BJP seen as a rising force, Singh resigned as TMC MLA and joined the party. His exit proved to be a setback for the TMC, which lost its organisation in the Barrackpore industrial belt and the larger North 24 Parganas. In the elections that year, Singh defeated TMC's Dinesh Trivedi to be elected BJP MP from Barrackpore.

Seen as a ‘strongman’, Singh has a string of criminal cases against him, including on charges of corruption, attempt to murder, fraud and rioting. In 2020, a year after he joined the BJP, as chairman of Bhatpara Naihati Cooperative Bank, he was accused of sanctioning loans against fake work orders and allegedly siphoning funds. He was later removed as chairman of the bank. The same year, he was booked in an attempt to murder case after Dharmendra Singh, a TMC youth leader, was shot at in Barrackpore. Though Singh was summoned by the state CID and police in many of these cases, he wasn't arrested. All the cases are under investigation.

Over the last couple of months, Singh has been openly critical of the new BJP leadership in the state, with sources close to him saying he felt sidelined under Sukanta Majumdar, the new state party chief.

He has also been critical of the Centre's jute price policy, saying the price cap of Rs 6,500 per quintal imposed by the NDA government would affect mill workers and MSMEs in Bengal.

In April, Singh shot off a letter to Union Textiles Minister Piyush Goyal, following which he had a meeting with the minister. Singh had claimed credit when the Jute Commissioner later withdrew the price ceiling. “After sustained pressure, the Jute Commissioner has withdrawn the price cap on raw jute. This is just a step forward in the long movement ahead. There should not be a competition for taking credit. Our sole aim & focus should be the benefits of farmers, workers and the industry,” he had tweeted.

Singh had also met BJP president J P Nadda, after which he said, “Those who don't understand anything about the organisation are giving sermons. I have told Naddaji everything. Let's see what happens. The party has given us a chair, but it doesn't have legs. The party has given us a pen but it has no ink.”

Sources said the U-turn on the jute price cap and the meetings with the Central leadership were an attempt by the BJP to retain an increasingly rebellious Singh in the party.

But that hardly deterred Singh, who continued to hit out at the state leadership. On Sunday, after joining the TMC, he said, “The BJP's movement is only on social networking platforms. The movement can only be fought at the grassroots.”

But as news of Singh joining the TMC emerged, many pointed out how Mamata Banerjee was not present on the occasion. Also, while Singh joined the party in the presence of Abhishek Banerjee, the TMC national general secretary was not present with Singh during the press conference he addressed subsequently. As a contrast, sources pointed out, Nadda and Union Home Minister Amit Shah were both present when Arjun Singh joined the BJP in 2019.

ASSAM

Day after police station set ablaze, houses of accused demolished

TORA AGARWALA
GUWAHATI, MAY 22

AUTHORITIES in Assam's Nagaon district Sunday demolished the homes of five families that were allegedly involved in setting fire to a police station the previous day.

A mob of about 40 people from Salonabari village had set fire to a part of the Batadrava police station in Dhing circle Saturday afternoon over the death of Safikul Islam, a local fish-seller, after he was taken into custody.

A special investigation team (SIT) has been set up to probe the mob attack. The district administration, meanwhile, ordered a judicial probe into the death. Police suspended the officer-in-charge of the Batadrava police station, 6 km away from the village.

On Sunday morning, bulldozers reached the village and demolished the “illegal” homes of “those who were involved in setting fire to the police station”, police officers said.

“There were about 40 people in the mob. We have identified and arrested eight... and 15 have been detained,” Assam Special DGP (law and order) G P Singh told The Indian Express. A woman and a minor are among those picked up. Singh claimed that the demolished homes belonged to “illegal settlers”. “They have settled on the land illegally or with forged documents,” he said, adding that the demolition was wrapped up in the morning itself.

“Everything is under control now,” he said. “We have ordered an independent probe into the alleged custodial death, and if any officer is found guilty, we will take strong action. But such an allegation does not mean you set fire to a police station.”

He added that video footage was being analysed to identify the others involved. Asked if the home-owners were sent a notice about the demolition, Singh said notices fell under the jurisdiction of the district administration.

The Indian Express reached out to Nagaon DC Nisarg Hivare but his phone was switched off.

However, another district official, who did not wish to be identified, said they had not received any written communication or instruction from the office of the DC regarding the demolition, and that no notice was sent from the circle office to the village.

Speaking to the Press on Sunday evening, Assam CM Himanta Biswa Sarma said the incident was a reflection of the “dangerous” times the people of Assam were living in. “A police station was burnt down. Till our government is in power, we will not pardon such crimes,” he said.

He said a lot of land in Batadrava was under “illegal occupation”. “I have directed the district administration to identify such areas. We will take action — either through eviction or other laws — against any element trying to disturb the peace.”

The circumstances preceding the death of Islam, who was picked up Friday night on a complaint of being “drunk”, are contested. According to a statement from the office of the Assam DGP, Islam was released and handed over to his wife on Saturday morning. “His wife even gave him some water/food. Later he complained of sickness and he was taken to two hospitals, one after another. Unfortunately he was declared dead,” it said.

Family members of Islam alleged that police demanded Rs 10,000 and a duck as a bribe for his release. A villager said, Islam's wife and neice visited the police station with a duck on Friday night, but was asked to arrange money by the police. “When they returned the next morning, they found he was unwell and took him to the dispensary nearby. The case was referred to the civil hospital but he died on the way,” said the resident.

Special DGP Singh said he had advised the Nagaon SP to probe if those accused had links with banned terror or jihadi outfits.

DESCRIBING RAJA Rammohan Roy as a great social reformer and visionary, Union Minister for Culture G Kishan Reddy Sunday virtually unveiled a statue of the ‘Father of Bengal's Renaissance’ at Salt Lake on the occasion of his 250th Birth Anniversary.

Reddy who also spoke virtually at a function at Science City to mark the anniversary described the man best known for his fight to abolish the inhuman practise of Sati or immolation of widows, as a “a thinker, an educator, a journalist, a visionary.”

“Roy was a great social reformer, a thinker, an educator, a journalist, a visionary. He is not only the pride of Bengal but the country. Installing his statue will inspire the present generation of youths,” he said. Both the functions organised by central government bodies were marked by

Bengal logs 35 fresh Covid cases, no death

Kolkata: West Bengal on Sunday recorded 35 fresh Covid-19 cases with no death, the state health department's bulletin said.

The death toll due to the infection in the state stands at 21,203 while the positivity rate is 0.35 per cent.

The state had 35 recoveries, while 9,913 samples were collected in the past 24 hours. The recovery rate has reached 98.93 per cent, officials said. At least 359 patients are in home isolation, while 19 are undergoing treatment in hospitals.

BENGAL SSC RECRUITMENT ‘SCAM’

CBI to examine digital data, more people under scanner

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
KOLKATA, MAY 22

THE CENTRAL Bureau of Investigation (CBI) is set to examine digital data, notifications and documents related to the alleged illegal appointments as part of its ongoing probe into the West Bengal School Service Commission (SSC) recruitment ‘scam’.

The central investigating agency will call more people for interrogation and is likely to make it its first arrest in the case. Senior officials from Delhi had held meetings in Kolkata and a decision has been taken to step up the probe into this case, sources said.

In the last three days, Minister of State for School Education Paresch Chandra Adhikary was questioned by a CBI team for more than 16 hours.

The CBI on Saturday grilled him about who all he had contacted to secure a job for his daughter Ankita Adhikary as an assistant teacher in a government-aided school, officials said.

The Calcutta High Court on Friday (May 20) had ordered Ankita's dismissal and asked her to return the entire salary from the date of her joining since 2018. Ankita was teaching political science to classes 11 and 12 at Indira Girls High School, Mekhliganj, in Cooch Behar district.

The CBI is going to interrogate the minister again this week. Industry and Commerce Minister Minister Partha Chatterjee, former education minister, too will be quizzed again this week.

Also, there are chances of the agency making its first arrest in the SSC scam this week, it is learnt.

On Saturday, the central agency filed an FIR (first information report) against five members of an advisory panel of the School Service Commission in connection with its probe into alleged irregularities in the recruitment to Group-C posts in state government-aided schools.

Kalyanmoy Ganguly, the president of the West Bengal Board of Secondary Education, advisory committee's former chairman Shanti Prasad Sinha, SSC's ex-chairman Soumitra Sarkar, commission's former secretary Ashok Kumar Saha and its former programme officer Samarjit Acharya were named in the FIR.

Those named in the FIR will be summoned and interrogated soon, officials privy to the investigation said.

BALANCE AND CHECK

In Gyanvapi-Kashi Vishwanath case, the apex court needs to say more to underline the primacy of the Constitution

A DAY AFTER the Supreme Court allowed namaz to continue at the Gyanvapi mosque and ordered securing the site where the Shivling is claimed to have been found, it transferred the case from the senior civil judge to the district judge arguing that the issue needed a more “seasoned hand”. Then the court suggested that the Places of Worship (Special Provisions) Act, 1991 doesn’t bar ascertaining its nature. This attempt by the court, ostensibly to “heal” and to balance competing claims in the Kashi Vishwanath temple-Gyanvapi mosque dispute, raises questions.

Transferring the case to a senior judge, the court acknowledged “the complexity of the issues involved” in the case. This is reminiscent of the court’s decision in the Ayodhya-Ramjanmabhoomi dispute where the civil suits were clubbed and transferred from lower courts directly to the Allahabad High Court. Short-circuiting due process is a slippery slope, especially in cases where “complexity” is as much about the law as it’s about politics. Leading the three-judge bench, Justice D Y Chandrachud remarked, in the form of a question to the parties, that the 1991 law may not bar “ascertaining” the nature of the place of worship even when it bars conversion of the religious character of any place of worship as it existed on August 15, 1947. Surely, the bench is aware that “ascertainment” in this case is not a mere intellectual inquiry, an academic expedition by diligent history students. The plea explicitly calls for access to worship — in Mathura, one even calls for demolition of the mosque — and, outside the courtroom, the lawsuits are framed by politics, faith, and a disdain of Constitutional norms. The court’s remark also contradicts its own unanimous verdict, that included Justice Chandrachud, which drew the curtains on the Ayodhya case. The SC held that the 1991 Act is “a legislative instrument designed to protect the secular features of the Indian polity, which is one of the basic features of the Constitution”. It also emphasised that the law preserves non-retrogression, “a foundational feature of the fundamental constitutional principles of which secularism is a core component”.

Just days ago, the Centre told the Supreme Court, in the sedition hearing, that the Prime Minister has repeatedly expressed his “unequivocal” views on “Constitutionally cherished freedoms”, that he has underlined one of India’s strengths as the “diverse thought streams that beautifully flourish”. The petitions in Kashi and Mathura challenge this very strength. Their final goal is the conversion of the religious character of these places in the name of “correcting historical mistakes.” The Supreme Court itself has said that independence from colonial rule furnishes a Constitutional basis for healing injustices of the past. The question is how will the Court put this idea into effect. It may need to do more, to say more, than the “balance” it has tried to strike so far.

WELCOME RELIEF

Fuel tax cuts will help ease price pressures, but inflation is likely to remain elevated

ON SATURDAY, THE Union government announced a reduction in the excise duty on petrol and diesel by Rs 8 per litre and Rs 6 per litre respectively. Alongside, the government also reduced the customs duty on raw materials and intermediaries for plastic products and iron and steel. Undoubtedly, these decisions are driven by the desire to cool the surge in inflation — recent data showed that retail inflation had risen to an eight-year high of 7.9 per cent in April, while wholesale inflation has been in double digits for 13 consecutive months. But, implicit in these decisions is also the acknowledgement that both fiscal and monetary policies are needed at this juncture to curb inflation. As per some analysts the cut in fuel taxes could help reduce inflation directly by around 20 basis points in June when its full impact will be visible. The second-round effects are likely to be equally strong.

This is the second time in the recent past that the Centre has cut fuel taxes. In November last year, the Centre had lowered the excise duty on petrol by Rs 5 and by Rs 10 on diesel. Back then, 21 states and some Union Territories had followed suit, cutting the VAT. If state governments follow suit this time also, the relief could be higher. Prior to this cut, taxes imposed by the Centre and states accounted for almost 43 per cent of the retail selling price of petrol. But with the latest cut, the government has brought the excise duty back to pre-pandemic levels. As per the finance minister, the reduction in excise duty will lower the government’s revenue by around Rs 1 lakh crore. However, it is possible that this loss in revenue is offset in part by higher collections through other sources. As per some analysts, the government’s tax revenues will exceed budget estimates by around Rs 1.3 lakh crore, even after this cut.

While this decision will have a moderating influence on price pressures in the economy, the worry is that inflation has become entrenched. As per projections by analysts, inflation is likely to remain above the RBI’s inflation targeting framework. To tackle this surge in inflation, analysts had, prior to this move, expected the monetary policy committee (MPC) to raise rates aggressively over the course of the next few meetings. The MPC, in its next meeting which is scheduled a few weeks from now, must not only release an updated forecast for inflation, but also shed some clarity on the extent of monetary tightening it envisages, and over what duration to bring inflation in line with its target.

AMITABH MATTOO

AS ANTHONY ALBANESE is sworn in as Australia’s 31st Prime Minister, he will be conscious of the deep electoral angst against traditional politics and a groundswell in support for a contemporary avatar of Australia’s own “Aam Aadmi” politics: The Teal independents, a motley group brought together primarily by the lack of mainstream urgency to act against climate change.

But the alacrity with which the PM has acted to ensure that he and his Foreign Minister Penny Wong attend the Quad summit in Tokyo on Tuesday, should reassure those concerned about the future direction of Canberra’s foreign policy under a Labor government. At a moment of profound domestic churning, Australia’s foreign policy is unlikely to swing, especially under the charge of the wise and incisive Wong. This holds true, particularly of the near-consensus in Canberra about the importance of India and of improving bilateral relations.

After nearly a decade in opposition, Labor has come back to government. But that victory disguises the rise of a new force in Australian politics, the Teal independents and the fall in support for the Coalition (Liberals and Nationals) and for Labor, with a marginal increase in the standing of the Greens. The Teal independents, mostly women, are not connected organisationally except through the Teal colour (a blue-green that they used in the campaign) and financial support from an advocacy group — Climate 200.

The Teal independents have won at least nine seats; most of them, the safest blue-chip Liberal seats. Consider this: Kew, where my family has lived for the last decade, is part of the Kooyong constituency and a bastion of the Liberal Party ever since Robert Menzies, Australia’s longest-serving PM, occupied the seat in 1934. The incumbent, Josh Frydenberg, was the Treasurer in the Scott Morrison government and most saw him becoming PM one day. Frydenberg has been defeated by a rookie in politics, Monique Ryan — one of the Teals. Ryan, a well-regarded doctor, ran an electrifying campaign with hundreds of volunteers who campaigned door-to-door on just three planks — action on climate change; transparency and integrity in politics; and safety for women.

Climate 200 was set up as a “community crowd-funded initiative” by Simon Holmes à Court, a political activist and clean energy investor (and son of Australia’s first billionaire) that supported political candidates committed to a science-based response to the climate crisis; restoring integrity to politics, and advancing gender equity. The group backed 23 “Teal” candidates across the country, including the journalist Zoe Daniel in Goldstein and Allegra Spender in Wentworth, who defeated the Indian-origin Dave Sharma (a former diplomat who had served as Australia’s Ambassador to Israel).

Climate 200 has a deep resonance with sections of conservative Liberal voters who are concerned about the end of a “lifestyle” because of climate change. As Australia’s best-known novelist Richard Flanagan wrote last year: “Australia today is ground zero for the climate catastrophe. Its glorious Great Barrier Reef is dying, its world-heritage rain forests are burning, its giant kelp forests have largely vanished, numerous towns have run out of water or are about to, and now the vast continent is burning on a scale never before seen.”

Not surprisingly Climate 200 managed to raise over $10 million, amidst concerns about the degree of control it would have over the Teals and suggestions of a conflict of interest with Holmes à Court’s clean energy business.

When Albanese arrives in Tokyo to meet with other leaders of the Quad, much will be expected of him. The leaders will seek reassurance that Australia is still as committed to the Quad as the previous Liberal government. For the Australian PM, this will be a moment to demonstrate that he is different from his predecessor, but equally committed to the multi-lateral arrangement and to the bilateral relations that have been fostered over the last decade, including with India.

To be sure, Albanese is not Scott Morrison. Morrison was flamboyant, with a background in marketing. He had headed Tourism Australia and presided over perhaps the most controversial campaign video ever launched to promote Australia tourism: “So, where the bloody hell are you?”

In contrast, Albanese has a low-profile presence and a workman-like attitude and is given to a considered rather than a brilliant spontaneous response on most issues. Remember that Albanese was a child of deprivation rather than privilege. He was brought up by a single mother who suffered dreadfully because of rheumatoid arthritis while living in council housing in Sydney. Success did not come easily to him, but whether in the party or the government, he was seen as a coalition builder having the skills and patience to generate a consensus.

Although he has roots in the left-wing of the Labor Party (in his youth he identified with the struggles of the African National Congress against apartheid and the campaigns for nuclear disarmament — both have a resonance in India) he is a pragmatic leader who understands that Australia faces today a deeply volatile situation in the region and beyond.

One of the most animated moments in the electoral campaign was when Morrison suggested that Albanese was soft on China. Albanese responded by describing the PM’s words as an outrageous slur. This was after he had questioned the government on its failures over not doing enough to prevent the Solomon Islands from signing a controversial security deal with China.

Albanese is fortunate to have the brilliant and charismatic Wong as his Foreign Minister. Wong, who has been part of the Australia India Leadership Dialogue which I chaired in the past, genuinely believes in the importance of Australia’s partnership with India and has often referred to the fact that it was under the Labor Prime Minister, Julia Gillard, that the policies to reach out to India were first initiated (including overturning the ban on uranium exports to India).

One of the tired clichés about Australia is drawn from Donald Horne’s book The Lucky Country, which suggested that Australia was a lucky country run by second rate leaders. In contrast, by all evidence, the Albanese cabinet is one gifted with outstanding leaders, and hopefully luck will continue to be on its side.

AN EXCEPTIONAL JUSTICE

Perarivalan’s release highlights the gaps, callousness in India’s criminal justice system

ANUP SURENDRANATH AND ADRIJA GHOSH

THE SUPREME COURT’S May 18 order releasing A G Perarivalan, one of the convicts in the Rajiv Gandhi assassination case, is the culmination of a long-drawn-out battle for freedom spanning over 31 years. Perarivalan’s agonising wait may have ended, but his struggle serves as a grim reminder of the several failures of our criminal justice system.

The fact that it took over 31 years for Perarivalan’s release despite strong concerns of wrongful prosecution and wrongful conviction ought to worry us. Perarivalan’s case forces us to reckon with the tyrannical legacy of terror laws and the broader crisis that plagues criminal justice administration. The case against Perarivalan, charged under the Terrorist and Disruptive Activities (Prevention) Act (TADA) and the Indian Penal Code (IPC), was that he had participated in the conspiracy to assassinate former Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi by supplying batteries for the belt bomb allegedly used for the assassination, with the knowledge that the batteries would be put to said use. The main evidence against him was a confession made to this effect to CBI officer, V Thiagarajan. Such confessions to the police, ordinarily inadmissible under the Indian Evidence Act, were admissible under the TADA.

In 2017, 18 years after the Supreme Court upheld Perarivalan’s conviction under IPC provisions, using the confession recorded under TADA (despite the TADA charges having been dropped), Thiagarajan submitted a sworn affidavit before the SC stating that he had omitted the exculpatory part of Perarivalan’s statement, denying knowledge of the use to which the batteries would be put. This reveals the violent reality of our criminal justice system — that statements and evidence are manipulated to secure convictions. It also demonstrates the dangers of conferring extraordinary police powers under the garb of national security legislation. Again, in 2017, Justice KT Thomas, one of the three SC judges who had upheld Perarivalan’s conviction, acknowledged “serious flaws” in the CBI investigation.

For nearly half of his 31 years in prison, Perarivalan lived under the sentence of death. The SC confirmed the death sentence imposed by the TADA Court in ignorance of the Bachan Singh framework, which requires circumstances relating to both the crime and the criminal to be considered. Justice KT Thomas later expressed doubts as to whether such severe punishment would have been imposed, had it not been such a high-profile case. Nevertheless, in what must be seen as a triumph of the human spirit, Perarivalan’s educational attainments in prison are extraordinary. Life in prison, especially on death row, is one of despair; a reality that we can barely begin to imagine.

Perarivalan’s death sentence was finally commuted to life imprisonment by the SC in 2014, after almost 16 years on death row, on grounds of an extraordinary and unexplainable delay of 11 years, after which his mercy plea was rejected by the President. In 2015, Perarivalan filed a mercy petition before the Tamil Nadu governor under Article 161 of the Constitution, seeking pardon. For years, there was sustained back and forth between the state government in Tamil Nadu and the Centre on which one of them had the authority to decide Perarivalan’s release. In 2018, the council of ministers of the Tamil Nadu government recommended to the governor that Perarivalan be released in the exercise of constitutional powers of clemency; advice that the governor was constitutionally obligated to follow. Despite this, the governor took no decision on the mercy petition and finally in 2021, forwarded the same to the President for his decision under Article 72. Holding that this was done without constitutional backing, the SC invoked its extraordinary powers under Article 142, releasing Perarivalan and deeming his sentence as having been served.

The manner in which Perarivalan and his mother Arputhammal ensured that their fight stayed alive for over three decades demonstrates the enormous effort required to correct an injustice in our system. Their efforts ensured that the case received national attention, that Perarivalan’s cause was backed by political parties in Tamil Nadu with strong support from the bar, civil society, and retired judges — all of these aspects are stories of exceptions rather than the norm. Perarivalan might have rightfully won his freedom back, but the same fate does not await others like him.

The passage of time has allowed us to look at the questions of injustice in this case in a far more meaningful way. It now is a question of whether we as a society have the courage to acknowledge what was inflicted in our name.

BAHUGUNA SURE TO WIN
H N BAHUGUNA, chairman of the Democratic Socialist Party romped home in the elections to Garhwal Lok Sabha seat defeating his Congress (I)-rival Chandra Mohan Singh, minister of state for hill development, in one of the prestigious by-elections. According to provisional figures available at the state headquarters, Bahuguna led his Congress (I) rival by over 20,000 votes. Postal results are yet to be counted and the results are likely to be declared in a day. Bahuguna was elected from the Congress (I) in a victory with a big margin over his Janata Party rival in the Lok Sabha polls. However, the seven-month honeymoon with the Congress (I) came to an abrupt end on the eve of the elections to the assembly elections to the Garhwal assembly constituency. Bahuguna’s men won from all the constituencies making him desert the Congress (I) and seek reelection.

REVERSES FOR CONG (I)
THE CONGRESS (I) has failed to secure a majority in Haryana and is facing a similar predicament in Himachal, the Left Front has romped home with a two-thirds majority in West Bengal. With the Bharatiya Janata Party and the Congress (I) bagging 28 and 29 seats respectively in the 65-member Himachal Assembly, the poll in this hilly state, as also in Haryana, is in a stalemate. In Himachal much will depend on the six independents, four of whom are ex-Congress (I) members.

WORLD BOXING CHAMPION
NIKHAT ZAREEN

‘People told my father that boxing was a men’s sport’

World champion boxer Nikhat Zareen talks about how people ridiculed her choice to become a boxer as a girl, her struggles in a conservative society and how she feels women boxers wearing hijab is a matter of choice. The session was moderated by Mihir Vasavda, Assistant Editor, The Indian Express

WHY
NIKHAT ZAREEN

Nikhath Zareen won the World Boxing Championships in Turkey on May 19, becoming only the fifth Indian woman to be crowned world champion (flyweight). But her story to the podium is also about breaking free from the shackles of patriarchy, tradition, mindset and, most importantly, from inhibitions. She is now setting her sights on the Olympic gold Mihir Vasavda: You mentioned the support you received from your parents. You have three sisters, what is your relationship with them like and what did you all bond over?

I have two older sisters and a younger one, who is seven years junior to me. Both my elder sisters are physiotherapists and were not interested in sports. I had always been interested in sports and used to be a bit of a tomboy those days, hanging out with the boys. I had a boyish short hair too and preferred wearing T-shirt and jeans. Nobody thought I was a girl. Perhaps, I became strong because I have been, what you would call, “rough-and-tough” since childhood.

Before boxing, I was into athletics. Since there were no proper facilities and coaches, I would accompany my father to the Collector’s Ground where many competitive sports took place. I saw girls in every sport except boxing. I remember asking my father why there were no girls in the ring and if only boys could box? And he said, “no beta, girls can also box but people think they don’t have the guts to do so. That’s why they don’t send their girls to learn boxing.”

That challenged me to take up boxing as I couldn’t understand why people would think that girls weren’t strong enough to take up such a sport. So, I thought, let’s give it a try. Bachpan sey mujhe khatron ki khiladi khelne ka bahut shauk tha (I have always wanted to be a dare-devil since my childhood). I didn’t quite anticipate what awaited me.

I was the lone girl practising in that stadium among boys. Initially, I used to get hit a lot but I did not give up. Maybe training in that atmosphere, surrounded by boys, helped me steel my resolve.

Illustration: Suvajit Dey

Sriram Veera: I was watching an interview of your mother talking about an early sparring session of yours. It was with a boy and he hit you in your face. Your mother said that she started crying and saying ‘beta tumse shaadi kaun karega?’

(Nikhath laughs) Let me tell you that story. That was my first sparring session and I was pitted against a boy who was very experienced. The coach shouted “box” and he started attacking me. I wasn’t ready for his attack and got hit on my nose, which started bleeding along with my eye which got bruised as well.

I went home with bloodstains on my T-shirt. When I entered my house, I directly rushed into the bathroom and didn’t come out until I had changed everything. I then stayed in my room, hiding my eye. But then my mother called me for dinner. We eat food together, while watching serials on TV, like every other household. This is the usual ritual but that day I chose to stay in my room. My mother got worried, barged in and seeing me bruised and black, she shivered. Then she started crying and said, “Beta maine tujhe boxing mein isliye nahi dala ki tera face kharab ho jaye (I didn’t allow you to pursue boxing so that your face would get scarred).” She then said that no one would marry me. I replied, “arre ammi, tension nako lo, naam hoga toh dulhon ki line lag jayegi! (Dear mother, don’t worry, once I make a name for myself, grooms will queue up at the doorstep).”

Now she’s used to it. Whenever I get hit, she casually tells me to apply some ice and says that it will be okay. Sometimes I feel she has become my coach. My parents watch all my bouts in every competition that I participate in and they now have a good idea of what boxing is. Whenever I have a match, my mother watches me closely and post-match calls me to review my performance, pulling me up on the mistakes I made during the fight. My parents have become my coaches and say things like, “Try to avoid clinching and play from a distance because your punches look clear then.” I find it funny that there was a time when they didn’t know anything about boxing and now they give me gyaan (laughs). But it feels nice that they’ve come a long way from their old mentality and have grown a lot with me.

Sriram Veera: Heard you say once that your plan B was to join the police.

In my childhood, I dreamt of becoming an IPS officer. When you are young, most children will say that they want to be a pilot, police, doctor or teacher. These were the professions we knew about and because of that, I wanted to be in the police. Also, the uniform looked cool and when we were in school, IPS officers would visit us as chief guests during special events and programmes. I saw the respect they commanded. Whenever I looked at them, I told myself that one day I would wear a uniform like them and come as a chief guest to my school. That’s how I started dreaming about becoming an IPS officer.

Nitin Sharma: We talked about the gold medal you won as a junior boxer in 2011. You were 15 years old back then. Ten years later, you have got the senior title. What do these achievements mean to you and do you feel the senior title came a bit late?

Medal der aaya lekin durust aaya (better late than never). The medal I won in 2011 was memorable because it was my first-ever international competition where I got a standing ovation on the podium... our national anthem was being played in front of so many people. I was overwhelmed. That experience will always remain etched in my memory.

Still, I was a kid in a junior level championship. The elite level is very different. The competition is better and the pressure, higher. In the juniors, you don’t know your opponent – all you can think about is to enter the ring, beat the opponent and win the bout. But in the senior category, you know about your opponents’ styles, strengths and weakness. So, you end up having to plan your moves strategically. There is a lot more pressure on your mind at this level. And yet, I managed to win the gold medal for my country. I am really happy about that. Hopefully, I can continue to work hard like this and keep winning medals.

Nitin Sharma: In your weight category, you have had to compete with MC Mary Kom, whom you have idolised, over the past three-four years. We also saw your bid to get into trials against her for the Tokyo Olympic qualifiers. She did not want the trials and it turned into a spat. The bout eventually took place but how do you see her after that incident? Also how do you feel about the CWG trials knowing that Mary Kom is expected to take part?

She is an experienced boxer with many records in her past. So based on that it was her right, perhaps. But when two boxers enter the ring, only the one who’s technically sounder wins. Because of that, when our trials took place, she won and was selected for the Tokyo Olympic qualifiers. I congratulated her on qualifying but unfortunately, she couldn’t win a medal at the Tokyo Olympics.

When I lost in the trials, I decided to move on from Tokyo and focus on the Paris Olympic Games. With regard to the Commonwealth Games trials, I heard she’s going for the trials in the 48-kg category, so I don’t think we’ll face each other.

Sandeep Dwivedi: What is so special about Hyderabad that so many world-beating women athletes come out of the city? Is it common aggression, that is so important in sport and that you share with athletes like Saina Nehwal and Sania Mirza, which propels you to such heights?

(Laughs) Sab Hyderabad ki biryani aur haleem hi hai (It’s all in Hyderabad’s biryani and haleem). I guess every athlete gets nervous. The quality of a champion is how she deals with that pressure and nervousness. Even I was nervous about the world championship. I was nervous about how I would play against my opponent, whether I would be able to make her play according to my style and dominate her or whether she would trap me in her boxing style. Such thoughts always come to mind. I won all my bouts with unanimous decisions and I am happy about it.

Sandeep Dwivedi: You have been good friends with the likes of Tokyo Olympics champion Neeraj Chopra apart from CWG and Asian Games champion Vinesh Phogat and athletes like Tejaswin Shankar. Tell us how did this sharing of ideas start?

We met when all of us were going through a bad phase. We were suffering from injuries and were feeling low. Vinesh had a knee injury, I had a shoulder injury, Neeraj had issues with hamstring and even Tejaswin was struggling with some wound. We were rehabilitating at the JSW Sport Centre in Bengaluru. We would eat meals and roam together always. So, it all started from there. Then we shared each other’s stories and understood how much struggle each one of us had to face. That’s how our friendship started. After the recovery, everybody got busy and now, Neeraj Chopra is an Olympic champion while Vinesh is a Commonwealth and Asian Games champion. They have made the country proud and seeing them achieve their personal highs inspired me to work hard. When they can do it on the world stage, it inspires me to push myself harder and achieve big on the world stage too. We can all meet together at the next Games.

Mihir Vasavda: You have mentioned a lot of ups, downs and struggles in your career. Was there any moment in your life, in your career to be precise, that shaped you as a boxer or inspired you to pack a punch?

Yes, before my shoulder injury, I was not mature enough. After the injury, I learnt a lot. I got to know who my real friends were and who weren’t. Because most of them did not even message me or ask me how I was doing. But still I stayed positive and worked hard on my rehabilitation. I made my comeback in 2018 and took some time to recover before I won the gold at the Strandja Memorial in 2019. I have never looked back and have always thought of progressing ahead.

Mihir Vasavda: You have been a path-breaker your entire career. You come from an orthodox family and have seen all kinds of struggle. In the last two-three weeks, we have seen referees and some boxers wearing hijab during the world championships. All over the world, there is a debate about whether athletes should be allowed to wear the hijab or not. In the normal course of life, too, there is a debate about this. What’s your take?

According to me, it’s their choice. If they feel comfortable, they should wear it. If they don’t feel comfortable, they should wear whatever is normal for them. It’s absolutely their choice. So, there is no need for my comment. I like boxing in shorts and a vest and nobody is forcing me to wear a hijab or stopping me from wearing shorts and a vest. It’s everybody’s choice and we should respect that.

Mihir Vasavda: It’s known that you are a big Salman Khan fan and like watching Hindi movies. If a biopic is to be made on your life, which actor would you like to portray you?

I haven’t given it a thought yet. When a movie is made on me, I don’t know which actress will be on top of the charts at that time. Right now, I want Alia Bhatt to portray me. Kyunki usko bhi dimple aata hai and mere ko bhi dimple aata hai (Because she has got dimples like me). I guess she can portray me.

Poland PM in Kyiv, addresses Parliament: Only Ukraine has right to decide its future

As strikes intensify in Donbas, lead negotiator rules out giving territorial concessions to Moscow

REUTERS

KYIV, MAY 22

UKRAINE RULED out a ceasefire or any territorial concessions to Moscow as Russia stepped up its attack in the country's east and south, pounding the Donbas and Mykolaiv regions with air strikes and artillery fire.

"The war must end with the complete restoration of Ukraine's territorial integrity and sovereignty," Ukraine's presidential chief of staff Andriy Yermak said in a Twitter post on Sunday.

The comments came as Polish President Andrzej Duda told lawmakers in Kyiv on Sunday the international community had to demand Russia's complete withdrawal and that sacrificing any of it would be a "huge blow" to the entire West.

"Worrying voices have appeared, saying that Ukraine should give in to (President Vladimir) Putin's demands," Duda said, the first foreign leader to address Ukrainian parliament in person since Russia's Feb. 24 invasion. "Only Ukraine has the right to decide about its future," he said.

President Volodymyr Zelenskyy renewed a plea for stronger economic sanctions against Moscow. "Half-measures should not be used when aggression should be stopped," he said.

Shortly after both finished speaking, an air raid siren was heard in the capital.

Meanwhile, Russia pressed its offensive in Ukraine's eastern Donbas region Sunday. The heaviest fighting focused around the twin cities of Sievierodonetsk and Lysychansk, interior ministry adviser Vadym Denysenko told Ukrainian television.

Russia's defence ministry said on Sunday its forces pummeled Ukrainian command centres, troops and ammunition depots in Donbas and the Mykolaiv region in the south with air strikes and artillery.

Ukraine's lead negotiator,

Zelenskiy adviser Mykhailo Podolyak, ruled out any territorial concessions and rejected calls for an immediate ceasefire, saying it meant Russian troops would stay in occupied territories, which Kyiv could not accept.

"The (Russian) forces must leave the country and after that the resumption of the peace process will be possible," Podolyak said in an interview with Reuters on Saturday.

Fate of 2,500 POWs from Mariupol plant stirs concern

Pokrovsk, Ukraine: With Russia claiming to have taken prisoner nearly 2,500 Ukrainian fighters from the besieged Mariupol steel plant, concerns grew about their fate. Russia has declared its full control of the Azovstal steel plant, which for weeks was the last holdout in Mariupol.

Denis Pushilin, the pro-Kremlin head of an area of eastern Ukraine controlled by separatists, said the captured fighters were sure to face a tribunal. Russian officials and state media have sought to characterize the fighters as neo-Nazis and criminals. "I believe that justice must be restored," Russian state news agency Tass quoted Pushilin as saying.

A prominent member of Russia's parliament, Leonid Slutsky, said Moscow was studying possibility of exchanging the fighters for Viktor Medvedchuk, a Ukrainian with close ties to Putin who faces criminal charges in Ukraine. He later walked back those remarks. AP

PRESIDENT JOE Biden arrived in Japan on Sunday to launch a plan for greater US economic engagement with the Indo-Pacific.

On the second leg of his first Asia trip as president, Biden is to meet with leaders of Japan, India and Australia, the "Quad," another cornerstone of his strategy to push back against China.

Biden met with Japanese business leaders in Tokyo shortly after arriving, said a person familiar with the matter.

On Monday, he will meet Prime Minister Fumio Kishida, to discuss Japan's plans to expand its military reach in response to China's growing might.

Biden on Monday plans to roll out the Indo-Pacific Economic Framework for Prosperity (IPEF), a programme to bind regional countries more closely.

Beijing appeared to take a dim view of the planned IPEF.

A MAN sacked from his job at a slaughter-house makes his way home on a snow-laden night, hitching rides. As Mathias (Martin Gregore) enters his tiny town in rural Transylvania and gets off in front of his house, we see a fox run out of the bushes. Clearly, this is a place where people live in close proximity with nature: there are lumbering bears in the forest which abuts the town, and there are beasts who live in the houses.

"RMN", Cristian Mungiu's slow burn of a movie pulls back from the specific — a man who is at odds with his wife and his life — to the universal, townspeople riven by a visceral suspicion of the other. And that other could be ethnic Romanians (gypsy is not an endearing term in those parts), Bulgarians, Germans, and a group of Sri Lankan immigrants.

These people are dirty, yells a woman at a town meeting, face contorted in fury. And they put their hands in our bread. She is referring to the Sri Lankans employed by the local bakery where they work long hours for very little money, but we can hear echoes of this kind of anger against 'outsiders' everywhere.

In this microcosm set in a small European town is a larger story which speaks to snowballing provincialism, xenophobia, and ugly racism. RMN makes a powerful case for blurring boundaries between people.

'Brother and Sister'

The beautiful Marion Cotillard plays unforgiving sister to Melvil Poupaud's agonised brother in Cannes veteran Arnaud Desplechin's 'Brother and Sister'. The enmity between them is deep, but nowhere in the nearly two-hour long film do we find concrete reasons for it.

Cotillard and Poupaud deliver intense performances, as they circle around each other, but after a point, our inquisitiveness turns into indifference: what is with these two fifty-something siblings? Will they, or will they not reconcile?

The highlight of my day was the open-air beach screening of the restored version of 'The Godfather', which is celebrating its fiftieth year. Francis Ford Coppola's classic drew massive crowds at the Cinema de Plage. I've seen the film many times before, but the promise of this very Cannes experience pushed other things to the side: in Don Corleone's immortal words, it was an offer I couldn't, and didn't want to, refuse.

Sri Lanka minister warns to stop fuel delivery after arson

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

COLOMBO, MAY 22

THE SRI LANKAN government has warned that it will suspend the delivery of fuel if transporters are threatened, after an angry mob torched a petrol pump owner's house in the country's North Central Province.

Spontaneous protests have been reported at the filling stations across the country where consumers have been waiting in long serpentine queues for fuel for hours on end.

Minister of Power and Energy Kanchana Wijesekera

said if the public continues to threaten the truckers delivering the fuel, then the government will have to suspend fuel deliveries for the safety of the transport workforce.

On Saturday, the residence of a fuel station owner and dealer in Anuradhapura, situated in Sri Lanka's North Central Province, was torched by an irate mob after the station ran out of fuel.

Citing obstructions and threat calls, the Ceylon Petroleum Private Tanker Owners' Association on Sunday requested police protection while transporting fuel, online portal the Daily Mirror reported.

A cargo ship carrying humanitarian aid from India arrives at a port in Colombo on Sunday. AP Wijesekera, meanwhile, said a ship carrying petrol had begun unloading in Colombo port on Saturday night, and another ship carrying petrol is scheduled to arrive on May 25.

Sri Lankan police on Sunday began a nation-wide raid on those hoarding fuel for resale. Police spokesman Nihal Thaldudu has warned that anyone keeping unauthorised fuel and cooking gas would face arrest.

India on Saturday provided another 40,000 metric tonnes of diesel to Sri Lanka under the credit line facility to the island nation which is grappling with its worst economic crisis.

The wife of a Navy bomb disposal expert choked up as she lamented that years of unrelenting combat missions had turned her husband into an absent, dysfunctional father.

Kristine Bostwick, 38, a former Navy corpsman, said she hoped that putting her mind through ceremonies with mind-altering substances would help her make peace with the end of a turbulent marriage and perhaps ease the migraines that had become a daily torment.

"I want to reset my brain from the bottom up," she said during the introductory session of a recent three-day retreat, wiping away tears. "My kids deserve it. I deserve it."

A growing body of research into the therapeutic benefits of psychedelic therapy has generated enthusiasm among some psychiatrists and venture capitalists.

Measures to decriminalise psychedelics, fund research into their healing potential and establish frameworks for their medicinal use have been passed with bipartisan support in city councils and state legislatures across the United States in recent years.

Much of the expanding appeal of such treatments has been driven by veterans of America's wars in Afghanistan and Iraq. Having turned to experimental therapies to treat post-traumatic stress disorder, traumatic brain injuries, addiction and depression, many former military members have become effusive advocates for a wider embrace of psychedelics.

Psychedelic retreat participants often pay thousands of dollars for the experience. But these female veterans and spouses of veterans who had traveled to Mexico for treatment at the Mission Within were attending for free, courtesy of the Heroic Hearts Project and the Hope Project. The groups, founded by an Army ranger and the wife of a Navy SEAL, raise money to make psychedelic therapy affordable for people from military backgrounds.

The Mission Within, on the outskirts of Tijuana, is run by Dr. Martin Polanco, who since 2017 has focused almost exclusively on treating veterans.

Dr. Polanco said he had treated more than 600 American veterans in Mexico. "They understand what it takes to achieve peak performance."

In the beginning, he said, he treated male veterans almost exclusively. But recently, he started receiving many requests from female veterans and military wives and began running women-only retreats.

With the exception of clinical trials, psychedelic therapy is currently performed underground or under nebulous legality. As demand soars, a handful of countries in Latin America, including Costa Rica, Jamaica and Mexico, have become hubs for experimental protocols and clinical studies.

In Mexico, two of the substances that Dr. Polanco administers — ibogaine, a plant-based psychoactive commonly used to treat addiction, and 5-MeO-DMT, a powerful hallucinogen derived from the poison of the Sonoran desert toad — are neither unlawful nor approved for medical use. The third, psilocybin mushrooms, may be taken legally in ceremonies that follow Indigenous traditions.

Dr. Charles Nemeroff, the chairman of the department of psychiatry and behavioral sciences at the University of Texas at Austin, which recently started a center for psychedelic research, said that the hype about the curative potential of psychedelics has outpaced hard evidence. The risks — which include episodes of psychosis — are considerable, he said.

The women at the Mexico retreat understood the risks. But several said they had lost faith in conventional treatments like antidepressants and had heard enough inspiring stories from friends to take a leap of faith. NYT

UGC to tweak draft regulations on learning outcomes

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
NEW DELHI, MAY 22

THE UNIVERSITY Grants Commission (UGC) has decided to tweak the draft regulations which, once approved, will define the learning outcomes associated with each level of qualification in higher education and enable transfer of credits between institutions and courses.

UGC chairperson Prof M Jagadeesh Kumar told The Indian Express on Sunday that the commission decided to revise the draft regulations, which were put out in public domain in January, to ensure parity with guidelines that govern technical education in the country.

Put simply, the National Higher Education Qualifications Framework (NHEQF), which is being revised, defines what a learner is expected to know upon completion of a course, ranging from certificate programmes to PhDs.

The draft NHEQF initially arranged the qualifications at a scale of five to 10. "However, the above is not in tune with the NSQF in which the levels are organised from 4.5 to 8..." Kumar said.

The UGC will hold a series of meetings with the heads of universities from May 25 to communicate the plan to revise the draft, Prof Kumar added.

10 lakh apply for CUET; BHU, DU, Allahabad univ big draws

SOURAV ROY BARMAN
NEW DELHI, MAY 22

OVER 10 LAKH candidates have registered to take the Common University Entrance Test (CUET) for undergraduate courses, the application window for which closed on Sunday, with Delhi University, BHU and Allahabad University emerging as the top draws.

With each candidate allowed to take up to nine papers, 46 lakh applications have been made so far, with students from Delhi, Uttar Pradesh, Madhya Pradesh, Haryana and Rajasthan accounting for a bulk of the registrations.

As many as 44 central universities, 12 state universities, 11 deemed universities and 19 private universities will take in undergraduate students through CUET in the 2022-23 academic sessions. The dates for the test have not yet been announced.

Among Central universities, DU leads the chart with over 6 lakh applications, followed by Banaras Hindu University (BHU) with 3.94 applications and Allahabad University with 2.31 lakh applications. Lucknow-based Babasaheb Bhimrao Ambedkar University trails closely behind with 1.49 lakh applications.

CUET, PROPOSED in the NEP 2020, provides a single platform for students to pick multiple courses and universities. The test scores will be used by many universities for UG admissions.

Jamia Millia Islamia University, which had initially expressed reservations over adopting CUET, has also attracted 1.21 lakh applications. The institution is carrying out admissions to 10 of its undergraduate programmes through the common entrance. The government had initially told Jamia and Aligarh Muslim University that admissions to all UG courses need to be carried out through CUET, but later allowed the institutions to use it for selected programmes only.

Jawaharlal Nehru University, which is more popular for its postgraduate degree courses and advanced research, has received 57,000 applications. And in line with the trend seen during the initial days after the application window was opened on April 6, at 3.3 lakh, the maximum number of registrations have come from Uttar Pradesh.

UP is followed by Delhi (1.5 lakh registrations), Bihar (83,672), Haryana (69,349), Madhya Pradesh (62,394), Rajasthan (48,016). Among the southern states, Kerala accounts for 40,476 applications, followed by Tamil Nadu with 16,590 applications.

Last month, the Tamil Nadu Assembly had adopted a resolution against CUET, prompting Union Education Minister Dharmendra Pradhan to write to the state government, saying there is "no case for infringing upon the rights of the states and Union Territories" through the test.

The numbers also reflect the popularity of DU among students in the Northeast, a region which lacks an adequate number of high quality higher education institutions, forcing students to migrate to other parts of the country.

For instance, there have been 17,613 registrations from Meghalaya, a state with a population of around 26 lakh, as opposed to only 5,739 from Karnataka.

"The geographical spread of the applications will be more even from next year. Actually much depends on the success of this year's edition of the entrance. Registrations will also increase as the exams will be held twice a year from next year," an official said.

The government had on May 19 exempted eight Central Universities in the Northeast and one in Uttarakhand from conducting the CUET, attributing the decision to "operational difficulties".

Among state universities, the Delhi government-run Ambedkar University has emerged as the most popular, drawing over 1.28 lakh applications, followed by UP's Dr APJ Abdul Kalam Technical University with 97,376 applications. The Meerut-based IIMT received 1.37 applications, becoming the top draw among private universities.

Last year, around 9.39 lakh candidates had taken the JEE (Mains) for admission to undergraduate engineering programmes, while around 15.4 had taken the medical entrance NEET.

Assam NRC head Sarma is no stranger to controversy

TORA AGARWALA
GUWAHATI, MAY 22

ASSAM'S NATIONAL Register of Citizens (NRC) may be in a limbo but the issue continues to set off rows, which was again manifested recently when state NRC coordinator Hitesh Dev Sarma filed a police complaint against his predecessor Prateek Hajela. Sarma's complaint reflected his long-standing grouse against the NRC that was completed under Hajela's supervision in August 2019. Sarma has repeatedly claimed that this NRC is "anomalies-ridden".

In his complaint lodged with the police last Thursday, Sarma seemed to have gone a step further, alleging that Hajela had deliberately introduced errors in the NRC and thus "endangered national security". Opposing the August 2019 NRC, he has even filed an affidavit in the Supreme Court seeking its re-verification.

In another controversial move, Sarma had, in April, written to Assam's Foreigners Tribunals (FTs) — quasi-judicial bodies that decide on matters on nationality — instructing them not to rely on the "erroneous NRC" while adjudicating cases. An FT member wrote back, asking him not to "inter-fer" in its work.

Sarma's tenure as the Assam NRC head has been marked by multiple controversies. He was appointed to the post by the BJP-led state government in November 2019 after the apex court ordered that Hajela be transferred out of Assam to Madhya Pradesh. Although the court did not explicitly state a reason for its order, it stated, "Can an order be without any basis?" After Sarma's appointment, his old social media posts, which were alleged to be communally-biased, surfaced.

Subsequently, state Congress MP Abdul Khaleque wrote to then Chief Minister Sarbananda Sonowal, urging him to reconsider Sarma's appointment. Khaleque stated that Sarma was neither "unbiased nor trustworthy", citing his Facebook posts. The All-Assam Minorities Students' Union (AAMSU) also flayed his appointment to the crucial position.

Assam teacher held for criticising govt gets bail

TORA AGARWALA
GUWAHATI, MAY 22

HOURS AFTER he was arrested, a 51-year-old college teacher was Saturday bailed out by a local court in Assam's Hailakandi district.

Jamir Ahmed Choudhury, an Associate Professor at the SS College, was booked for allegedly sending emails to officials "criticising government policies" and using "unparliamentary language" against the state's chief minister and education minister, police said.

"These emails were sent to the District Superintendent of Police as well as the Deputy Commissioner. We brought him in for questioning and booked him in the following day. However, the court of Chief Judicial Magistrate granted him bail the same day," said a senior Hailakandi police official, adding that the probe would continue. The police said that Choudhury headed the philosophy department in the college. "In his emails, he criticised the country's education system, saying it was 'misleading' the youth, and used unparliamentary language while referring to the chief minister," said the officer.

A suo motu case against the teacher was registered on Friday and he was booked under several sections of the IPC, including 153 A (promoting enmity between different groups and acts prejudicial to harmony), 294 (A) (uttering obscene words) as well as 83(2), Justice Juvenile Act (using children for illegal activities).

Amalendu Bhattacharjee, Principal, SS College said that Choudhury was called for questioning on Thursday.

The Indian Express reached out to Choudhury but his phone was switched off.

Varanasi district court to hear Gyanvapi case today

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
VARANASI, MAY 22

THE VARANASI district court of judge Ajaya Krishna Vishvesha on Monday will hear the civil suit on the Gyanvapi mosque-Kashi Viswanath temple complex dispute after the Supreme Court on Friday ordered the transfer of the pending proceedings to the District Judge, Varanasi, for "trial and all interlocutory and ancillary proceedings".

Underlining the "complexity of the issues involved in the civil suit" earlier pending before the Civil Judge (Senior Division), Varanasi, the top court on Friday had said that the suit "should be tried before a senior and experienced judicial officer of the Uttar Pradesh Higher Judicial Service".

Following the apex court's order, all documents and files related to the case, including the reports of advocate commissioners and case-related applications, were transferred from the office of the Civil Judge (Senior Division) to the office of the District Judge on Saturday. Both the offices are located in the same building.

"The hearing will begin in the court of the district judge on Monday... It is up to the district judge to decide at what point he starts the hearing. It would depend on the urgency and the importance of various issues," said a well-placed source.

Earlier, Civil Judge (Senior Division), Ravi Kumar Diwakar had listed the matter for hearing on May 23.

Technology for good of humanity, it shouldn't shape us: Ram Madhav

LIZ MATHEW
BANGALORE, MAY 22

WITH TECHNOLOGY growing beyond the "redlines", there has to be an intervention to contain it for the longer good of humanity and today India can play that role for the world, RSS leader and member of the governing council of the India Foundation, Ram Madhav, said on Sunday.

Madhav, at the concluding session of the three-day India Ideas Conclave, said the topic for the conference — Meta 2.0 — was chosen to change the discourse and ensure that a debate that's not religion or who would go to heaven or hell is changed in order to make sure that India does not miss another era of technology like it did in the past.

"Some people have to go through hell. Hitlers cannot be going to heaven irrespective of which religion he follows," he said, adding that everyone has to accept other's religion.

Madhav said technology has more intelligence than the humans but it doesn't have the heart, and the intervention of humans is necessary. He pointed out that the philosophers had always intervened when the human history took different turns to give the "religions and polity" a better form.

"We created technology but today we are having this concern that this technology could shape us...we know that it needs to be contained...we need to create an institution or a structure to make sure that the technology does not shape us...and cross the redlines," Madhav said, addressing the conclave organised by India Foundation, a think tank working closely with the BJP and RSS.

RSS joint general secretary CR Mukunda said technology that can be added to the sense of balance or dharma that India has followed since the ancient times can make the nation play a key role in the times to come.

'Centre expecting states to reduce taxes neither fair nor reasonable'

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
CHENNAI, MAY 22

A DAY after Union Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman announced reduction of excise duty on petrol and diesel, and asked the states to follow suit, Tamil Nadu finance minister Palanivel Thiaga Rajan on Sunday said it is "neither fair nor reasonable" for the union government to expect states to reduce their taxes.

TN Finance Minister Palanivel Thiaga Rajan

On Saturday, the Centre reduced the excise duty on petrol by Rs 8 per litre, and on diesel by Rs 6 per litre. In a direct reply to Sitharaman's tweet "exhorting all state governments to implement a similar cut", Rajan said that "the union government didn't inform, let alone ask for any state's view" when they increased union taxes on fuel, citing a total increase of Rs 23 per litre for petrol and Rs 29 per litre for diesel since 2014. "Now, after rolling back ~50% of their increases, they are exhorting states to cut. Is this federalism?" Rajan tweeted.

On Sunday, a statement issued by Rajan's office said "It is heartening to note that the Union Government has finally heeded to the repeated requests of the Tamil Nadu government to reduce the taxes on petrol and diesel..."

Even before the Union Government had first reduced its taxes on petrol and diesel in November 2021, the DMK government had cut the VAT on Petrol, in August 2021, the statement added.

Gehlot's seven in agencies' crosshairs — from son and brother to close aides

HAMZA KHAN
JAIPUR, MAY 22

FROM HIS family members to close aides to crisis managers, a number of those close to Rajasthan Chief Minister Ashok Gehlot are increasingly finding themselves in a spot either of their own making or allegedly due to their proximity with the Congress CM.

The latest cases in this regard involves minister Mahesh Joshi and party leader Mahendra Choudhary. Delhi Police is looking for Joshi's son Rohit in an alleged rape case, while latter's brother has been arrested in connection with a salt trader's murder.

As the Rajasthan Congress

gears up for the Assembly elections, slated for December 2023, these developments seem to have triggered apprehensions among some party leaders that they might be "caught in the net" of various agencies, especially the central agencies, who, they fear, may pursue the cases against them more aggressively in the run-up to the polls.

The BJP, however, hit out at the CM for "resorting to baseless allegations" that "democracy and constitutional bodies are in danger and ED, CBI are being misused". The Rajasthan BJP's chief spokesperson and MLA Ramlal Sharma said, "Ashok Gehlot has two laws. One is the Indian Penal Code, which he doesn't want to follow, and the other is Gehlot Penal Code, where he reaches a conclusion without investigation and gives a clean chit...to all those close to him..."

A look at seven people, close to the CM who have been in the crosshairs of various agencies but have not been arrested so far:

DHARMENDRA RATHORE

During the 2020 crisis, the IT raids were conducted in the offices and properties of Dharmendra Rathore, one of Gehlot's close aides. In February this year, Rathore was appointed as the Rajasthan Tourism Development Corporation chairman.

MAHESH JOSHI

During the 2020 crisis, Joshi was

Gehlot's man Friday, which among other factors led to his elevation as a cabinet minister in 2021. Last year, Joshi too was summoned by Delhi Police in connection with Shekhawat's FIR, but he skipped it.

Recently, an FIR was lodged against his son Rohit in an alleged rape case. He is absconding. Meanwhile, he has also filed a petition in the HC to quash the FIR, claiming that their relationship was "consensual" and that she was "blackmailing" him.

RAJIV ARORA

Former Rajasthan Congress vice president, Rajiv Arora, founder and owner of Amrapali Jewels, also faced IT raids during the 2020 crisis. A Congress veteran, he was among the founding members of the NSUI in Rajasthan. He is currently the Rajasthan Small Industries Corporation chairman.

VAIBHAV GEHLOT

CM's son Vaibhav Gehlot's name cropped up when during the July 2020 crisis the IT department searched nine offices of two firms — Mayank Sharma Enterprises (MSE) and Om Kothari Group. MSE belongs to the family of Ratan Kant Sharma, who had in March 2011 acquired 50 per cent shares in Sunlight Car Rentals Private Ltd, a company floated by Vaibhav, and remained its shareholder till March 2016. In March 2022, Vaibhav was booked for an alleged fraud of Rs 6.80 crore. However, the complainant later dropped the case against him.

LOKESH SHARMA

Sharma faces an FIR filed by Union minister Gajendra Singh, in connection with which Delhi Police has issued summons to him about half a dozen times since last year. The Indian Express had reported in March 2021 that the government had accepted that phones were tapped during the July 2020 crisis. Defending the CM's OSD against the Opposition's allegation that he had prepared and circulated the voice clips, parliamentary affairs minister Shanti Dhariwal, during a debate in the Assembly, had said, "If Lokesh Sharma gets something and forwards it on a WhatsApp group, what sin has he committed? Don't you do it too?...You say he made it viral, why shouldn't he make it viral?...". Days later, Shekhawat lodged an FIR against Sharma and others. Sharma has appeared twice for questioning. On May 14, he told police that he forwarded the clips to media persons "in the interest of the state".

MAHENDRA CHOUDHARY

Mahendra Choudhary was in the news recently after being named in the murder of a salt trader Jaipal Poonia in Nagaur. The FIR was filed by Poonia's wife Sarita. Choudhary's brother Moti Singh is among five persons arrested so far. Claiming innocence, Choudhary has deplored Poonia's murder.

AGRASEN GEHLOT

During the July 2020 political crisis, the ED conducted countrywide raids, including the premises of the CM's brother Agrasen Gehlot in connection with an alleged fertiliser scam. The ED officials searched multiple properties of his firm, Anupam Krishi. However, sources close to Agrasen said the law was not violated by his company but by firms which bought fertiliser from it, and Agrasen had no knowledge of it.

Is unexpected hepatitis in children linked to Covid-19?

EXPERT EXPLAINS

DR ARVINDER SINGH SOIN

From The Indian Express panel of specialists, exclusive insight

SEVERAL COUNTRIES are reporting severe hepatitis in children who have contracted Covid-19. A study from Madhya Pradesh, which is yet to be peer-reviewed, has shown that 8% of children in the group being investigated reported a unique form of hepatitis and subsequent asymptomatic Covid-19 infection.

Can we say there is a link between Covid-19 and hepatitis in children?

In the West, there have been some cases of hepatitis, which are unexplained by previously known causes. And there have been publications that have been peer-reviewed, including one published in The Lancet last week, where they have talked about several children reporting unexplained hepatitis, where every parameter they test usually is found negative. The majority of them actually get well. But there has been a small number of cases where children have actually developed severe liver cases that need a transplant. That is obviously of concern.

The timing suggests it is related to Covid. Because the chronology is suggestive of Covid having a role as such a condition wasn't seen before the pandemic, the theory of a link is gaining ground. I am talking about the Lancet paper. In the non-peer-reviewed data from Madhya Pradesh, they found 37 cases of hepatitis out of 457 patients of Covid-19.

The Lancet study detected adenovirus in nearly 80% of the cases. Normally, this virus is fairly harmless. It causes gastritis, diarrhoea and vomiting but so far has not caused any severe illness. But now nearly 80% of children with hepatitis have this virus. It is still not known if it is causally related. Researchers even analysed the type of adenovirus and found a particular strain called 41F in all samples. Now this strain is typically associated with mild gastro-intestinal illness in children. So, the theory going around is that somehow the immune system of children affected by Covid have developed abnormalities or been compromised to such an extent that the adenovirus, which is normally harmless, has manifested itself severely.

It is all a little blurry right now. But as an expert in liver disease for over 30 years and as someone who does liver transplants in children literally every other day, I think the recent cases of hepatitis are related to Covid-19 in some way. It is very likely, in my view, that there is hepatitis which has previously not been seen that has come about in children because of the pandemic. Whether the pandemic prevented the exposure to usual antigens or whether the virus itself in a silent or infected form created the imbalance in the immune system needs to be looked into. But there has been some disturbance in children's immune systems.

Could this have been triggered by an immune response caused by Covid-19?

Covid-19 activates the immune system. Whether you are symptomatic or not, you have some antigens. Over time, they will get absorbed and stimulate the immune cells, little by little, even long after the infection is gone.

It is like inciting the enemy during a ceasefire. So, even the slightest skirmish on the border will activate the enemy in a big way. With the immune system activated by the viruses and the antigen hanging around in the gut after recovery from Covid, even a minor infection caused by the adenovirus or a repeat infection of Covid can trigger a large immune response. And when a large immune response happens, the patient can get hepatitis.

Can we say children are at an increased risk of liver dysfunction after recovery?

It would be fair to say there is a risk of liver dysfunction after you recover from Covid. But the proportion of children or patients who get it is not large. It would be somewhere between the 10-20% mark. But then that translates to a significant number. In all seroprevalence studies done in India, 60-70% of children have been found to have Covid antibodies. So, if you are surmising that 70% of kids have developed infection and antibodies, they are susceptible to this kind of hepatitis. That's still a large number.

What are the preventive measures?

There are two things that you can do. First, prevent kids from getting Covid-19. That is easier said than done. We know that even without vaccination in India, 70% of them had antibodies. Second, boost immunity with nutritious food, adequate sleep and intake of vitamin and mineral supplements whenever needed.

I would say that families that have had Covid-19 infection in their homes are very likely to have children who will be at risk of developing hepatitis. They should see a paediatrician and make sure that nutritious food and supplements, if necessary, are given.

When should parents visit a specialist?

As I said, if a kid is known to have had Covid-19 in the past, he/she should follow up with a paediatrician for at least three months after recovery. Even if the parent has had Covid-19, it is likely that the child has been exposed. This is true for children younger than eight years because it is very difficult to contain them.

THIS WORD MEANS STORAGE GAIN IN WHEAT

Extra weight gained from absorption of moisture. How it is calculated, and why Punjab agencies want a waiver HAVING ALREADY got a relaxation in Fair and Average Quality (FAQ) norms for wheat procurement this season, Punjab's state procurement agencies are now seeking a waiver of 'storage gain'. If allowed, the waiver would stand at around Rs 150 crore for the current season.

HOW IT WORKS: Wheat tends to gain some weight during storage. This is what is known as 'storage gain' and it mostly happens due to absorption of moisture by the endosperm of the wheat. State procurement agencies are required to give 1 kg wheat extra per quintal to the Food Corporation of India (FCI) to compensate for storage gain.

While 20% of wheat procured by the FCI and the state procurement agencies, is moved immediately after procurement, it is usually on the remaining 80%, which is moved out after July 1 every year, that storage gain has to be accounted for due to longer storage duration.

CALCULATIONS THIS YEAR: This year 96 lakh metric tonnes (LMT) wheat was procured in Punjab by all agencies. As 80% of this figure comes to 76.80 LMT, it means that storage gain would be around 7.68 lakh quintals on this. At MSP rate of Rs 2,015, it would cost state agencies Rs 154.74 crore if they are unable to supply 7.68 lakh quintals extra during movement of 76.80 LMT wheat. The state agencies argue that grain procured this year is both shrivelled and broken and therefore will not gain much weight.

Battery-like device that captures carbon dioxide while charging

RESEARCHERS HAVE developed a low-cost device that can selectively capture carbon dioxide gas while it charges. Then, when it discharges, the carbon dioxide can be released in a controlled way and collected to be reused or disposed of responsibly, the University of Cambridge said in a press release. The device has been described in the journal Nanoscale.

The supercapacitor device, which is similar to a rechargeable battery, is the size of a coin, and is made in part from sustainable materials including coconut shells and seawater. The University of Cambridge said the supercapacitor could help power carbon capture and storage technologies at much lower cost. The most advanced carbon capture technologies currently require large amounts of energy and are expensive.

The supercapacitor consists of two electrodes of positive and negative charge. The team tried alternating from a negative to a positive voltage to extend the charging time from previous experiments. This improved the supercapacitor's ability to capture carbon.

"We found that that by slowly alternating the current between the plates we can capture double the amount of carbon dioxide than before," the release quoted lead researcher Dr Alexander Forse as saying. "Our next questions will involve investigating the precise mechanisms of carbon dioxide capture and improving them. Then it will be a question of scaling up."

HARISH DAMODARAN & PARTHASARATHI BISWAS
NEW DELHI, PUNE, MAY 22

THE WORLD and India are witnessing a resurgence of food inflation. Between September 2021 and April 2022, consumer food price inflation in India has risen from 0.68% to 8.38% year on year. And with the UN Food and Agriculture Organization's (FAO) food price index hitting new highs, it has reignited memories of the last great commodity inflation (from the mid-2000s till around 2012-13, briefly interrupted by the 2008-09 financial crisis).

But there's a difference between the two food inflationary episodes, especially in India.

The former was a structural, demand-led inflation, driven by rising incomes. Real incomes going up resulted in declining per capita consumption of cereals and sugar (which basically deliver calories) alongside growing demand for foods incorporating proteins (milk, pulses, egg, fish and meat) and micronutrients (fruits & vegetables). This dietary diversification also had a bearing on inflation. Between 2004-05 and 2012-13, the cumulative rise in the wholesale price index was 93.1% for sugar, 99.9% for cereals and 48.1% for edible oils; and to 108.1% for milk, 110.1% for vegetables, 141.3% for pulses and 144.5% for eggs, meat & fish.

Now and then

The current food inflation, by contrast, is idiosyncratic and supply shock-driven. And it is more "calorie" than "protein" price inflation, a term coined by the former Reserve Bank of India deputy governor Subir Gokam.

Since August 2020, when global demand started returning with the gradual lifting of lockdowns, the FAO's vegetable oil, cereal and sugar price indices have soared 141%, 71% and 50%, respectively. These exceed the 32% cumulative rise in the meat price index and 44% for dairy over the same period till April 2020.

Moreover, as the table shows, much of this inflation predated the war in Ukraine. Ukraine had drought in 2020-21, while Russia, in December 2020, announced export curbs on wheat, corn, barley, rye, sunflower and rapeseed for quelling domestic inflation. These — coupled with shortages of migrant workers in Malaysia's oil palm plantations — drove up global prices of edible oils and cereals.

The war only worsened things — by squeezing supplies from the two countries having a substantial share of the world's wheat, corn, barley and sunflower oil exports. Also, Indonesia's restrictions on palm oil shipments to contain local inflation, and surging petroleum crude prices made it all the more attractive to divert sugar, corn, palm and soyabean oil for bio-fuel production.

There has been no such major inflation in proteins. The FAO's dairy and meat prices indices have gone up, but that has had more to do with increased cost of feed ingredients.

Impact on India

The transmission of the higher global calorie inflation to prices in India has been limited largely to vegetable fats. From the chart, it can be seen that retail edible oil inflation ruled at 20-35% levels through 2021, well before the surge in the overall consumer food price index from January. Interestingly, inflation in the other two calorie food commodities — cereals and sugar — has been relatively muted.

The main reason for no imported inflation, at least until recently, in cereals and sugar is because of the country being a surplus producer of both. India's exports of cereals and sugar were valued at a record $12.9 billion and $4.6 billion respectively in 2021-22. Also, despite some 32.3 million tonnes (mt) of cereals being shipped out, overflowing stocks in government godowns still enabled an unprecedented 105.6 mt of grain to be sold through the public distribution system.

There has been a pick-up in cereal inflation of late. But that, basically in wheat, has come on the back of crop yield loss caused by the sudden heat wave. In other words, not imported. The transmission mechanism here has worked the other way round: With lower domestic production and depleting stocks prompting the Centre to ban wheat exports from India, global prices have firmed up — translating into higher inflation for importing countries.

What about proteins?

All-India modal or most-quoted retail prices of dals (split pulses) are lower now than a year ago. That includes chana (Rs 70 versus Rs 75/kg), tur/arhar (Rs 97.5 versus Rs 110), urad (Rs 97 versus Rs 105) and moong (Rs 98.5 versus Rs 105). The only exception is masoor, whose modal price of Rs 90/kg is higher than the Rs 85 at this time last year, according to Department of Consumer Affairs data.

The crash in international skim milk powder and butter fat prices has forced some correction in the domestic market as well. One can expect a similar easing of egg and meat prices. The heat subsiding should help reduce growing time and mortality of poultry birds.

On the whole, while there has been a recovery of demand from the reopening of hotels and other lockdown restrictions going, it is unlikely to trigger any "protein inflation". The demand-pull from rising incomes isn't strong enough this time round.

There is not much inflation in onion, potato and watermelons, cucumber, pumpkin, okra/ladies finger, gourds and other vegetables. Tomato prices are high, but not abnormally so.

Summing up

Food inflation resulting from war, drought, unseasonal rains and heat waves is different from structural demand-pull factors. The inflation now is not only more of the former, but also in foods mainly delivering calories rather than proteins, vitamins and minerals. That, to some extent, makes it worse than the previous inflation, which, in Gokam's words, was "an inevitable consequence of rising affluence".

While high prices would also induce supply response from farmers, a lot hinges on the monsoon. Last year's monsoon was "normal" overall, but marked by an extended dry spell in July and then too much rain from late-August, followed by heavy unseasonal showers in December-January. One has to see how normal the "normal" forecast by the India Meteorological Department turns out to be.

Meanwhile, the good news is the Centre, on Saturday, cutting the excise duty on diesel by Rs 6/litre and many states also announcing reductions. That should have a further salutary effect on food inflation in the coming days.

Ram Mohan Roy's legacy and its renewed relevance, 250 years on

PAROMITA CHAKRABARTI
NEW DELHI, MAY 22

ONE OF the most influential social and religious reformers of the 19th century, Ram Mohan Roy, born on May 22, 1772, in what was then Bengal Presidency's Radhanagar in Hooghly district, would have turned 250 on Sunday. Amid changing social and religious circumstances in India, Roy's work in the spheres of women's emancipation, modernising education and seeking changes to religious orthodoxy finds new relevance.

Early life

Born into a prosperous Brahmin family, Ram Mohan Roy grew up when orthodox caste practices such as child marriage, polygamy and dowry were prevalent among the higher castes. He was himself married more than once in his childhood. The family's affluence also made the best in education accessible to him. Roy knew Bengali and Persian, but also Arabic, Sanskrit, and later, English. His exposure to the literature and culture of these languages bred in him a scepticism towards religious dogmas and social strictures. In particular, he chafed at practices such as Sati; his own sister-in-law had been a victim of Sati after his elder brother's death.

This was a time when the Mughals were waning and the East India Company was on the ascendancy in Bengal. Roy spent considerable time studying the Vedas and the Upanishads, but also religious texts of Islam and Christianity. He was intrigued by the Unitarian faction of Christianity and drawn by the precepts of monotheism. He wrote extensively on matters of theology, polity and human rights, and translated Sanskrit texts into Bengali, making them accessible.

"Ram Mohan did not quite make a distinction between the religious and the secular. He believed religion to be the site of all fundamental changes. What he fought was not religion but what he believed to be its perversion... (Rabindranath) Tagore called him a 'Bharatpathik' by which he meant to say that Ram Mohan combined in his person the underlying spirit of Indic civilisation, its spirit of pluralism, tolerance and a cosmic respect for all forms of life," said historian Amiya P Sen, Sivadani Fellow at the Oxford Centre for Hindu Studies, and author of Rammohun Roy: A Critical Biography (2012).

First among liberals

Even though British consolidation of power was still at a nascent stage at the time, Roy could sense that change was afoot. Confident about the strength of his heritage and open to imbibing from other cultures, Roy was among India's first liberals. In the introduction to his biography, Sen writes, "He was simultaneously interested in religion, politics, law and jurisprudence, commerce and agrarian enterprise, Constitutions and civic rights, the unjust treatment of women and the appalling condition of the Indian poor... And he studied matters not in the abstract or in academic solitude but with the practical objective of securing human happiness and freedom. That made him a modern man."

In 1814, he started the Atmiya Sabha (Society of Friends), to nurture philosophical discussions on the idea of monotheism in Vedanta and to campaign against idolatry, casteism, child marriage and other social ills. The Atmiya Sabha would make way for the Brahmo Sabha in 1828, set up with Debendranath Tagore, Rabindranath Tagore's father.

Sati abolition, other reforms

During his 15 years in Calcutta, Roy became a prominent public intellectual. He campaigned for the modernisation of education, in particular the introduction of a Western curriculum, and started several educational institutions. In 1817, he collaborated with Scottish philanthropist David Hare to set up the Hindu College (now, Presidency University). The Anglo-Hindu School followed in 1822 and, in 1830, he assisted Alexander Duff in setting up the General Assembly's Institution (later Scottish Church College).

His relentless advocacy alongside contemporaries such as Ishwar Chandra Vidyasagar finally led to the abolition of Sati under the governor-generalship of William Bentinck in 1829. Roy argued for the property rights of women, and petitioned the British for freedom of the press (in 1829 and 1830).

His Brahmo Sabha, which later became the Brahmo Samaj, evolved as a reaction against the upper-caste stranglehold on social customs. During the Bengal Renaissance, it ushered in social changes and birthed the Brahmo religion, a reformed spiritual Hinduism that believes in monotheism and the uniformity of all men, irrespective of caste, class or creed.

Non-conformism brought its share of infamy. Roy, who was given the title of Raja by the Mughal emperor Akbar II, and who was among the first Indians to gain recognition in the UK and in America for his radical thoughts, was also often attacked by his own countrymen who felt threatened by his reformist agenda, and by British reformers and functionaries whose views differed from his.

POLICY WATCH EXTERNAL DEBT

India has space to attract $90 bn debt flows: RBI

GEORGE MATHEW
MUMBAI, MAY 22

INDIA HAS the space to attract debt flows of another $90 billion (around Rs 693,000 crore), given the threshold level of the country's external debt, says a Reserve Bank of India study.

"The empirical results suggest that as against India's current external debt to GDP ratio of 20 per cent, the estimated threshold level is higher in the range between 23 per cent and 24 per cent of GDP, indicating space for attracting more debt flows of the order of $90 billion," says the RBI study on 'Growth maximising external debt of India'. Given the risk of amplifying external vulnerabilities because of higher exposure to external debt, the estimated space may be used carefully balancing the objective of growth and macro-stability, it said.

India's debt market is being progressively opened up to the foreign capital in a careful and calibrated manner.

According to estimates, India's external debt stood at $614.9 billion as at end-December 2022. Commercial borrowings (CBs) at $226.4 billion, NRI deposits at $141.9 billion and short-term trade credit at $110.5 billion, together account for about 78 per cent of the total external debt. The external debt to GDP ratio as at end-December 2021 was 20.0 per cent.

The total external debt, which fell below the pre-crisis levels in the immediate aftermath of the pandemic lockdown, crossed the pre-pandemic levels as at end-December 2020 and consolidated further helped by NRI deposits crossing pre-pandemic levels as at end-September 2021 and short-term trade credit crossing the pre-pandemic levels as at end-December 2021, the RBI said.

In contrast, India's external debt remained relatively immune to the global finan-

NRI deposits down $2.87 bn

Mumbai: Outstanding non-resident Indian (NRI) deposits in India fell by $2.875 billion to $139,020 billion in the financial year ended March 2022 as against $141.895 billion a year ago, according to the latest RBI data.

India attracted only $3.23 billion NRI deposits in FY22 as against $7.36 billion a year ago. Non-resident external rupee account (NR(E)RA) witnessed a growth of $3.33 billion in FY22 as against $8.84 billion last year. FCNR (B) deposits declined by $3.55 billion in FY22. ENS

cial crisis (GFC) reflecting the resilience of commercial borrowings, the most growth-sensitive and the largest component of India's external debt. "The resilience of commercial borrowings in the wake of the GFC stemmed largely from the relatively muted impact of GFC on growth in sharp contrast to that during GLD," the study said.

At present, a rule-based dynamic limit for outstanding stock of ECBs at 6.5 per cent of GDP is in place. As India aims at higher, sustainable and inclusive growth, the need for attracting larger external debt flows within the estimated threshold may be assessed along with other external vulnerability parameters so that the growth objective is pursued while preserving overall macro-stability, the RBI study said.

External debt, by supplementing domestic savings, can help countries grow faster. But a large stock of external debt can potentially create vulnerabilities and dent growth prospects. Since the onset of the pandemic, many countries have expanded public spending to support the recovery, which has led to a build-up of their external debt, the IMF says.

FOCUS ON DISCLOSURES, COMPLIANCES FOR NEW-AGE COS

Front-running: Sebi likely to soon initiate stringent action

SANDEEP SINGH
MUMBAI, MAY 22

CONCERNED OVER the recent case of front-running in the mutual fund industry and possibility of similar practices happening, the Securities and Exchange Board of India (Sebi) is likely to take stringent action, which may include action against top officials of the fund house. A source close to the development said Sebi is closely monitoring the situation and its actions may follow soon.

On May 19, Axis Mutual Fund terminated its chief dealer Viresh Joshi, who was under investigation for irregularities, including front-running the AMC's transactions. A couple of days later, it sacked its second fund manager Deepak Agrawal on similar charges. The fund house had suspended the two fund managers on May 6, after irregularities running into several crores at the fund house came under the scanner of the market regulator.

Front-running involves purchasing a stock based on advance non-public information regarding an expected large transaction that will affect the share price of a company. When MFs purchase in huge quantities, it leads to rise in share price, resulting into illegitimate gains for the front runners.

Sebi has investigated and penalised several brokers, fund houses and fund managers in the past for front-running. In June 2021, it passed an order against three dealers of Reliance Securities for front-running the trades of an alternative investment fund. In the HDFC MF front-running case, Sebi passed several orders, over the last few years, including disgorgement of illegal gains and penalty on several entities including the former equity dealer of HDFC MF for numerous instances of front running in 2006 and 2007.

Stating that investor protection is one the key roles of the regulator, the source added that Sebi is looking at various aspects of primary and secondary market in order to safeguard retail investors, who have been entering the markets in large numbers over the last two years. The number of investor accounts with CDSL and NSDL has jumped from 4.06 crore in March 2020 to 9.2 crore at the end of April 2022.

While on the primary market front, the regulator is keen on enhancing disclosure and compliance requirement for listing of new-age technology companies, for the secondary market participants, it is keen on enhancing awareness around responsible investing as lot of new customers are going for speculative trading.

"What we worry about is the increasing amount of trading in the segment. As margins have increased for futures, they are shifting to options and largely in index options. It is pure trading... People need to be educated and made aware of the risks of these trades and so there is a thinking that it might be the right time for the broking community to come out with campaigns like responsible trading," said the source.

As concerns have been growing around valuations being commanded by new-age loss-making technology companies when they come out with their public issues, the regulator may be of the view that while it may leave the price determination with the markets, it may introduce disclosures that may take away liberty of the company management and merchant bankers from commanding unreasonable valuations.

The source said that the companies will have to disclose the change in financially quantifiable metrics that have resulted in increase in valuation and if there is no change in such metrics, then they will have to disclose upfront that there has been no change in the financial metrics but the valuation has gone up by 'x' times. So, they will have to disclose reasons for the increase in valuation since the last funding round.

The source added that there was a thinking in the past that if the regulator had brought stringent regulations at the time of permitting loss-making new age technology companies to raise funds through public issues, it would have attracted lot of criticism. But now, with some not-so-happy experiences across several listings, additional regulations and compliances can be brought in and there is call for it, too.

"Sometimes you need to buy the time. And after what has happened with a couple of issues the regulator thinks that they can bring in the reform as people sometimes need to understand the need for reform and now everyone is aware of the issue and they feel that changes are needed," the source said.

The regulator is also looking at adding more disclosures for such companies.

Among some other key changes, the regulator is also learnt to be closely monitoring the appointment of chief financial officers (CFO) by several of these companies and may bring in a new compliance requirement with respect to CFO appointment for companies coming with public offering.

"It has been noticed that in several cases the CFOs are appointed few days before the issue and he/she signs up on all the financial details. Sebi is considering to make it mandatory for companies to appoint the CFO atleast 2-3 quarter before the IPO and deliberations are going on this particular issue as of now," the source said.

AANCHAL MAGAZINE
& KARUNJIT SINGH

NEW DELHI, MAY 22

PROVIDING DETAILS of the cut in excise duty on fuels, Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman on Sunday said the excise duty cut of Rs 8/litre on petrol and Rs 6/litre on diesel has entirely been made in Road & Infrastructure Cess (RIC), which is not shared with states and, hence, the burden lies with Centre. The duty cut, effective Sunday, has a revenue implication of Rs 1 lakh crore annually for the Centre, which, coupled with the earlier duty cut of November 2021, will result in a total revenue loss of Rs 2.2 lakh crore a year, she said.

"Basic ED which is shareable with states has not been touched. Therefore, the entire burden of these two duty cuts (made in Nov. 21 and yesterday) is borne by the Centre. The duty reduction made yesterday has an implication of Rs 1,00,000 cr a year for Centre. The duty reduction made in November '21 has an implication of Rs 1,20,000 cr a year for Centre. Total revenue implication to Centre, on these two duty cuts is thus Rs 2,20,000 cr a year," she tweeted.

Opposition leaders had said that this round of excise duty cut would reduce the share of states in central taxes.

The excise duty reduction on petrol and diesel effective Sunday has entirely been made in RIC and this was the case even in November 2021 when tax on petrol was cut by Rs 5 and that on diesel by Rs 10, she said.

"Basic Excise Duty (BED), Special Additional Excise duty (SAED), Road & Infrastructure Cess (RIC) and Agriculture & Infrastructure Development Cess (AIDC) together constitute Excise Duty on petrol and diesel. Basic ED is shareable with states. SAED, RIC & AIDC are non-shareable," she said.

Total Central tax on petrol before this duty cut was Rs 27.9 per litre, while basic excise duty was only Rs 1.4 a litre. Of Rs 21.80 a litre, total Central tax on diesel, basic excise duty was Rs 1.80. Special additional excise duty of Rs 11 a litre on petrol and Rs 8 per litre on diesel was levied. A Rs 2.50 a litre agriculture infrastructure and development cess (AIDC) was levied on petrol and Rs 4 per litre on diesel. Petrol had Rs 13 a litre additional excise duty in form of RIC and Rs 8 of such tax was levied on per litre of diesel, which has been cut now.

As per the tax sharing formula, 41 per cent of taxes collected by the Centre is shared

EXPLAINED How it breaks up

BEFORE THIS round of duty cut, total central tax on petrol was Rs 27.90 per litre and Rs 21.80 a litre on diesel. Basic excise duty, which is shared with states, was only Rs 1.40 a litre on petrol and Rs 1.80 a litre on diesel. Special additional excise duty and agriculture infrastructure and development cess, accounted for Rs 13.5 a litre on petrol and Rs 12 per litre on diesel, not forming a part of the shareable pool with states but have been reduced now by the Centre.

with states, while cess collections accrue to the Centre. Cess constitutes the majority of the tax on petrol and diesel.

Before this round of excise duty cut, Central and state taxes accounted for about 43 per cent and 37 per cent of the retail price of petrol and diesel, respectively, in Delhi. States apply an ad valorem VAT or sales tax on the base price, freight charges, excise duty and dealer commission on petrol and diesel. Therefore, state collections also increase/decrease as the Centre hikes/reduces excise duties.

Former Finance Minister and Congress leader P Chidambaram had on Saturday evening stated that the cut in excise duty was "equal to rob Peter more & pay Peter less!" "FM's exhortation to States is meaningless. When she cuts Central Excise by one rupee, 41 per cent of that rupee belongs to the States," he had stated. On Sunday, he tweeted stating that contrary to what he said on Saturday "the entire burden of the reduction falls on the Centre. To that extent, I stand corrected. The states are getting very little by way of share of duties on Petrol and Diesel. Their revenue is from VAT on Petrol and Diesel."

"The Union Government's levies on petrol have gone up substantially in the past 7 years. Though the revenue to the Union Government has increased manifold, there has not been a matching increase in the revenues to states. This is because the Union Government has increased the cess and surcharge on petrol and diesel while reducing the basic excise duty that is shareable with the states," Tamil Nadu Finance Minister Palanivel Thiaga Rajan said.

Price hikes help India Inc fight margin pressure

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU
MUMBAI, MAY 22

DESPITE THE inflation in inputs, India Inc seems to have managed to protect its margins reasonably well by passing on the costs to consumers. Not all companies have been able to take price hikes to offset the entire increase in costs, but aggregate numbers for Q4FY22 show they have covered some ground.

For a universe of 927 companies (excluding banks and financials), operating profit margins contracted by only 50 basis points year-on-year to 16.37 per cent, in the three months to March. Consequently, the operating profit went up by a good 20 per cent y-o-y and the net profits by a handsome 34 per cent.

Management commentary suggests companies plan to either raise prices further or offer smaller volumes for the same price to protect margins. By a rough reckoning, prices have been raised by 5-15 per cent for consumer staples, 10-12 per cent for durables, around 10 per cent for automobiles, 5-15 per cent for residential properties and around 5-8 per cent at fast food eateries. By passing on the cost increases, companies have managed to grow their top lines despite, in many cases, selling smaller volumes. For the sample of 927 firms, net sales in Q4FY22 rose 24.2 per cent y-o-y.

Hindustan Unilever, for instance, has upped prices by about 10 per cent, enabling it to report a revenue growth of 11 per cent y-o-y in Q4FY22 despite volumes staying flat. Despite a 9 per cent y-o-y drop in volumes, Eicher Motors posted a revenue growth of 9 per cent y-o-y, thanks to a 21 per cent y-o-y increase in the average selling prices (ASPs).

While profitability may have been under some pressure, the good news is that businesses that were hit by the pandemic are bouncing back with the economy opening up. AB Fashion and Retail, for instance, reported better-than expected Q4FY22 revenue growth of 25 per cent y-o-y as the distributor channel recovered. FE

Thiem out of sync, out of French Open

ASSOCIATED PRESS
PARIS, MAY 22

IT ALL used to come so easily for Dominic Thiem on a tennis court _ his powerful forehand, his elegant backhand, his hit-which-shot-when calculations, all fine-tuned to the point of a title at the U.S. Open and three other Grand Slam final appearances, including two at Roland Garros.

Nowadays, even though the pain from last year's torn tendon in his right wrist is no longer there, the strokes and, most disconcertingly, the wherewithal, are not what they once were, to the extent that his first-round exit at the French Open on Sunday was his 10th consecutive loss. The situation has become dire enough that Thiem, a 28-year-old Austrian once ranked No. 3 but now No. 194, acknowledged after being beaten 6-3, 6-2, 6-4 by Hugo Delien that perhaps it's time for him to head to the lower-level Challenger Tour to get a win and gain some confidence.

After lamenting his forehand, his backhand and a too-low first-serve percentage, Thiem got to the bigger issue: "Sometimes, I do really stupid decisions during the rally, drop shots or down-the-line (groundstrokes) at the wrong moment. (In) match match situations, I'm not playing well. ... Then, for example, there was one game today where I did four or five forehand return mistakes in a row, where I'm thinking, 'What the heck is happening?'" His quick departure was not the only noteworthy development on a cloudy, occasionally drizzly Day 1 at the year's second major tennis tournament, which welcomed back pre-pandemic sights and sounds of full attendance and no masks in the stands.

Given Thiem's troubles _ sure, he was the runner-up to Rafael Nadal in Paris in 2018 and 2019, and to Novak Djokovic at the Australian Open in 2020, but his last victory came in May 2021 _ there were other results that probably were more surprising.

Chiefly in that category would be No. 6 seed Ons Jabeur's 3-6, 7-6 (4), 7-5 loss to 56th-ranked Magda Linette of Poland.

Jabeur, a Tunisian who is the first Arab woman to win a WTA title and first to reach a Grand Slam quarterfinal, acknowledged: "I was expecting myself to go far in this tournament." As were others. That's because Jabeur began the day with a tour-leading 17 wins on clay this season, including taking the title at the Madrid Open and reaching the final of the Italian Open.

Another top-10 women's seed _ and the 2016 champion at the place _ was sent home when Garbine Muguruza was defeated 2-6, 6-3, 6-4 by 46th-ranked Kaia Kanepi of Estonia. Muguruza beat Serena Williams in the final at Roland Garros six years ago and Venus Williams in the final at Wimbledon in 2017, but she now has lost her opening match in Paris two straight years.

Patel hopes FIFA doesn't ban India after SC intervention

MIHIR VASAVDA
MAY 22

FEARING A FIFA ban, which could grind most activities to a halt, former All India Football Federation (AIFF) president Praful Patel said he will talk to FIFA president Gianni Infantino and secretary-general Fatma Samoura to request them not to take such strong action. Patel also said he'll speak with the Supreme Court-appointed Committee of Administrators (CoA) and ask them to expedite the election process, underlining that 'dragging this issue can be very disastrous' for Indian football.

On Wednesday, due to a logjam in finalising AIFF's constitution to hold elections, the Supreme Court formed a three-member CoA to look after the day-to-day affairs of the federation, thus bringing an unceremonious end to Patel's stint as president. The Supreme Court also empowered the CoA - comprising Justice Anil Dave, ex-Chief Election Commissioner SY Quraishi and former India captain Bhaskar Ganguly - 'to take decisions on holding of tournaments, selection of players and all other matters necessary for the proper governance of the federation.'

Patel said the AIFF lawyers had pointed out to the court that this could amount to third-party interference and thus violate FIFA's statutes, leading to India's suspension. "All possible scenarios were pointed out and after that, it was up to the honourable court to decide," Patel, whose term officially ended in December 2020, said. "There was a phone call from FIFA on Friday asking for the order of the Supreme Court as they wanted to study that."

As per FIFA statutes, its Congress can suspend a member association at the request of the Council. However, the all-powerful FIFA Council can also temporarily suspend an association with immediate effect without a vote in the Congress.

The impact of FIFA's suspension could be 'drastic', Patel said. To start with, it could lead to India being thrown out of the Asian Cup qualifiers, which are scheduled to begin in Kolkata on June 8. The country could also lose the hosting rights of the Under-17 Women's World Cup, set to take place in October this year, Indian clubs will be barred from competing in continental tournaments and additionally, they will also be unable to sign foreign players other than those already on their rosters.

As per the court order, the CoA has been given time until July 15 to finalise the draft of the constitution before the next hearing takes place on July 21. The CoA has hinted that elections will be held within two or three months from the day the court approves the new constitution.

Former AIFF head Praful Patel says he will talk to the world body, and wants CoA to expedite election process

'Don't underestimate FIFA's power'

Patel said he will use his position as a Council member to request his colleagues to give the country time till July-end to complete the election process. "I don't want to pre-judge. FIFA is like a government, it's systems-driven. You have seen how FIFA reacts very strongly. They have suspended major football countries," Patel said, adding that he got an impression that 'AFC and FIFA legal teams have offered their services to quickly find a solution.' "I will do my best to tell them that if the court allows early elections, do not punish Indian football, but that can only be in the form of a request. I will do my best to talk to them in writing and in person."

The Rajya Sabha member added: "Dragging this issue can be very disastrous. If it's expeditiously dealt with, it'll be the best for Indian football. In the BCCI, we saw years and years of the CoA running the sport. For the ICC, if India doesn't play, there's no cricket in the world. In football, if India doesn't play, no one will miss it. I can't tell the courts what to do, but my suggestion is, please do not underestimate FIFA's strength to take radical decisions."

Patel looked back at his decade-plus long stint as the head of Indian football, which has been riddled with controversies, without any regrets and 'with a sense of satisfaction that one has laid the foundation for many more years to come.'

During his tenure, the AIFF was accused of succumbing to pressure from its commercial rights holders, IMG-Reliance (now Reliance Sports), on many football-related issues. And while the federation's dependence on corporate sponsors' money increased, its government grant got slashed due to poor performance of the national team.

Patel insisted that the government support for football has always been 'very minimal' and lashed out at their policies. "They say 'you win a medal and we'll give you more money'. This is not the right approach. How can you say that? It's a very ridiculous argument," Patel said.

'Challenge to balance interests'

The career politician accepted it was a 'challenge' to balance the interests of corporates who pour in money, but said he 'never let anybody dictate the way AIFF does its duty.' "Nobody is doing charity. They give us money and get rights for lots of things," Patel said.

He cited the example of the impending merger of the Indian Super League and I-League, which has been one of the prickliest issues of his tenure.

"There was so much resistance from our partners (to merge the two leagues). But we could not let Indian football be driven by a closed league that would destroy it in the future. I can say with a sense of pride that I did push for it. I said, 'nothing doing, unless this issue is resolved, there is no future for Indian football'."

From next season onwards, the winners of the I-League will get promoted to the ISL, and from the 2024-25 season, a promotion-relegation system will be introduced in the top division. "The next people (in charge of AIFF) also will face that challenge. Integrating ISL with I-League will be a major challenge," he said, guaranteeing that there will be no going back on the merger promises already made.

'My position in politics would've helped AIFF than hurt them'

Patel said juggling issues like these showed that heading a federation required people with all kinds of skill-sets, going against the argument that former players should be elected to the top posts. Last month, the Madras High Court observed that only sportspersons, and not politicians, should be office-bearers of sports federations.

Patel said a democratic process should be followed to elect office-bearers, and everyone should be allowed to be a part of it. "Administration of football has nothing to do with just understanding the game. I understand the game as well but running the federation is not playing the game. The leader of the federation has to be administering the game, and balance various interests," he said. "I don't think it is right to say politicians cannot perform a job. My position in politics would have helped the AIFF on more occasions than hurt them."

ASIA CUP

Sardar's coaching debut talking point as India face Pak

MIHIR VASAVDA
MAY 22

BIRENDRA LAKRA and SV Sunil smiled sheepishly when asked how they felt playing in a team coached by former teammate and captain Sardar Singh. "It's not weird under him. He's a strict disciplinarian," Sunil said. Lakra chipped in: "He has been a role model. He's always been known for his fitness and discipline."

It's come full circle for the trio that formed the core of the team when India clinched the Asia Cup at the previous edition in 2017. Then, after heading in different directions, they are reunited.

Sunil, playing his fourth Asia Cup, a testimony to his longevity, was on a sabbatical when he was summoned to join the training camp for the Commonwealth Games. Lakra was enjoying his retirement, juggling time between family and office work, when he, too, got the call-up. Sardar, who'd been earning his coaching credentials, had been waiting for this opportunity.

The Asia Cup, starting in Jakarta on Monday, might not be of huge significance for the defending champions. The teams that reach the semifinals of the tournament will make it to January's World Cup, but India, being hosts, do not have to worry about qualification. Yet, when they take the field against Pakistan in their opening match, there'll be some fascinating storylines to follow. Sardar's debut in the dugout - he'll be working alongside junior team coach BJ Kariappa - will be one of them.

The other important thread to follow during the tournament will be the return of Simranjeet Singh. The forward last played in India's bronze medal playoff at the Tokyo Olympics against Germany, where he scored two goals that had a decisive role in the outcome of the match.

Since then, he'd been nursing an injury and missed all Pro League matches as well as the Asian Champions Trophy.

New faces

Simranjeet's comeback, coupled with the return of Sunil and Lakra, will be crucial for India given that the rest of the team has little-to-no senior international experience. Ten players, who were all part of last year's junior World Cup, will make their senior team debut on Monday. This includes the likes of drag-flicker Yashdeep Siwach, defenders Abhishek Lakra and Manjeet, midfielder Vishnukant Singh and forward Uttam Singh. Midfielders Mareeswaren Sakthivel and Sheshe Gowda BM, and forwards Abharan Sudev, Pawan Rajbhar and S Karthi will also make their first India appearances on Monday. The youngsters will immediately be thrown at the deep end when they open their campaign against Pakistan, who too have travelled with a young squad as part of their rebuilding process.

"We'll need to motivate them, guide them. If we get affected by the excitement and the pressure of playing Pakistan, the younger players too will come under pressure," Sunil said.

This young bunch, led by two veterans and coached by a former India captain, was selected for this tournament as preparation for July-August's Commonwealth Games. With an eye on the Asian Games, India had decided to send their second-string squad to Birmingham. To give the hastily-assembled group some match practice, Hockey India chose to send the group for the Asia Cup, where not a lot is at stake from an Indian point of view.

Now with the Asian Games postponed, it's unclear whether the main playing group coached by Graham Reid will take part at the CWG or the team currently in Jakarta.

The players aren't fretting over it. "I am at a stage of my career where I approach each tournament as if it's my last," Sunil said. "So, I hope to win this one, and not worry about what's in store in the future."

DAY TODAY

BY PETER VIDAL

ARIES (Mar 21 - Apr 20)

May I advise you to keep a close watch on all financial transactions? Today's epic planetary influences will have an amazing range of effects, but the impact on your financial, emotional and material security seems to be greatest. If competing for a prize, go for broke.

TAURUS (Apr 21 - May 21)

Tomorrow's challenging lunar pattern is already casting its shadow over your affairs in the nicest possible way. This will be an optimum weekend for creative expression, cultural events, romantic encounters and happy relationships with children.

GEMINI (May 22 - June 21)

You may imagine that you know what is going on, but you are probably mistaken. Rarely have you been so likely to pick up the wrong end of the stick. Please take proper advice in all legal, foreign and travel matters. After all, if you're properly prepared, then you'll be one step ahead of the game.

CANCER (June 22 - July 23)

Jupiter and Venus are as benevolent a pair of planets as you could wish to have watching over you. Generosity on your part will win friends and impress people, protecting you in the present and gaining you allies for the future: give now to receive later.

LEO (July 24 - Aug 23)

With so much planetary activity taking place today, chiefly a stunning Sun-Moon angle, you'd do very well to take centre stage. Watch out for flying missiles, though, and duck if anything comes in your direction. Emotionally, by the way, family relationships take first place.

VIRGO (Aug 24 - Sep 23)

I am sure that you have been put out, pushed around and generally had your interests ignored, but then that's all part of life's rich tapestry. This is no time to complain about the world being unfair. You'll just have to live with it like everyone else.

LIBRA (Sep 24 - Oct 23)

Recent unexpected developments at work have not undermined your confidence or commitment. Far from it. If your professional or worldly ambitions have been dented, I suspect that the real cause lies elsewhere. An intimate relationship could be proving costly, but a generous gesture will be worth it.

SCORPIO (Oct 24 - Nov 23)

Today's lunar alignments are about the most intriguing that there have been for a long time. The news will be exciting, even if you are enjoying placid times. It's doubly significant for all new relationships, so go forward with hope in your heart.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 24 - Dec 22)

All the extraordinary planetary activity now taking place must be harnessed and used to channel your noble and selfless instincts. You have a clear choice whether to go all out for personal interest or to realise that material security is, in the grand scheme of things, purely temporary.

CAPRICORN (Dec 23 - Jan 20)

It's a day of major planetary configurations, but whether you are directly involved in today's dramatic events, or merely a passive observer is a moot point. I take the view that the latter is more likely. That way you can put your feet up while partners pick up the pieces.

AQUARIUS (Jan 21 - Feb 19)

Today's lunar patterns are among the most striking to hit your sign for a good few months. If you're not knocked slightly off course there'll be something wrong, for it means that you're not directly in tune with your stars. After all, nobody promised it would be easy.

PISCES (Feb 20 - Mar 20)

A helpful aspect between the Sun and Jupiter is only one of a series of benevolent planetary alignments which is causing you to think again. There'll probably be a major mystery to solve. The answers will come next month, but you might not get the full picture for another three months.

Man City eclipse rivals United to become EPL’s dominant force

SHASHANK NAIR
MAY 22

JUST DAYS before Manchester City won their fourth league title in five years, Pep Guardiola compared his team’s consistency in winning the Premier League to Alex Ferguson’s golden era when he achieved the same level of dominance. Perhaps, it was a statement designed to rub salt into the wounds of their neighbours.

On Sunday, Guardiola and City won the title in a dramatic finale. City came back from 0-2 down to beat Aston Villa 3-2 with Liverpool breathing down their necks.

When a cash-strapped City was bought by Sheikh Mansour, their initial days of playing catch-up to an English football dynasty prompted a ‘money can’t buy everything’ admonition. Yet City stuck to their guns, stressing that their project had nothing to do with United.

City’s 2011-12 title confirmed that the threat was real. Ferguson came back next season to win the Premier League, but the writing was on the wall.

In 2012, City hired Ferran Soriano and Txiki Begiristain – the architects of Barcelona’s famed success in the late 2000s and early 2010s. The owners of City Football Group then opened a £200m football campus – one that left behind Manchester United’s famed youth facilities in the rear-view mirror by some margin.

Just as City continued to lay the red carpet for one of the greatest managers football has seen, United embarked on life after Ferguson and club CEO David Gill. City waited while Guardiola took over Bayern Munich. And in 2016, they finally had their target.

During this time, and in the years to come, City flouted financial rules, unlike any club before them with inflated sponsorship deals. When they were taken to task by UEFA for breaking Financial Fair Play rules, the Court of Arbitration for Sport provided the Citizens with get-out-of-jail cards. Money talked and titles started to flow.

Meanwhile, at the other end of town, a club geared towards proactively searching for the best deals in the market was now trying to break transfer records in a desperate attempt to close the gap. In three seasons at United, Jose Mourinho, Guardiola’s eternal rival, had a net transfer spend of just under 315 million pounds. The money resulted in Paul Pogba, Romelu Lukaku and Zlatan Ibrahimovic signing for the Red Devils.

While rebuilds and managerial changes were taking place at United, City’s golden period under Guardiola began in 2017. Their closest challenge has come from Jurgen Klopp’s Liverpool, who managed to win their first-ever Premier League title, spending far less, but wisely. The Champions League is the only crown that evades the Citizens but signing a striker like Erling Braut Haaland could wipe away that blemish as well.

How City nearly blew up 14-point cushion & became champions on the final day

In mid-January, Manchester City were coasting to another EPL title. Guardiola’s side had opened up a 14-point gap over Liverpool. However, Liverpool’s incredible form since the start of 2022, coupled with a few slip-ups by City, helped them trim the lead to just one point by mid-March and take the title race right to the very last day of the season. MANCHESTER CITY won their fourth Premier League title in five years on Sunday but nearly let the trophy slip from their hands, coming back from two goals down to beat Aston Villa with three goals inside an electrifying five minutes late in the second half.

After an afternoon of high nerves, laced with fear of Liverpool pipping them to the title at the post, relieved and jubilant City fans poured on to the field at the final whistle.

Matty Cash put Villa in front in the 37th minute with a fine header from a Lucas Digne cross from the left flank, and the mood in the stadium instantly changed. The edgy mood among the home fans turned to desperation after Philippe Coutinho then doubled the lead for Villa with a goal of pure simplicity. Ollie Watkins headed on from a goal kick by keeper Robin Olsen long, and the former Liverpool midfielder Coutinho produced a brilliant first touch to cut inside and then drilled the ball into the bottom corner. Liverpool were level with Wolves at the time of Coutinho’s goal, but City knew that a goal for Juergen Klopp’s side could now take the title away from them.

But then came the City comeback blitz that sealed the title regardless of events at Anfield. Two substitutes combined for the first, with Ilkay Gundogan heading in a Raheem Sterling cross at the back post in the 76th minute. Half-time substitute Oleksandr Zinchenko, on the left flank, then showed composure to pull back to Rodri, and the Spaniard delivered a pinpoint finish – side-footing into the bottom corner from 20 metres out. The title-winning goal came in the 81st minute when De Bruyne whipped in a low cross to Gundogan, who tapped in from close range, sending the crowd into rapturous delight.

Arsenal hammered Everton 5-1 on Sunday but it was not enough to snatch a Champions League place – and it was the visiting fans who were celebrating at the end after Liverpool missed out on the title.

Arsenal were on top from first to last and led 2-1 at the break through a Gabriel Martinelli strike and an Eddie Nketiah header. Second-half strikes for Cedric Soares, Gabriel Magalhaes and Martin Odegaard were a fair reflection of their dominance. However, Tottenham Hotspur’s 5-0 thrashing of Norwich City ensured they remained fourth, leaving Arsenal in fifth.

The Londoners, who last played in the Champions League in 2016-17 after 19 straight years of qualifying under Arsene Wenger, will have to settle for a place in the Europa League, which itself is something of a success after they began the season with three straight defeats.

Two goals from Dejan Kulusevski for Tottenham and Heung-Min Son, and a Harry Kane header guaranteed Antonio Conte’s side a fourth-place finish and a spot in Europe’s elite club competition for the first time in three seasons.

At full time the home fans gave Arsenal a good send-off after a troubled season but it was the Everton supporters, still giddy from their great escape on Thursday, who were making all the noise.

COUNTY TO COUNTRY

IPL snub turns out to be blessing in disguise as Pujara returns

DEVENDRA PANDEY
MAY 22

GOING UNSOLD in the Indian Premier League auction in February has turned out to be a blessing in disguise for Cheteshwar Pujara. While the IPL was on, Pujara travelled to England for a highly successful county stint with Sussex, which has helped him force his way back into the India Test squad for the deciding Birmingham Test in July.

"You can say that now in hindsight. Had I been picked by an IPL team, there were major chances that I wouldn’t have got any games. I would have just gone (to nets) and practised. Getting match practice and practice in the nets is always different. So when the county thing happened, I just said yes. The major reason I said yes was that I wanted my old rhythm back," Pujara told The Indian Express from Paris, where he is on holiday.

With scores of 6, 201 not out, 109, 12, 203, 16, 170* and 3, Pujara slammed 720 runs for Sussex in five County Championship games at a staggering average of 120 across April and May. The stunning performance raised his hopes of making an India comeback in whites.

"I was positive, there was no doubt about it. The way my county stint went, I was hopeful that I will make a comeback to the Indian team. But when I went to play county cricket, the India comeback was never on my mind; I just wanted to find my rhythm and I knew one big innings would help me find my rhythm back."

Cheteshwar Pujara has scored 720 runs in five County matches for Sussex. File

Pujara is back, but the other veteran batsman who had also been dropped for the home Tests against Sri Lanka in March, Ajinkya Rahane, hasn’t made it back. The fates of the two middle-order stalwarts had been seemingly intertwined for quite a while. Their struggles to post big runs had played out in parallel; they had fought against their fading fortunes with a brave, counter-attacking century partnership in the second innings of the Johannesburg Test against South Africa in January. Nevertheless, time had appeared to run out when the na-

Umran, Arshdeep get maiden call-ups

New Delhi: Umran Malik and Arshdeep Singh, young pacers with vastly contrasting styles, have been given maiden call-ups to the India squad for the five-match home T20I series against South Africa starting June 9.

With speeds often above 150kph, Sunrisers Hyderabad tearaway Umran has been among the leading wicket-takers in the IPL, and the sight of him shattering stumps has captured the nation’s imagination, although he’s gone for runs too. Meanwhile, left-arm Arshdeep has conceded just 7.70 runs an over for Punjab Kings, which is highly creditable considering he is regularly used at the death.

Hardik Pandya and Dinesh Karthik

tional selectors opted to try out fresh talent for the Sri Lanka Tests.

In February, the IPL auction had taken place, where both Pujara and Rahane had put in their names. Pujara would go unsold, and it had seemed even Rahane would, before he was picked up at his base price of Rs 1 crore, the sole bid coming from Kolkata Knight Riders. And that is where, in hindsight, the duo’s fortunes diverged.

By the time Pujara began his county stint against Derbyshire on April 14, Rahane’s IPL season had ground to a halt after only 80 runs at just a run-a-ball strike rate from his first five matches. From their sixth game on April 15, KKR would drop Rahane. And by the time he got his next game, on May 9, Pujara had racked up 720 runs. A 95-Test veteran churning out doubles and daddy tons in the country where the team is set to play a series decider – the timing, weight and significance of Pujara’s runs forced the selectors to bring him back.

For Pujara, the aim at Sussex was to get 150-plus scores. "If you look at my innings in the past, I was getting 80s, 90s, so I never felt

I was out of form even when the big runs were not coming. I was just hoping to get big runs. Big runs means not 100 but 150-plus scores. Because to get back to my usual concentration level, I needed those big scores. And I found that in England. I found my rhythm and as I got those runs, things began to fall in place."

Spending hours batting in the middle is what Pujara is known for, and he said that getting into that mode again also made him more aware of where his fitness levels were. "Once I bat for long, it not only improves concentration, but it also improves fitness. The county stint helped me to see where my fitness stands. One cannot play big innings if one does not have proper fitness. So everything went well," Pujara said.

Mayank dropped

With KL Rahul returning to the Test squad as vice-captain, and Shubman Gill retaining his spot as well, Mayank Agarwal has been left out. Agarwal opened along with skipper Rohit Sharma in the Sri Lanka Tests and had managed underwhelming scores of 33, 4 and 22. Before that, he had had a tough tour of South Africa, where he could average just 22.5 in six innings.

Punjab Kings beat SRH to finish sixth

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
MUMBAI, MAY 22

PUNJAB KINGS ended their campaign on a winning note, crushing an already demoralised Sunrisers Hyderabad by five wickets in an inconsequential final IPL league match here on Sunday. Batting first, Sunrisers Hyderabad managed only 157 for 8 on a good batting track.

But it was never going to be enough as Liam Livingstone made mincemeat of a hapless SRH attack, scoring 49 not out off 22 balls, and also hitting the coveted 1000th six of the tournament.

Shikhar Dhawan (39 off 32 balls) and Jitesh Sharma (19 off 7 balls) also contributed handsomely to the team’s cause as the chase was completed in just 15.1 overs.

Punjab Kings, who haven’t made the play-offs since their final appearance in 2014, finished sixth while the Sunrisers ended their high-spending IPL on eighth in the 10-team competition. For Livingstone, it was all about smashing big sixes once again as he hit five in all, while Dhawan helped himself to two fours and two sixes.

BRIEF SCORES: Sunrisers Hyderabad 157 for 8 in 20 overs (Abhishek Sharma 43; Harpreet Brar 3/26, Nathan Ellis 3/40) lost to Punjab Kings 160 for 5 in 15.1 overs (Liam Livingstone 49 not out; Fazalhaq Farooqi 2/32) by 5 wickets
