Gujarat govt to go against own legal dept in 3 cases filed under SC/ST Act

Says no provision to take back relief as per trial court order

PARIMAL DABHI GANDHINAGAR, MAY 22

THE GUJARAT government has decided to go against the opinion of its legal department and appeal against the judgments of a special trial court in Banaskantha ordering authorities to recover to some Dalits under the SC/ST (Prevention of Atrocities) Act.

The special trial court had, in separate judgments, acquitted the accused in three cases of charges under the Act, and ordered the state authorities to recover the compensation paid to the Dalit complainants or victims. It had directed contempt of court proceedings if its orders were not complied with.

However, the state government has decided to appeal against the same in the Gujarat High Court, overruling an opinion by its legal department, in "public interest". A decision in this regard was taken recently by Social Justice & Empowerment Minister Pradip Parmar, and approved by

KAMALDEEP SINGH BRAR AMRITSAR, MAY 22

AKAL TAKHT Jathedar Giani Harpreet Singh has asked the Shiromani Gurdwara Parbandhak Committee (SGPC) to phase out the harmonium within three years from Harmandir Sahib (Golden Temple) so that the kirtan, or singing of Gurbani, can be accompanied by traditional string instruments

But not everyone is on the

One group of scholars in Most of the hymn groups perform on the harmonium. File

Gurmat Sangeet, the Sikh tradition that has parallels with Indian classical music, support the move and say the harmonium was "imposed" by the British. Then there are those who ask: the world can't go back in time, why should music?

Every day, 15 ragi jathas, or groups of hymn singers, are deployed in turns to perform at Harmandir Sahib for 20 hours in one of the mainly 31 raags that are chosen depending on the time of day and season. According to SGPC officials, only five of these groups have the experience and skills to perform without the harmonium, using only string instruments such as rabab and saranda. Most of the over 20 departments of Gurmat Sangeet in SGPC-runs colleges have started training in string instruments only recently.

Navy info hub could play key role in push to check China overfishing and the initiative is likely to be viewed as a Quad pressure point

The US is also expected to launch a new economic and trade agreement called the Indo-Pacific Economic Framework that is also aimed at containing China's economic clout in the region.

The IFC-IOR was established in 2018 for regional collaboration on maritime security issues including "maritime terrorism", IUUF, piracy, armed robbery on the high seas, and human and contraband trafficking. The Gurgaon-based data fusion centre has information sharing links with 50 nations and multinational/maritime centres, according to its website.

The IFC-IOR "aims at strengthening maritime security in the region and beyond, by building a common coherent maritime situation picture and acting as a maritime security information hub for the region". according to the website.

The centre was established as part of the government's SAGAR (Security and Growth For All in the Region) framework for maritime co-operation in the Indian Ocean region. It hosts international liaison officers from partner countries, which include both India's immediate neighbours in the Indian Ocean region and from further afield, including Australia, France, Japan, Singapore, the UK

The two other data fusion cenres likely to be involved in this initiative are the Singapore Navy's Information Fusion Centre, and the Australia-sponsored Pacific Fusion Centre, set up in 2019 in Port Vila in Vanuatu.

In recent years, IUUF has been seen as growing into a bigger threat to maritime states than international piracy. Studies have said that unregulated and underreported fishing are bigger challenges than illegal fishing, as they deplete stocks and deprive vulnerable regional economies of an important food source.

In a January 2021 paper, the American think tank Brookings called IUUF "a national security concern" that "may indeed become an increasingly important mission for the United States and its security partners and allies around the world, and most certainly those in the Indo-Pacific."

The paper ('National Security Imperative to Tackle IUUF', Michael Sinclair) argued that Chinese fishing practices presented "a truly unique and dire" threat.

"First, China boasts the world's largest fishing fleet. It uses this fleet to devastating effect to meet its population's huge demand for protein. It also provides generous subsidies, which has incentivised the rapid proliferation of large, capable, "distant water" vessels that can harvest staggering amounts of catch in a single voyage, often by dragging the ocean bottom without regard to fish type, age, or quantity limits. When working together in fleets, these vessels are rapacious"

Ahead of the 2020 presidential election in the US, an article in the journal The Fletcher Forum of World Affairs said "the flagrancy and scale of IUU fishing tramples sovereign rights, undermines the rule of law, and robs coastal states of a valuable economic resource.

"In this age of global great power competition, IUU fishing should be seen as an international security threat and should be given appropriate priority by the next administration, irrespective of whether Donald Trump or Joe Biden occupies the Oval Office."

Gujarat to go against its legal dept in three cases filed under SC/ST Act the office of Chief Minister Bhupendra Patel.

The legal department has appointed Advocate General to represent the state's case before the High Court, given the sensitivity of the matter.

Confirming the same, Parmar told The Indian Express: "I decided that we must appeal against the orders of the trial court since there is no provision in the (Atrocity) Act to recover the compensation already paid to a person. The CM was also positive in the matter."

Earlier, the ministry had written to the legal department to file an appeal before the High Court against the trial court orders of 2021, but the latter had decided against the same. In August 2020, The Indian Express had reported the legal department's refusal to appeal against trial court orders of 2019 as well.

Since the Atrocity Act is a Central Act, the Social Justice & Empowerment Ministry also sought guidance from the Union government on the matter. However, sources said, it did not get any response

Sources said Parmar then decided to go ahead with moving an appeal against the trial court orders. As rules mandate that the CM give his consent in such "rare" instances, this was taken

The three cases at the heart of the matter were registered in Banaskantha district. One case relates to a monetary dispute, in which the complainant had charged the accused with making casteist slurs and beating him. In the second case, a Dalit woman had accused an upper caste man of beating up her husband, who worked as a labourer in his field, and abusing him on caste lines. The third case pertained to a fight between two upper caste juveniles and a Dalit Class 12 student. In separate judgments in 2021, a special trial court in Deesa, had acquitted the accused, while observing that the need to check the "menace" of false complaints under the Atrocity Act to get government benefits "cannot be over-

Modi, Biden to discuss war in Ukraine and food security at Quad meeting

The discussion on Ukraine between Biden and Modi "won't be a new conversation". Sullivan said. "It will be a continuation of the conversation they've already had about how we see the picture in Ukraine and the impacts of Russia's brutal invasion of Ukraine on a wider set of concerns in the world, including this food security concern."

The American NSA said the two leaders have already had the opportunity to engage on the issue of Ukraine, and Biden had an extended discussion with Modi at the virtual Quad Summit in March.

"And they also got to speak about it when they had a short video bilateral meeting at the top of the 2+2 when the Indian ministers came Washington," he said.

"So, they'll talk all of that through. And I will leave the specifics of it to what has been a set of private and constructive exchanges, and I expect that this will similarly be constructive and straightforward," Sullivan said.

Modi, who left for Tokyo on Sunday night, said in a pre-departure statement, "I will hold a bilateral meeting with President Joseph Biden, where we will discuss further consolidation of our multifaceted bilateral relations with the US. We will also continue our dialogue on regional developments and contemporary global issues."

Asked about Washington's alancing act between economic cooperation and accountability on human rights issues. Sullivan said: "President Biden has been clear from the beginning of this administration that we'll speak out when we see any form of departure from or deviation from basic principles, fundamental freedoms, human rights, the values of democratic institutions, and the rule of law. That's true for a range of countries. And, you know, we don't single India out."

He said the US had "found a way both to pursue practical cooperation with countries that are democratic and nondemocratic, while at the same time being clear and consistent of where our values lie".

Sources said the Quad leaders - Prime Minister Modi, President Biden, Japan's Prime Minister Fumio Kishida, and the newly-elected Prime Minister of Australia Anthony Albanese – are expected to launch a new maritime initiative aimed at curbing illegal fishing in the Indo-Pacific. This is aimed at countering China. which is responsible for an estimated 80 to 95 per cent of the illegal fishing in the region.

The planned initiative will use satellite technology to interlink maritime surveillance centres in Singapore, India, and other parts of the Indo-Pacific, and prevent Chinese vessels from fishing illegally in the re-

In his statement, Modi said, "In Japan, I will...participate in the second in-person Quad Leaders' Summit, which will provide an opportunity for the leaders of the four Quad countries to review the progress of Ouad initiatives. We will also exchange views about developments in the Indo-Pacific region and global issues of mutual interest.'

Prime Minister Albanese would join the Quad Leaders' Summit for the first time, Modi said. "I look forward to a bilateral meeting with him during which the multifaceted cooperation between India and Australia under the Comprehensive Strategic Partnership, and regional and global issues of mutual interest will be discussed."

With 71 per cent of the vote counted in Australia's federal elections until Sunday night, the Labour Party led by Albanese had won 72 seats, four short of majority in the 151-seat House Representatives, the lower house of parliament, The Sydney Morning Herald reported on its website.

Albanese and his core team, including Foreign Affairs Minister Penny Wong, were scheduled to be sworn into office on Monday. Wong will accompany Albanese to Tokyo.

Modi recalled in his statement that he had hosted Japan's Prime Minister Kishida for the 14th India-Japan Annual Summit in March this year. "During my visit to Tokyo, I look forward to continuing our conversation further, with an aim to strengthen the India-Japan Special Strategic and Global Partnership.'

Modi and Kishida are likely to meet on Tuesday, as per the current schedule, "Economic cooperation between India and Japan is an important aspect of our Special Strategic and Global Partnership," Modi said. During the March Summit, the two leaders had announced their "intention to realize JPY 5 trillion in public and private investment and financing over the next five years from Japan to India", he said. Modi said he would also meet with Japanese business leaders "with the goal of further strengthening economic linkages between our countries". A series of meetings with leaders of Japanese industry - including Nobuhiro Endo, chairman of IT and electronics company NEC Corporation, Tadashi Yanai, chairman/ president & CEO of the clothing brand UNIQLO, Osamu Suzuki, Adviser, Suzuki Motor Corporation, and Masayoshi Son, board director at Softbank Group Corp. — are lined up for Monday afternoon, followed by a roundtable with Japanese business leaders in the evening. In between, the Prime Minister will attend the Indo-Pacific Economic Framework event hosted by President Biden, during which a wideranging trade agreement is expected to be launched, with separate modules for "fair and resilient trade, supply chain resilience, infrastructure and decarbonisation, and tax and anticorruption".

Iapan is home to nearly 40,000 members of the Indian diaspora, and Modi said he looked forward to interacting with their representatives. An interaction with the Indian community is scheduled for Monday evening.

Other experts believe the harmonium can co-exist with traditional instruments.

"It is said the harmonium was played at Harmandir Sahib for the first time in 1901 or 1902. There are kirtani jathas that use both the harmonium and string instruments, and still come up with very good performances," says Punjabi University professor Dr Alankar Singh, who has specialised in Hindustani classical music and Gurmat Sangeet. "It is true that the harmonium doesn't play slide notes like string instruments. The British have naturally affected our music. For example, the violin has become one of the main instruments in South Indian music. Sikhs believe that everything happens with the will of the Almighty. I would humbly request that instead of saying we will not play the harmonium, we should say we need to encourage the use of string instruments more," he said.

"The harmonium brought about a revolution in the field of kirtan. After we became slaves of the British, it was very difficult to learn to play string instruments for many reasons, including lack of teachers. The art of singing kirtan could have become extinct among the common Sikhs if the harmonium hadn't filled the space," he said. Surjit Singh, who heads the SGPC-run Giani Sohan Singh Sital Dhadi/Kavishri Gurmat Missionary College, which is an academy for Gurmat Sangeet, says "the words 'to phase out harmonium' do not fully convey the intention of the Akal Takht Jathedar, which is to revive string instruments".

"Do we need to shun the harnonium? There was only the rabab at the time of Guru Nanak Dev ji, Then came the saranda and taus. The harmonium and tabla came with changes in time. Now electric instruments have come." he said. "Does reviving heritage mean that we should go back in time to when kirtan was performed only on rabab? Can we shun modern transportation because Guru Nanak Dev ji travelled on foot? There is a need to discuss whether the revival of string instruments means to phase out the harmonium."

the agitation, he said: "The farmers from the north, east, west and south should get together and fight for our rights. We grow food for the country. We should get justice. Agar kisan chahe toh satta palat sakta hai. Koi badi baat nahi. (If farmers want, they can overthrow the government of the day. It is no big deal)... The agitation should continue till the farmers get the right price for their produce and a constitutional guarantee to it. We should vote for only those parties who give these guarantees...Governments from across the country who love farmers will get together and when you start your agitation, we will be with you. Kejriwal ji is fortunate that this (the protest against the farm laws) was happening at his (Delhi) border. He served the agitation. He tried to save the farmers. Now, we all will get associated with the agitation and fight till the Centre agrees to our demands. I urge the farmers to come forward.'

Kejriwal, who was on his first visit to Chandigarh since Mann's swearing in as Punjab Chief Minister, said the AAP government in the state would make a farmers' model in Puniab that would later be replicated across the country

"That Chandrashekhar ji is here shows that the entire country is with you," Kejriwal said, addressing farmers. Regarding the protests at the Delhi border, he said, "It was not the andolan (movement) of a section of society, but the entire nation. It happened at the Delhi border, It was like a vaina (ritual) in which Lalso made an offering. Whatever we could do, we did. I remember when the farmers from Punjab and Haryana had started and were on their way, we got a file from the Centre that farmers are moving towards Delhi, and to arrest all of them, we would have had to convert Delhi's stadia into jails... But we refused the Centre, and said we would not clear this file... We stood with the farmers. we helped them in setting up toilets and providing water.'

Earlier, Mann set the tone of the function, hailing the farmers for ensuring that the farm laws were repealed.

In an emotional address, he said, "When I used to raise the issue of suicide of Punjab farmers, then MPs of other states would surround me and ask me if farmers of a prosperous state like Punjab were also committing suicide. I told them that Punjab is no more the state it used to be -ahappy state where the Punjabis danced to the tunes of bhangra. Successive governments had brought it to this situation. But we will restore its glory."

The event, organised by the Puniab government at Tagore theatre in Chandigarh, was also attended by farmer leader Rakesh Tikait.

Rs 2 lakh: for obstructing entry to regious, cultural or social places, it is Rs 1 lakh; and for derogatory remarks, Rs 1 lakh. Officials said the provisions of the Atrocity Act explicitly provide for payment of compensation to victims at different stages of a case, and do not have any express provisions for recovering the compensation amount. Hence, the trial court's orders were "illegal and outside of its jurisdiction".

Woman dies by suicide at Rajkot police station

Based on Mukesh's complaint, an FIR was registered at Aji Dam police station under IPC Sections 326 (voluntarily causing grievous hurt with dangerous weapons or means) as well as for robbery.

"The complainant named one Ravi as a suspect. During interrogation, we came to know that the complainant and the woman had an affair. Her husband came to know about it two months ago and there was a quarrel. However, the two sides later settled the matter," Pravin Kumar, deputy commissioner of police (Zone-I) of Rajkot city police told The Indian Express.

"The woman and the complainant had met the day he was attacked. Therefore, she was picked up for questioning... the identity of the person named Ravi remains a mystery," the DCP

After questioning, police told the woman late Saturday that she was free to return to her home, Kumar said adding, "But the woman expressed apprehension that her husband would beat her up and requested the police to allow her to stay for the night. Therefore, she was allowed to stay in the barnishi section of Aji Dam police station building, accompanied by a woman constable.'

In Gujarat, barnishi is the section of a police station that deals with formal communications, including correspondence and issuance of summons. The section

The woman's movement inside the police station has been captured in CCTV cameras on the premises, the DCP said.

THE EID Namaz was not conducted on roads for the first time in UP, and "the volume of the mosque loudspeaker has gone down" following the state's recent crackdown. Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath said on Sunday while referring to his government retaining power in the elections this year.

He was speaking at an event organised to celebrate 75 years of RSS-affiliated magazines Organiser and Panchjanya.

Other BIP chief ministers also spoke at the event, with Goa's Pramod Sawant calling for temples destroyed in the past to be rebuilt and Uttarakhand's Pushkar Singh Dhami reiterating that his state will form a "special committee" to implement Uniform Civil Code.

The chief ministers of Manipur (N Biren Singh), Himachal Pradesh (Jai Ram Thakur) and Haryana (M L Khattar) spoke mostly about various government schemes and development projects in their states.

Adityanath referred to the BJP retaining power in UP, and spoke about his government's achievements, especially in law and order in the context of communal clashes occuring in some other states amid a string of reli-

THE GUJARAT Pradesh Congress Committee (GPCC) convened an executive meeting with leaders from Central Gujarat in Vadodara on Sunday, to discuss strategies for the upcoming assembly elections.

State party president Jagdish Thakor and state incharge Raghu Sharma were among the leaders who met at the Deen Dayal Upadhyaya auditorium on Ajwa Road.

19-yr-old held with 71 grams of MD drugs

Ahmedabad: The Ahmedabad Police's Detection of Crime Branch (DCB) arrested a 19-year-old man with 71 grams of mephedrone (MD) drugs in Vejalpur of Ahmedabad on Sunday.

According to police, Sohail Mansuri, a resident of Fatehwadi in Ahmedabad, was held by a DCB team near Al-Buruj tower on the Juhapura-Makarba 100 feet road in Ahmedabad, in possession of the narcotics.

"Acting on specific input, the accused man was held by a team and we confiscated 71.28 grams of MD drugs worth Rs 7 lakh from him," said a senior official of Ahmedabad DCB.

"He told us that he is himself a drug addict and also sells it to people in Fatehwadi, Juhapura and surroundings during the evening hours. He makes small zipper pouches of one gram MD each and sells them for Rs 2,000-2,500 each. We have booked the accused under sections of the NDPS Act and further probe is on," the official added. ENS

Woman booked for throwing puppy to death from 3rd floor

Bhavnagar: A woman was booked for allegedly killing a puppy by throwing it from the third floor of a residential building in Bhavnagar city in Gujarat, police said on Sunday.

According to police, Asha Lumba threw a stray puppy from the third floor of the residential building on Saturday, and it was found dead in the parking lot of the complex, a Nilambaug police station official said.

"An FIR was lodged against her under Prevention of Cruelty to Animals Act and section 429 (mischief by killing or maiming cattle, etc.) of the Indian Penal Code on the complaint of a woman who runs a animal helpline," the official said. "As per the complainant, she received a call at 11am Saturday informing about a dead puppy being found in the parking lot. Some residents said the accused used to argue with them over feeding the puppy and had even threatened to kill it," he added.

Lumba is yet to be arrested and further probe is on, the official said. PTI

ADAY after a 25-year-old man and his two-year-old daughter were killed when a wall collapsed on them due to a push by a bulldozer engaged in construction work in the Gomtipur area of Ahmedabad, police on Sunday booked the bulldozer driver for culpable homicide amounting to murder.

According to police, around 3 pm, a wall in Salatnagar near Ambika Bridge of Gomtipur collapsed after a JCB machine took a reverse and hit the wall. Prakash Salat (25) and his daughter Seema (2), residents of Salatnagar, came under the impact as they were resting near the wall.

Police said the JCB machine was engaged in construction work at the Ambika bridge and was driven by Mukesh Solanki, an Ahmedabad-based contractor.

"Four of us, including my standing near Dasha Mata temple, leaning against the wall at the entry gate of Salatnagar when a JCB machine hit the wall after the driver reversed it in a negligent manner... The wall collapsed and Prakash and Seema came under the impact... they were taken to civil hospital where they were declared brought dead by doctors," said Dhirubhai Salat, elder brother of deceased, in his complaint to police.

Taking cognisance, police booked Solanki under IPC sections 304 for culpable homicide and 279 for rash driving.

Solanki has also filed a police complaint stating that he was assaulted and his vehicle was vandalised after the incident on Saturday afternoon.

"After I took a reverse, a portion of JCB bulldozer hit the wall near Ambika bridge. Later, four men came to my vehicle and started assaulting me," said Solanki in his complaint to

Mauritian woman held in Kutch for overstaying

COVID COUNT

Rajkot: A Mauritian woman was held from Madhapar village in Kutch for allegedly overstaying and has been sent to the joint interrogation centre (JIC) in Bhuj, Kutch (West) police said.

According to police, the woman, identified as Deorani, 48, wife of Rushikesh Madhup and daughter of Ramdut Jagu, is a citizen of Mauritius, and was detained late on May 19 after she was reported to the police by one Jashpalsinh Jadeja, a resident of Madhapar.

"According to primary information, the woman has been living in Madhapar for three months. She says that she has lost her passport. She has been detained and sent to the IIC for questioning," Jayesh Panchal, deputy superintendent of police of Bhuj division of Kutch (west) police told The Indian Express.

"I was on a pilgrimage with family when this woman pleaded for help saying she lost her passport... I brought her to Madhapar with us," said Jadeja, a building painter. Adding that he got in touch with the Mauritian consulate in Mumbai and the embassy in Delhi with the help of a local journalist, Jadeja said, "They all advised me to report the matter to local police. Accordingly, I reported her to Madhapar police." ENS

> THE GUIARAT Anti-Corruption Bureau (ACB) held a revenue department official accepting a bribe of Rs 11 lakh on Saturday evening in Sanand Ahmedabad.

According to ACB officials, Jitendra Kumar Patel, sub-registrar (grade 3), sub-registrar office, Revenue Bhawan in Sanand, and his accomplice Momin Rasul, a private citizen, were detained by a team with Rs 11 lakh cash that Patel had demanded in exchange of approving the complainant's three applications.

"The complainant submitted his three sets of documents at the sub-registrar office for verification, out of which two sets were returned to him in due process. The accused official had not returned the third set of documents and initially demanded a bribe of Rs 18 lakh from the complainant," said an ACB official.

settled at Rs 11 lakh and then the complainant approached the ACB. The officials laid a trap and the accused official and his accomplice were held accepting the amount at their office Saturday evening. They were detained and booked under sections of the Prevention of Corruption (PC) Act," the official added.

Startups to be linked to govt ecosystem, govt has plan on chip shortage: Minister

AHMEDABAD, MAY 22

THE CENTRE is making efforts to connect Indian startups with the government ecosystem so that its procurement requirements can be met with their innovative solutions, Union Minister of State for Skill Development and Entrepreneurship Rajeev Chandrasekhar said here on Sunday Speaking at the Gujarat University on "New India for Young India: Techade of Opportunities" on Sunday, Chandrasekhar said, "Soon Digital India Startup Hub, an institutional framework, shall be established to promote startup ecosystem and to centrally coordinate initiatives. The government is making efforts to connect startups with government ecosystem so that government's procurement requirements can be met with innovative solutions offered by startups.'

"We are working with each state government and will soon roll out a programme called 'Digital India start up hub'. This is a national enabler for all startups around the country," he said.

Referring to the semi conductors and chip shortage faced by the country, Chandrasekhar stated that while at present "we just have to weather the storm" and that India has "a real plan". Replying to a question raised by one of the automotive startups during his address, the minister said, "The overall electronic strategy - short term and medium term – the disruptions happened today nobody can do anything... We just have to weather the storm. But for the medium term point of view, we have a real plan and that plan will help us be a trusted partner in global scenario. I am confident that in next one or two years, we will have the first fab (fabrication) coming to India and starting manufacturing.'

Adding that the disruptions in supply chains during Covid has caused a rise in component process that is faced by almost every category of electronics, he said, "PM's idea is to ensure that a significant part of value addition in the overall product comes to India. For this we have launched PLI (Production Linked Incentive) schemes like device PLIs, component PLIs, etc. As the volumes of the completed platforms and completed product take off, the ecosystem of suppliers and components based around it will also go up. And the last piece of this is the semi conductor and the Government of India has put in 10 billion dollars as the package," he added.

In December 2021, the Government of India approved an incentive plan of 10 billion dollars to boost semiconductor manufacturing in India.

Highlighting the importance of learning Digital Skills for India's expanding Digital Economy, Chandrasekhar added, "Innovation, innovation and innovation is the mantra going foromy towards 5 trillion dollar and Digital Economy towards trillion-

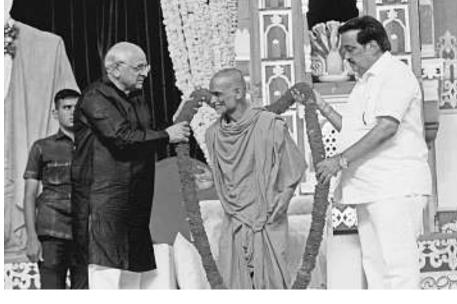

Highlighting how eight years of Modi Government has shattered conventional narratives about India, the minister said this is the most opportune time for youngsters to succeed. "You don't need a famous last name anymore to succeed in India. Hardwork, grit, innovation are only determinants of success.... This is the new India that Narendra Modi ji is building," he said.

"There was a PM in the late 80s - Rajiv Gandhi - who stated that out of every 100 paise that are sent from Delhi to a beneficiary, only 15 paise actually reaches. Such was the acceptability of the so called weak and leaky system. Now, thanks to the Digital India programme launched by PM Narendra Modi in 2015, every single rupee is directly transferred into the accounts of the beneficiary living in remotest corners of the country," the minister added.

The Government is also planning to frame and implement rules for Artificial Intelligence, the minister said, adding, "There rules that will come in just in India but around the world on ethical use and risk free use of AI. So be aware that are going to be rules that are going to progressively develop around AI and machine learning because they represent risk free individual citizen and every government around the world has an obligation to keep internet safe and trusted for its citizens. Whatever is required will be done."

On the government's response to the huge shortage of drone experts and trainers, Chandresekhar told The Indian Express, "We are starting 200 drone schools as part of 'Skill India' all over the country. There are many institutions that are training the trainers... In the next three to four months, you will find 500 to 1,000 persons who are skilled in drone technology.'

The minister also visited Pandit Deendayal Energy University (PDEU) in Gandhinagar where startups in the field of energy showcased their innovations. Chandrasekhar was accompanied by Gujarat Education Minister Jitu Vaghani and

CM and Paatil attend event by breakaway faction of Sokhda sect

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE VADODARA, MAY 22

THE BREAKAWAY faction of the Akshar Purushottam Swami Haridham Temple at Sokhda in Vadodara on Sunday organised an event to mark the 88th birth anniversary — falling May 23 of the first spiritual guru of the sect, Hariprasad Swami, that was attended by Chief Minister Bhupendra Patel, state BJP President CR Paatil and other BJP leaders, in a show of strength by

Two groups of the Sokhda Swaminarayan Sect are in the middle of a mediation process, arbitrated by retired Bombay High Court Chief Justice MS Shah over carrying forward the legacy of the trust.

Seers of the faction spoke of their spiritual leader Prabodh Swami's closeness with Hariprasad at the event. Hariprasad Swami, who passed away on July 27, 2021, left two factions of the trust engaged in a legal conflict over the succession. While Prabodh Swami and his disciples exited the Sokhda premises of the trust, the second faction headed by Prem Swaroop Swami on May 11 elevated him as the spiritual successor of Hariprasad.

At the event, a huge gathering of disciples of Prabodh Swami was present even as seers likened him to Hariprasad and hailed him for "being a living example of Hariprasad swamiji's disciple".

The event, which has been seen as a show of strength by the faction that is seeking joint rights on the spiritual legacy and assets of the trust — as decided by a trust Committee following the death of Hariprasad – cemented Prabodh Swami's position as the spiritual leader with the top brass of the state BJP sharing the dais with him.

CM Patel, who arrived way past 10 pm, apologized to the waiting audience and urged the people to follow Prime Minister Narendra Modi's call to dedicate 75 hours to serving the society for the Amrut Mahotsav campaign.

"A person who lives in the present is the happiest... but we can't live in the present... Our minds are constantly thinking of what is to come next... Even when we sit in spiritual discourses, we keep thinking of other things instead of concentrating on the sermons," the CM said.

The Prabodh Swami faction has sought a "joint functioning" the trust along with Premswaroop Swami as was the original declaration from the board of trustees following the demise of Hariprasad swami.

On April 21, the Gujarat High Court, while hearing a habeas corpus petition filed to secure the release of Prabodh Swami and his disciples allegedly from forced confinement in Sokhda, directed the group to shift to other campuses of the trust. The HC had also lirected Premswaroop Swami, JM Dave and Tyagvallabh Swami to refrain from trying to visit the two premises or establishing contact with the seers and devotees evacuated from Sokhda. On April 27, a seer Gunatit Charan Swami allegedly died by suicide at the Sokhda temple premises. However, the Vadodara district police, which registered a case of accidental death, has begun a probe into the incident since the temple trust had "decided to pass off the suicide as a natural death and did not inform the police".

The next date for the mediation between the groups is May 25.

Owaisi says Muslims should get political representation like Patidars

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE SURAT, MAY 22

MUSLIMS IN Gujarat should have political representation like the Patidars who have a "successful political leadership", said All India Majlis-e-Ittehadul Muslimeen (AIMIM) president Asaduddin Owaisi in Surat on Sunday.

The AIMIM chief was holding a roadshow in wall city area of Surat, before his public meeting at Limbayat area, which is the parliamentary constituency of state BJP president and Navsari MP MP CR Paatil. He had held similar events in Ahmedabad and Vadgam earlier.

The percentage of Muslims and Patidars are close to each other. It is the success of political leadership and political awareness of Patidars that several members from their community gets elected. So, there is a need to develop and take ahead the political representation and political awareness of Muslims," Owaisi said adding that as per several studies, the social, economical, education and health status of Muslims were below tribals.

Owaisi was accompanied by state AIMIM president Sabir Kabliwala and former MLA of AIMIM advocate Waris Pathan. The teams carried out meetings with party leaders and workers of Surat unit as well as religious leaders on the upcoming elections and addressed a media briefing in the afternoon.

During the roadshow, Owaisi was welcomed at three different locations and he addressed a public meeting at Limbayat later in the evening. On way to Limbayat, Owaisi was shown black flags at Mithi Khadi area, however, there was no further trouble, sources said.

"Muslims are not limited to Ramzan or to serve sheerkhurma. We want our part in politics and we will get it. I am held responsible for their defeat in elections. There is nobody to work with you in your party (Congress)... your working president says that their top leaders look at their cellphones and do not give attention to him. It has become a habit of all the political parties, to blame Muslims for their defeat," Owaisi said.

About the Aam Aami Party (AAP) emerging as a third option in Gujarat state, and how will AMIM compete with them, Owaisi said, "When the riots broke out in Delhi, as a chief minister, he (Arvind Keiriwal) did not follow his responsibilities... Three days ago, a demolition was carried out in Delhi, Chief Minister has not said a word."

On Bhartiva Tribal Party's prepoll alliance with the AAP, Owaisi said, "Every party has the right to work for their party growth." On a question about bulldozer drive of the Uttar Pradesh government, Owaisi said, "The country should be run as per the Constitution... If a house or property is to be demolished, there is a procedure to send notice and give some time to approach the court. Without these procedures, a demolition drive is not good."

On the Gyanvapi row, Owaisi said, "They are creating the issues and to take political advantage. After 54 years, when a petition is field in the court claiming that Idgah is theirs, the lower court can sort out the issue on that moment, showing the 1991 Act. There are many issues which will come up in the coming days. It is the responsibility of the PM and his government to decide and work on the act made by their Parliament. If we want to take our country ahead, there are other issues like inflation and unemployment to be addressed."

On implementation of the Uniform Civil Code, Owaisi replied, "In Article 37 of Directive Principles, it states that the country's resources and wealth should be equally distributed. But our country's 45 per cent wealth is with 10 per cent people."

> puter versus computer," said an RRU official. How will the centre help the Army?

The Army intends to use the wargame centre to train its officers in military strategies. According to RRU officials, the Army will provide data to set the backdrop of the gameplay, so that participants get a realistic experience.

"In Army, it is often said that the enemy can ambush you from 361 directions, where 360 sides are around the soldier, and one is above in case there is an airdrop. So, wargame simulation helps the Army think of all possible scenarios. Aspects such as slope of terrain, weather, time, air pressure, enemy surveillance reach, reach of artillery, the position of troops, soldier's health and enemy's reaction capabilities are all taken into account by the use of AI," said the RRU official.

What promise does AIbased wargame simulation hold?

Apart from the armed forces, the BSF, CRPF, CISF, ITBP and SSB can also use the metaverse-enabled simulation exercises for better training.

The use of AI can provide a totally immersive training experience as it can simulate a battlefield close to reality and map several eventualities in the probable event of a war.

"For now, the centre will only be used by the Army but the inof-the-art research centre where other security agencies can also take part," said the RRU official.

How many countries use such wargaming drills?

Since the 9/11 attacks, use of information technology-enabled wargaming is preferred by several countries like the US, Israel, the UK to prepare for possibilities in case of terror attacks or war.

In March 2014, several world leaders, including former German chancellor Angela Merkel, former US president Barack Obama and Chinese president Xi Jinping had played a war simulation game during the Hague Summit about how to react in case of a nuclear attack. In that case, the target of the nuclear attack was a fictitious coun-

UGC to tweak draft regulations on learning outcomes

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE NEW DELHI, MAY 22

THE UNIVERSITY Grants Commission (UGC) has decided to tweak the draft regulations which, once approved, will define the learning outcomes associated with each level of qualification in higher education and enable transfer of credits between institutions and courses.

UGC chairperson Prof M Jagadesh Kumar told The Indian Express on Sunday that the commission decided to revise the draft regulations, which were put out in public domain in January, to ensure parity with guidelines that govern technical education in the country.

Put simply, the National Higher Education Qualifications Framework (NHEQF), which is being revised, defines what a learner is expected to know upon completion of a course, ranging from certificate programmes to PhDs.

The draft NHEOF initially arranged the qualifications at a scale of five to 10. "However, the above is not in tune with the NSQF in which the levels are organised from 4.5 to 8...," Kumar said.

The UGC will hold a series of meetings with the heads of universities from May 25 to communicate the plan to revise the draft, Prof Kumar added

10 lakh apply for CUET; BHU, DU, Allahabad univ big draws

SOURAV ROY BARMAN

NEW DELHI, MAY 22

OVER 10 LAKH candidates have registered to take the Common University Entrance Test (CUET) for undergraduate courses, the application window for which closed on Sunday, with Delhi University, BHU and Allahabad University emerging as the top

With each candidate allowed to take up to nine papers, 46 lakh applications have been made so far, with students from Delhi, Uttar Pradesh, Madhya Pradesh, Harvana and Raiasthan accounting for a bulk of the registrations.

As many as 44 central universities, 12 state universities, 11 deemed universities and 19 private universities will take in undergraduate students through CUET in the 2022-23 academic sessions. The dates for the test have not yet been announced.

Among Central universities. DU leads the chart with over 6 lakh applications, followed by Banaras Hindu University (BHU) with 3.94 applications and Allahabad University with 2.31 lakh applications. Lucknowbased Babasaheb Bhimrao Ambedkar University trails Anew platform closely behind with 1.49 lakh applications.

Jamia Millia Islamia University, which had initially expressed reservations over adopting CUET, has also attracted 1.21 lakh applications. The institution is carrying out admissions to 10 of its undergraduate programmes through the common entrance. The government had initially told Jamia and Aligarh Muslim University that admissions to all UG courses need to be carried out through CUET, but later allowed the institutions to use it for selected programmes only.

Jawaharlal Nehru University, which is more popular for its postgraduate degree courses and advanced research, has received 57,000 applications. And ing the initial days after the application window was opened on April 6, at 3.3 lakh, the maximum number of registrations

UP is followed by Delhi (1.5 lakh registrations), Bihar (83,672), Haryana (69,349), Madhya Pradesh (62,394), Rajasthan (48,016). Among the southern states, Kerala accounts for 40,476 applications, followed by Tamil Nadu with 16,590 applications.

Last month, the Tamil Nadu Assembly had adopted a resolution against CUET, prompting Union Education Minister Dharmendra Pradhan to write to the state government, saying there is "no case for infringing upon the rights of the states and Union Territories" through the

The numbers also reflect the popularity of DU among students in the Northeast, a region which lacks an adequate number of high quality higher education institutions, forcing students to migrate to other parts of the country.

For instance, there have been 17,613 registrations from Meghalaya, a state with a population of around 26 lakh, as opKarnataka.

The geographical spread of the applications will be more even from next year. Actually much depends on the success of this year's edition of the entrance. Registrations will also increase as the exams will be held twice a year from next year," an official said.

The government had on May 19 exempted eight Central Universities in the Northeast and one in Uttarakhand from conducting the CUET, attributing the decision to "operational difficulties".

Among state universities, the government-run Ambedkar University has emerged as the most popular, drawing over 1.28 lakh applications, followed by UP's Dr APJ Abdul Kalam Technical University with 97,376 applications. The Meerut-based IIMT received 1.37 applications, becoming the top draw among private universities.

Last year, around 9.39 lakh candidates had taken the JEE (Mains) for admission to undergraduate engineering programmes, while around 15.4 had taken the medical entrance

ASSAM'S NATIONAL Register of Citizens (NRC) may be in a limbo but the issue continues to set off rows, which was again manifested recently when state NRC coordinator Hitesh Dev Sarma filed a police complaint against his predecessor Prateek Hajela Sarma's complaint reflected his long-standing grouse against the NRC that was completed under Hajela's supervision in August 2019. Sarma has repeatedly claimed that this NRC is "anomalies-ridden".

In his complaint lodged with the police last Thursday, Sarma seemed to have gone a step further, alleging that Hajela had deliberately introduced errors in the NRC and thus "endangered national security". Opposing the August 2019 NRC, he has even filed an affidavit in the Supreme Court seeking its re-verification.

In another controversial move, Sarma had, in April, written to Assam's Foreigners Tribunals (FTs) — quasi-judicial bodies that decide on matters on nationality — instructing them not to rely on the "erroneous NRC" while adjudicating cases. An FT member wrote back, asking him not to "inter-

Sarma's tenure as the Assam NRC head has been marked by multiple controversies. He was appointed to the post by the BJPled state government in November 2019 after the apex court ordered that Hajela be transferred out of Assam to Madhya Pradesh. Although the court did not explicitly state a reason for its order, it stated, "Can an order be without any basis?" After Sarma's appointment, his old social media posts, which were alleged to be communally-

Subsequently, state Congress MP Abdul Khaleque wrote to then Chief Minister Sarbananda Sonowal, urging him to reconsider Sarma's appointment. Khaleque stated that Sarma was neither "unbiased nor trustworthy", citing his Facebook posts. The All-Assam Minorities Students' Union (AAMSU) also flayed his appointment to the crucial position.

One of his social media posts about there being "lakhs and lakhs of Bangladeshis in the NRC" also attracted the Supreme Court's attention, which asked him to delete the post and provide an explanation. It was only in January 2020 that he could assume his office after this furore

But Sarma, a 1989-batch Assam Civil Service officer, has stuck to his objections against the existing NRC, which has led to a situation whereby virtually none of the processes that were supposed to follow the NRC's publication have been undertaken. So, 19 lakh people, who were excluded from the NRC, are yet to be issued formal rejection slips despite the Registrar General of India telling the state NRC coordinator to do so, leaving those rejected in a limbo. Without the rejection slips, they cannot approach the FTs to make their case of being Indians.

Earlier, Sarma had done another stint with the NRC office From 2014 to 2017, he had served as an executive director of an NRC project led by Hajela, but had guit for "personal reasons" saying he was "not mentally as well as physically fit" to work in the project.

BENGAL 'SSC SCAM'

Probe report shows how 5 officials booked by CBI 'committed fraud'

ATRI MITRA & RAVIK BHATTACHARYA KOLKATA, MAY 22

THE JUSTICE (retired) Ranjit Bag Committee that looked into an alleged scam in recruitment for Group C and Group D posts in the School Education Department has recommended action against four West Bengal School Service Commission (WBSSC) officials, former and current, and a senior alleged criminal conspiracy. Based on the Committee's report. the Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI) on Saturday filed a fresh FIR against the five.

In its report to the Calcutta High Court (HC) on May 12, the Bench of Calcutta High Court Justices Harish Tandon and Rabindranath Samanta set up on February 22, is learnt to have recommended criminal proceedings against former WBSSC chairnersons Professor Saumitra Sarkar and Ashok Kumar Saha; the organisation's former advisor, Dr Santi Prasad Sinha; programme officer Samariit Acharva: and West Bengal Board of Secondary Education(WBBSE) president Dr Kalyanmoy Ganguly.

The Committee is said to have found out that a "lack of transparency in preparation and uploading of the panel (of candidates)" on the WBSSC website "and keeping the said panel a guarded secret from the chairpersons of the Regional Commissions" helped commit the alleged fraud in the recruitment process that began in 2016.

Sarkar, Saha (WBSSC Secretary at the time of the alleged offence), and Sinha allegedly recommended the names of unsuccessful candidates in Group C posts before and after the expiry of the panel on May 18, 2019, "in the garb of increase of marks of those candidates by way of re-evaluation of OMR (answer) sheets on the basis of their applications under RTI (Right to Information Act)". The answer sheets were allegedly destroyed after the manipulation of marks.

The three allegedly compelled Acharya and another programme officer to fabricate WBSSC note sheets on May 14, 2019, and June 18 and June 20 "to give colour of increase of the marks of the candidates due to re-evaluation of OMR sheets on consideration of applications under RTI Act". In other words, the note sheets were falsified to provide a veneer of legality to the entire process even though it was "in violation of the provisions of School Service Commission Rules, 2009".

Sarkar and Sinha alle "collected vacancies" in an unauthorised manner - gathered information about vacancies that opened up after the recruitment exams were held - and recommended unsuccessful candidates for those posts. Using the names that the former WBSSC advisor supplied, Acharya is said to have prepared 381 recommendation letters for unsuccessful Group Ccandidates (almost 250 were not even on the merit list). In Group D, the rules were allegedly bent to favour 609 unsuccessful candidates.

"Acharya has candidly admitted that he has prepared more than 300 recommendation letters in favour of unsuccessful candidates in Group C posts and more than 500 recommendation letters in favour of unsuccessful Group D candidates under the instructions of Dr Santi Prasad Sinha by using the data from the server of the Central Commission and by using scanned signatures of the chairpersons of the Regional Commissions by keeping the chairpersons of the Regional Commissions in the dark and also by manipulating memo numbers of the Regional Commissions from the computer of the Central Commission ..." said Bag Committee member and HC advocate Arunava Banerjee.

Kolkata's Salt Lake area.

"No explanation is forthcoming before us why Dr Kalvanmov Ganguly did not follow the normal procedure of generation of appointment letters on the basis of recommendation of the School Service Commission and distribution of those appointment letters after notifying the names of the candidates in the website of the Central Commission for verification of testimonials and for collection of appointment letter on the notified date from the office of the Board or any other notified venue." the Committee report is learnt to have said. These actions, the Bag Committee reportedly said, indicate that Ganguly was "hand in glove" with Sinha "in making appointment letters on the basis of fake recommendations".

While Sinha declined to speak to The Indian Express, Acharya and Saha could not be reached for comments.

Sinha allegedly handed over a "bunch of fake recommendation letters" to WBBSE president Ganguly "on four to five occasions" after the "expiry of the panel". The Bag Committee report is learnt to have found that Ganguly issued instructions to a subordinate for the preparation of appointment letters based on these forged letters and bypassed the "normal chain of hierarchy" and did not send the recommendation letters to the Board's Appointment Section. Instead, the appointment letters were allegedly handed over to Ganguly himself or to the WB-SSC officials who were part of the alleged scam at the Commission's new office in

Rajasthan and Maharashtra cut VAT on fuel

ENS&PTI

JAIPUR, MUMBAI, MAY 22

A DAY after the Centre reduced excise duty on fuel, the Rajasthan and Maharashtra governments slashed the Value Added Tax (VAT) on petrol and diesel.

Rajasthan Chief Minister Ashok Gehlot said the state government would reduce VAT by Rs 2.48 per litre on petrol and Rs 1.16 per litre on diesel. However, Maharashtra slashed the VAT on petrol by Rs 2.08 per litre and diesel by Rs 1.44 per litre.

A statement issued by the Shiv Sena-led government in Maharashtra said the state exchequer would have to bear an annual loss of Rs 2,500 crore as a result of the decision.

Varanasi court to hear Gyanyapi case today

Technology for good of humanity, it shouldn't shape us: Ram Madhav

WITH TECHNOLOGY growing beyond the "redlines", there has to be an intervention to contain it for the longer good of humanity and today India can play that role for the world, RSS leader and member of the governing council of the India Foundation, Ram Madhay, said on Sunday,

Madhav, at the concluding session of the three-day India Ideas Conclave, said the topic for the conference – Meta 2.0 – was chosen to change the discourse and ensure that a debate that's not religion or who would go to heaven or hell is changed in order to make sure that India does

'Some people have to go through hell. Hitlers cannot be going to heaven irrespective of which religion he follows," he said, adding that everyone has to accept other's religion.

Madhav said technology has more intelligence than the humans but it doesn't have the heart, and the intervention of humans is necessary. He pointed out that the philosophers had always intervened when the human history took different turns to give the "religions and polity" a better form. "We created technology but "Now, after rolling back ~50% of their increases, they are exhorting states to cut. Is this federalism?" Rajan tweeted.

On Sunday, a statement issued by Rajan's office said "It is heartening to note that the Union Government has finally heeded to the repeated requests of the Tamil Nadu government to reduce the taxes on petrol and

Gehlot's seven in agencies' crosshairs — from son and brother to close aides

HAMZAKHAN JAIPUR, MAY 22

FROM HIS family members to close aides to crisis managers, a number of those close to Rajasthan Chief Minister Ashok Gehlot are increasingly finding themselves in a spot either of their own making or allegedly due to their proximity with the Congress CM.

The latest cases in this regard involves minister Mahesh Joshi and party leader Mahendra Choudhary. Delhi Police is looking for Ioshi's son Rohit in an alleged rape case, while latter's brother has been arrested in connection with a salt trader's murder.

As the Rajasthan Congress

tions, slated for December 2023, these developments seem to have triggered apprehensions among some party leaders that they might be "caught in the net" of various agencies, especially the central agencies, who, they fear, may pursue the cases against them more aggressively in the run-up to the polls

The BJP, however, hit out at the CM for "resorting to baseless allegations" that "democracy and constitutional bodies are in danger and ED, CBI are being misused". The Rajasthan BJP's chief spokesperson and MLA Ramlal Sharma said, "Ashok Gehlot has two laws. One is the Indian Penal Code, which he doesn't want to

VAIBHAV GEHLOT

CM's son Vaibhav Gehlot's name cropped up when during the July 2020 crisis the IT department searched nine offices of two firms

 Mavank Sharma Enterprises (MSE) and Om Kothari Group. MSE belongs to the family of Ratan Kant Sharma, who had in March 2011 acquired 50 per cent shares in Sunlight Car Rentals Private Ltd, a company floated by Vaibhav, and remained its shareholder till March 2016. In March 2022, Vaibhav was booked for an alleged fraud of Rs 6.80 crore. However, the complainant later dropped the case against him.

LOKESH SHARMA Sharma faces an FIR filed by Union minister Gaiendra Singh, in connection with which Delhi Police has issued summons to him about half a dozen times since last year. The Indian Express had reported in March 2021 that the government had accepted that phones were tapped during the July 2020 crisis. In Gyanvapi-Kashi Vishwanath case, the apex court needs to say more to underline the primacy of the Constitution

DAY AFTER the Supreme Court allowed namaz to continue at the Gyanvapi mosque and ordered securing the site where the Shivling is claimed to have been found, it transferred the case from the senior civil judge to the district judge arguing that the issue needed a more "seasoned hand". Then the court suggested that the Places of Worship (Special Provisions) Act, 1991 doesn't bar ascertaining its nature. This attempt by the court, ostensibly to "heal" and to balance competing claims in the Kashi Vishwanath temple-Gyanvapi mosque dispute, raises questions.

Transferring the case to a senior judge, the court acknowledged "the complexity of the issues involved" in the case. This is reminiscent of the court's decision in the Ayodhya-Ramjanmabhoomi dispute where the civil suits were clubbed and transferred from lower courts directly to the Allahabad High Court. Short-circuiting due process is a slippery slope, especially in cases where "complexity" is as much about the law as it's about politics. Leading the three-judge bench, Justice DY Chandrachud remarked, in the form of a question to the parties, that the 1991 law may not bar "ascertaining" the nature of the place of worship even when it bars conversion of the religious character of any place of worship as it existed on August 15, 1947. Surely, the bench is aware that "ascertainment" in this case is not a mere intellectual inquiry, an academic expedition by diligent history students. The plea explicitly calls for access to worship – in Mathura, one even calls for demolition of the mosque – and, outside the courtroom, the lawsuits are framed by politics, faith, and a disdain of Constitutional norms. The court's remark also contradicts its own unanimous verdict, that included Justice Chandrachud, which drew the curtains on the Ayodhya case. The SC held that the 1991 Act is "a legislative instrument designed to protect the secular features of the Indian polity, which is one of the basic features of the Constitution". It also emphasised that the law preserves non-retrogression, "a foundational feature of the fundamental constitutional principles of which secularism is a core component".

Just days ago, the Centre told the Supreme Court, in the sedition hearing, that the Prime Minister has repeatedly expressed his "unequivocal" views on "Constitutionally cherished freedoms", that he has underlined one of India's strengths as the "diverse thought streams that beautifully flourish". The petitions in Kashi and Mathura challenge this very strength. Their final goal is the conversion of the religious character of these places in the name of "correcting historical mistakes." The Supreme Court itself has said that independence from colonial rule furnishes a Constitutional basis for healing injustices of the past. The question is how will the Court put this idea into effect. It may need to do more, to say more, than the "balance" it has tried to strike so far.

WELCOME RELIEF

Fuel tax cuts will help ease price pressures, but inflation is likely to remain elevated

N SATURDAY, THE Union government announced a reduction in the excise duty on petrol and diesel by Rs 8 per litre and Rs 6 per litre respectively. Alongside, the government also reduced the customs duty on raw materials and intermediaries for plastic products and iron and steel. Undoubtedly, these decisions are driven by the desire to cool the surge in inflation – recent data showed that retail inflation had risen to an eight-year high of 7.9 per cent in April, while wholesale inflation has been in double digits for 13 consecutive months. But, implicit in these decisions is also the acknowledgement that both fiscal and monetary policies are needed at this juncture to curb inflation. As per some analysts the cut in fuel taxes could help reduce inflation directly by around 20 basis points in June when its full impact will be visible. The second-round effects are likely to be equally strong.

This is the second time in the recent past that the Centre has cut fuel taxes. In November last year, the Centre had lowered the excise duty on petrol by Rs 5 and by Rs 10 on diesel. Back then, 21 states and some Union Territories had followed suit, cutting the VAT. If state governments follow suit this time also, the relief could be higher. Prior to this cut, taxes imposed by the Centre and states accounted for almost 43 per cent of the retail selling price of petrol. But with the latest cut, the government has brought the excise duty back to pre-pandemic levels. As per the finance minister, the reduction in excise duty will lower the government's revenue by around Rs 1 lakh crore. However, it is possible that this loss in revenue is offset in part by higher collections through other sources. As per some analysts, the government's tax revenues will exceed budget estimates by around Rs 1.3 lakh crore, even after this cut.

While this decision will have a moderating influence on price pressures in the economy, the worry is that inflation has become entrenched. As per projections by analysts, inflation is likely to remain above the RBI's inflation targeting framework. To tackle this surge in inflation, analysts had, prior to this move, expected the monetary policy committee (MPC) to raise rates aggressively over the course of the next few meetings. The MPC, in its next meeting which is scheduled a few weeks from now, must not only release an updated forecast for inflation, but also shed some clarity on the extent of monetary tightening it envisages, and over what duration to bring inflation in line with its target.

Амітавн Маттоо AS ANTHONY ALBANESE is sworn in as Australia's 31st Prime Minister, he will be conscious of the deep electoral angst against traditional politics and a groundswell in support for a contemporary avatar of Australia's own "Aam Aadmi" politics: The Teal independents, a motley group brought together primarily by the lack of mainstream urgency to act against climate change.

But the alacrity with which the PM has acted to ensure that he and his Foreign Minister Penny Wong attend the Quad summit in Tokyo on Tuesday, should reassure those concerned about the future direction of Canberra's foreign policy under a Labor government. At a moment of profound domestic churning, Australia's foreign policy is unlikely to swing, especially under the charge of the wise and incisive Wong. This holds true, particularly of the near-consensus in Canberra about the importance of India and of improving bilateral relations.

After nearly a decade in opposition, Labor has come back to government. But that victory disguises the rise of a new force in Australian politics, the Teal independents and the fall in support for the Coalition (Liberals and Nationals) and for Labor, with a marginal increase in the standing of the Greens. The Teal independents, mostly women, are not connected organisationally except through the Teal colour (a blue-green that they used in the campaign) and financial support from an advocacy group — Climate 200.

The Teal independents have won at least nine seats; most of them, the safest blue-chip Liberal seats. Consider this: Kew, where my family has lived for the last decade, is part of the Kooyong constituency and a bastion of the Liberal Party ever since Robert Menzies, Australia's longest-serving PM, occupied the seat in 1934. The incumbent, Josh Frydenberg, was the Treasurer in the Scott Morrison government and most saw him becoming PM one day. Frydenberg has been defeated by a rookie in politics, Monique Ryan one of the Teals. Ryan, a well-regarded doctor, ran an electrifying campaign with hundreds of volunteers who campaigned doorto-door on just three planks — action on climate change; transparency and integrity Climate 200 was set up as a "community crowd-funded initiative" by Simon Holmes à Court, a political activist and clean energy investor (and son of Australia's first billionaire) that supported political candidates committed to a science-based response to the climate crisis; restoring integrity to politics, and advancing gender equity. The group backed 23 "Teal" candidates across the country, including the journalist Zoe Daniel in Goldstein and Allegra Spender in Wentworth, who defeated the Indian-origin Dave Sharma (a former diplomat who had served as Australia's Ambassador to Israel).

in politics; and safety for women.

Climate 200 has a deep resonance with sections of conservative Liberal voters who are concerned about the end of a "lifestyle" because of climate change. As Australia's best-known novelist Richard Flanagan wrote last year: "Australia today is ground zero for the climate catastrophe. Its glorious Great Barrier Reef is dying, its world-heritage rain forests are burning, its giant kelp forests have largely vanished, numerous towns have run out of water or are about to, and now the vast continent is burning on a scale never before seen.

Not surprisingly Climate 200 managed to raise over $10 million, amidst concerns about the degree of control it would have over the Teals and suggestions of a conflict of interest with Holmes à Court's clean energy business.

When Albanese arrives in Tokyo to meet with other leaders of the Quad, much will be expected of him. The leaders will seek reassurance that Australia is still as committed to the Quad as the previous Liberal government. For the Australian PM, this will be a moment to demonstrate that he is different from his predecessor, but equally committed to the multilateral arrangement and to the bilateral relations that have been fostered over the last decade, including with India.

To be sure, Albanese is not Scott Morrison. Morrison was flamboyant, with a background in marketing. He had headed Tourism Australia and presided over perhaps the most controversial campaign video ever launched to promote Australia tourism: "So, where the bloody hell are you?"

In contrast, Albanese has a low-profile presence and a workman-like attitude and is given to a considered rather than a brilliant spontaneous response on most issues. Remember that Albanese was a child of deprivation rather than privilege. He was brought up by a single mother who suffered dreadfully because of rheumatoid arthritis while living in council housing in Sydney. Success did not come easily to him, but whether in the party or the government, he was seen as a coalition builder having the skills and patience to generate a consensus.

Although he has roots in the left-wing of the Labor Party (in his youth he identified with the struggles of the African National Congress against apartheid and the campaigns for nuclear disarmament — both have a resonance in India) he is a pragmatic leader who understands that Australia faces today a deeply volatile situation in the region and beyond.

One of the most animated moments in the electoral campaign was when Morrison suggested that Albanese was soft on China. Albanese responded by describing the PM's words as an outrageous slur. This was after he had questioned the government on its failures over not doing enough to prevent the Solomon Islands from signing a controversial security deal with China.

Albanese is fortunate to have the brilliant and charismatic Wong as his Foreign Minister. Wong, who has been part of the Australia India Leadership Dialogue which I chaired in the past, genuinely believes in the importance of Australia's partnership with India and has often referred to the fact that it was under the Labor Prime Minister, Julia Gillard, that the policies to reach out to India were first initiated (including overturning the ban on uranium exports to India).

One of the tired cliches about Australia is drawn from Donald Horne's book The Lucky Country, which suggested that Australia was a lucky country run by second rate leaders. In contrast, by all evidence, the Albanese cabinet is one gifted with outstanding leaders, and hopefully luck will continue to be on its side.

THE SUPREME COURT'S May 18 order releasing A G Perarivalan, one of the convicts in the Rajiv Gandhi assassination case, is the culmination of a long-drawn-out battle for freedom spanning over 31 years. Perarivalan's agonising wait may have ended, but his struggle serves as a grim reminder of the several failures of our criminal justice system.

The fact that it took over 31 years for Perarivalan's release despite strong concerns of wrongful prosecution and wrongful conviction ought to worry us. Perarivalan's case forces us to reckon with the tyrannical legacy of terror laws and the broader crisis that plagues criminal justice administration. The case against Perarivalan, charged under the Terrorist and Disruptive Activities (Prevention) Act (TADA) and the Indian Penal Code (IPC), was that he had participated in the conspiracy to assassinate former Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi by supplying batteries for the belt bomb allegedly used for the assassination, with the knowledge that the batteries would be put to said use. The main evidence against him was a confession made to this effect to CBI officer, V Thiagarajan. Such confessions to the police, ordinarily inadmissible under the Indian Evidence Act, were admissible under the TADA.

In 2017, 18 years after the Supreme Court upheld Perarivalan's conviction under IPC provisions, using the confession recorded under TADA (despite the TADA charges having been dropped), Thiagarajan submitted a sworn affidavit before the SC stating that he had omitted the exculpatory part of Perarivalan's statement, denying knowledge of the use to which the batteries would be put. This reveals the violent reality of our criminal justice system that statements and evidence are manipulated to secure convictions. It also demonstrates the dangers of conferring extraordinary police powers under the garb of national security legislation. Again, in 2017, Justice KTThomas, one of the three SC judges who had upheld Perarivalan's conviction, acknowledged "serious flaws" in the CBI investigation.

For nearly half of his 31 years in prison. Perarivalan lived under the sentence of death. The SC confirmed the death sentence imposed by the TADA Court in ignorance of the Bachan Singh framework, which requires circumstances relating to both the crime and the criminal to be considered. Justice KT Thomas later expressed doubts as to whether such severe punishment would have been imposed, had it not been such a high-profile case. Nevertheless, in what must be seen as a triumph of the human spirit. Perarivalan's educational attainments in prison are extraordinary. Life in prison, especially on death row, is one of despair; a reality that we can barely begin to imagine.

Perarivalan's death sentence was finally commuted to life imprisonment by the SC in 2014, after almost 16 years on death row, on grounds of an extraordinary and unexplainable delay of 11 years, after which his mercy plea was rejected by the President. In 2015, Perarivalan filed a mercy petition before the Tamil Nadu governor under Article 161 of the Constitution, seeking pardon. For years, there was sustained back and forth between the state government in Tamil Nadu and the Centre on which one of them had the authority to decide Perarivalan's release. In 2018, the council of ministers of the Tamil Nadu government recommended to the governor that Perarivalan be released in the exercise of constitutional powers of clemency; advice that the governor was constitutionally obligated to follow. Despite this, the governor took no decision on the mercy petition and finally in 2021, forwarded the same to the President for his decision under Article 72. Holding that this was done without constitutional backing, the SC invoked its extraordinary powers under Article 142, releasing Perarivalan and deeming his sentence as having been served.

The manner in which Perarivalan and his mother Arouthammal ensured that their fight stayed alive for over three decades demonstrates the enormous effort required to correct an injustice in our system. Their efforts ensured that the case received national attention, that Perarivalan's cause was backed by political parties in Tamil Nadu with strong support from the bar, civil society, and retired judges — all of these aspects are stories of exceptions rather than the norm. Perarivalan might have rightfully won his freedom back, but the same fate does not await others like him.

The passage of time has allowed us to look at the questions of injustice in this case in a far more meaningful way. It now is a question of whether we as a society have the courage to acknowledge what was inflicted in our name.

The carbon footprint cost

Rice and sugar are water guzzlers. Serious thought must be given to making our exports sustainable

By Ritika Juneja and Ashok Gulati

IN THE FISCAL year 2021-22 (FY22), agri-exports scaled an all-time high of $50.3 billion, registering a growth of 20 per cent over the preceding year. This was made possible largely by rising global commodity prices, but also by the favourable and aggressive export policy of the Ministry of Commerce and its various export promotion agencies like APEDA, MPEDA, and commodity boards. However, from a strategic point of view, an important question that arises is how sustainable is this growth in agri-exports, given India's resource endowments and the country's domestic needs? Already, we have seen a sudden ban on wheat exports. To answer this question rationally, let us first look at the composition of agri-exports.

Among the several agri-commodities exported in FY22, rice ranks first with exports of $9.6 billion in value (with 21.2 million metric tonnes (MMT) in quantity). It is followed by marine products worth $7.7 billion (1.4 MMT), sugar worth $4.6 billion (10.4 MMT) and bovine (buffalo) meat worth $3.9 billion (1.4 MMT) and bovine (buffalo) meat worth $3.3 billion (1.18 MMT) (see figure). Of these, two commodities, rice and sugar, are water guzzlers and serious thought should be given to their global competitiveness and environmental sustainability.

Let's take the case of rice first. India's exports of 21 MMT constituted 41 per cent of a global rice market of 51.3 MMT. Interestingly, when most of the other commodity prices were surging in global markets, the price of rice (Thailand supplies 25 per cent) collapsed by about 13 per cent from $484/tonne in April 2021 to $429/tonne in April 2022, largely due to India's massive exports. This means that India had to export a greater quantity of rice to get the same amount of dollars. Is this in the country's economic interest? In trade theory, it is a classic case for levying the optimal export tax of 5 to 10 per cent. India should optimally not go beyond 12 to 15 MMT of rice exports, else the marginal revenue from exports will keep falling. And that won't be in India's interest.

Another concern in the case of rice is that a substantial part of its global competitiveness comes from highly subsidised water, power and fertilisers that go into its production. It is well known that one kg of rice requires about 3,000 to 5,000 litres of water for irrigation, depending on the topography. Taking an average of about 4,000 litres of water per kg of rice, and assuming that half of this percolates into groundwater, exporting 21MMT of rice would mean the virtual export of 42 billion cubic meters (m3) of water!

Sugar is another water guzzler, whose exports touched 10.4 MMT in FY22. It was backed partly by subsidies (including export subsidy) that crossed the 10 per cent limit mandated by the World Trade Organisation, bringing India into a dispute with other sugar exporting countries at the WTO. India lost the case. But rising global prices of sugar helped the country at that juncture.

However, from a sustainability point of view, we must note that exporting one kg of sugar amounts to roughly exporting 2,000 litres of virtual water. That means in FY22, India exported at least 20 billion m3 of water through sugar exports.

So, by exporting 21 MMT of rice and 10

MMT of sugar in FY22, India exported at least 62 billion cubic meters of virtual water. Much of this water is extracted from groundwater - as is being done in much of the Punjab and Haryana belt (for rice), where the water table is receding by 9.2 metres and 7 metres over the last two decades (2000-19), and in Maharashtra and Uttar Pradesh for sugar. This can lead to a water disaster. Also, remember that rice production systems are among the most important sources of anthropogenic methane emissions, contributing to 17.5 per cent of GHG emissions generated from agriculture (2021). This is all because of the distortionary policies of free power and highly-subsidised fertilisers, especially urea. In the case of common rice, our earlier research shows that power and fertiliser subsidies account for roughly 12 to 15 per cent of the value of rice in states like Punjab and Haryana. The best way to tackle this upcoming environmental disaster would be to support farmers smartly, by giving them aggregate input subsidy support on a per hectare basis and freeing up the input prices of fertilisers and power to be determined by market forces and their costs of production.

Innovative farming practices such as alternate wetting drying (AWD), direct seeded

It is well known that one kg of rice requires about 3,000 to 5,000 litres of water for irrigation, depending on the topography. Taking an average of about 4,000 litres of water per kg of rice, and assuming that half of this percolates into groundwater, exporting 21MMT of rice would mean the virtual export of 42 billion cubic meters (m3) of water! Sugar is another water guzzler, whose exports touched 10.4 MMT in FY22.

rice (DSR) that can save up to 25-30 per cent water and micro-irrigation that can save up to 50 per cent irrigation water, could be game-changing technologies in reducing the crop's carbon footprint. However, the real solution lies in incentivising the farmers to switch some of the area under rice and sugar cultivation to other, less water-guzzling crops. Haryana has come up with two schemes, Mera Pani, Meri Virasat and Kheti Khaali, Fir Bhi Khushali. Under the first scheme, Rs 7,000/acre incentive is given to farmers to switch from paddy to alternate crops, while under the second scheme farmers get Rs 7,000/acre even if they do not grow any crop during the kharif season.

A closer evaluation of non-basmati rice exports brings out another interesting fact. The unit value of these exports was just $354/tonne, which is below the MSP of rice ($390/tonne). How does that happen? One possibility is that a substantial part of the supplies through the PDS and PM Garib Kalyan Anna Yojana (PMGKAY) are leaking out and swelling rice exports. From a policy angle, it may be high time to introduce the option of direct cash transfers in lieu of almost free grains under the PDS and PMGKAY. This will help plug leakages as well as save costs. The savings can then be used for better diversification of our food systems, better use of scarce water and other practices that lower GHG emissions, and saving on burgeoning food and fertiliser subsidies. Can the Modi government make agri-exports more sustainable? Only time will tell.

with high levels of poverty."

Abhinav Prakash Singh

NANDI'S ETERNAL WAIT at Gyanvapi is symbolic of the sorrow, perseverance and hope of a civilisation. The hope is not only for the restoration of deities to their rightful places and the rebirth of temples but also for an end to the denialism and delusion that has plagued the Indian polity for too long. Kashi is an open and shut case like Mathura and many other places. There is no real controversy over the fact that these mosques were built after the destruction of the temples by medieval Islamic warlords. The only "controversy" is the manufactured political rhetoric, academic obfuscation and chicanery joined by Islamist religious supremacism. The Islamist claim over Hindu sites occupied by force and violence is untenable, unethical, and, like in the case of Ayodhya, illegal.

But Islamist supremacism and aggression are being provided intellectual cover by the usual suspects on the left and liberal spectrum. This has been a trend since the 1920s. The Kashi case is portrayed as a conflict between religious obstructionism and modernity, and appeals are being made to reject the past to build an enlightened secular future. This argument is both conceptually and theoretically flawed. First, it's about truth and justice and not modernity or obstructionism. Second, it assumes that there is some standard model of modernity or universal values like secularism, and the only task is to impose them forcefully. Third, it assumes that the past is dead, and a cut-off date of August 15, 1947, can decide between the old and new.

It is a liberal delusion that past, present and future are disjointed. But the past con $tinues \, to \, shape \, the \, present \, and \, future. \, And \, no$ society can be detached from its past and unique trajectory. Ignoring the complex social formations and inter-community relations that evolved over centuries can only lead to disasters, as demonstrated repeatedly across the world. And Hindus and Muslims share a tumultuous past that has never been openly acknowledged. There has never been an honest Hindu-Muslim dialogue despite them not agreeing on the big questions of the day as a political community. No amount of academic jugglery and intervention can alter the ground realities.

The obsessive appeals to secularism have no legitimacy when it is always deployed in the service of the Islamic cause and is never used to challenge the Islamist agenda. Secularism is also an uncomfortable fit outside Western Europe and America, whose unique experiences gave birth to it. There is growing evidence of the crisis of secularism across the world. It is not the fault of those societies or people not being secular enough. It is due to unrealistic expectations from societies whose historical experiences, evolution and intellectual traditions are in dissonance with secularism. India has no word for secularism in any classical language because the concept or idea never existed. India managed its unparalleled diversity and pluralism using its own framework.

Secularism comes under great stress when dealing with the presence of two Abrahamic religions in a polity. And it becomes a harbinger of discord and conflict when other non-Abrahamic religions are also present because it privileges expansionist Abrahamic religions over others. The doctrine of the "basic structure" is itself a violation of the basic structure of the constitution because the Constitution envisioned no such arbitrary doctrine or gave effective veto power to an unelected judiciary.

The appeal to the Place of Worship (Special Provisions) Act, 1991 may still have some legitimacy if not for the violent antifarm laws protests and open rioting to oppose CAA supported by those now appealing to the sanctity of the legislation passed by Parliament. The 1991 Act is draconian. It was passed without any consultation with or regard for the affected communities, bars judicial review, mandates an arbitrary retrospective cut-off date, and closes the constitutional and legal route to justice for an entire community.

Then there is the argument to protect the post-1947 social and political compact with its socialist-secular core. Such nostalgic arguments mistakenly assume that the old system is worth saving, that it had popular legitimacy and that it can be saved. It produced only misery and regular riots. It could neither produce economic growth, social upliftment or cultural rejuvenation. It was always a topdown imposition by an ultra-minority of urban elites and collapsed as democratic deepening accelerated after the '80s. It can't be saved, not least due to the utter incompetence of its champions, busy mocking Hindu beliefs, demonising Hindus and ridiculing their concerns and civilisational aspirations. They are trying to do to Shiva what they did to Rama and Ayodhya for decades. They clearly do not understand Shaivism or the undercurrents and faultlines at work.

The way forward is to accept the burden of the past and restore the Hindu sites — the only ethical thing to do. A grand bargain, something which should have been done in Ayodhya in the 1980s itself.

It's about criminalising dissent

Doing away with sedition without touching UAPA will not bring much change

Raishree Chandra

SINCE 2010, INDIANS have spent nearly 3 million hours in prison on charges of sedition. An accused is most likely to spend up to 50 days in prison until a trial court grants bail and up to 200 days until a high court does so. The exhaustive database of Article 14 (corroborated by the NCRB data) reveals that more than 13,000 Indians are trapped in a black hole since 2010.

It is time, therefore, that the sedition law (IPC, Section 124 A) is consigned to the bin. However, as we wait with bated expectation after the Supreme Court order (to keep the 152-year old sedition law in abeyance), and after Prime Minister Narendra Modi's willingness to reconsider the colonial law in the spirit of Azadi ka Amrit Mahotsav, a cautionary check is in order.

There are reasons to be sceptical. Not too long back, the BJP had attacked the Congress for its 2019 election promise to do away with dark laws like the AFSPA and sedition. Calling the Congress manifesto a "document of Pakistan's conspiracies", PM Modi accused the Congress of hatching a conspiracy to destabilise the country and "demoralise" its soldiers. One could, of course, argue that election speeches are not reliable indicators of intent. But the zeal of the ruling regime in criminalising dissent is a matter of record. The Article 14 archive reveals that 2,862 citizens were charged with sedition during the anti-CAA protests; 133 farmers (and representatives) during the farm protests of 2021; 42 persons after the Pulwama attack, and 59 journalists for reportage on the farm bills, Covid-19, Hathras gang rape, citizenship and for being critical of the government were charged with sedition in the last seven years. There has been a 28 per cent increase in the number of sedition cases filed each year after 2014.

It is this track record that makes one suspicious of the government's intent. But perhaps there's a change of heart, a change of tack. Sceptic reasoning ought to make as much room for doubt as for a promise. In either case, my argument is that any move to remove sedition is imperative, but by itself, it's only a half-measure and a half-hearted measure. As long as the Unlawful Activities Prevention Act (UAPA) is untouched, dissent will continue to be criminalised. The government will claim moral victory but nothing really will change in substance. Here are two reasons why.

First, the sedition law under Section 124 A is a part of the Indian Penal Code (IPC) where along with penal provisions, there are safeguards and constitutional remedies. Bail is easier, there is provision for anticipatory bail, police have to file a charge sheet within 90 days, failing which the accused arrested is entitled to bail, and so on. These safeguards are not available to those charged under UAPA. As an anti-terror law, it has more stringent provisions and far fewer safeguards. For instance, UAPA permits detention without a charge sheet for upto 180 days, creates a presumption of guilt, places the burden of proof on the accused and creates a strong presumption against bail.

against Dali.

In April, a single-judge bench of the Allahabad High Court granted bail to three Kashmiri students accused of shouting pro-Pakistan slogans in a T-20 cricket match. Justice Ajay Bhanot remarked eloquently: "The unity of India is not made of bamboo reeds which will bend to the passing winds of empty slogans...the foundations of our nation are more enduring." In contrast, especially after the SC's Watali judgment (2019), bail has become a virtual impossibility for the UAPA accused. The numerous bail rejections for the Bhima Koregaon and Delhi riots accused is a case in point.

Second, let's just look at the conviction rate of the sedition law. Arrests under sedition law may have risen but the conviction rate is as low as 2.25 per cent. Of the 399 cases that were registered between 2014-20, just nine were convicted. The ministry of home affairs data further reveals that of the cases registered, charge sheets were filed only in 169 cases. This tells us that the sedition law is not a very effective tool for incarceration.

The UAPA is a better bet. The conviction rate is higher. NCRB data reveals that between 2014-2020, 27.5 per cent of the cases saw convictions. But what is more damning is that very few cases even reach the stage where innocence or guilt is proven. In the seven-year period, of the 6,900 cases, only 4.5 per cent of the cases sent for trial reached the stage of completion. And we are not yet talking of cases that languish in protracted pre-trial and trial period. 95.4 per cent cases were still pending trial at the end of each year between 2014-2020.

Many of those charged under sedition are also slapped with charges under the UAPA — Umar Khalid, Sharjeel Imam, Tahir Hussain, Khalid Saifi, Siddique Kappan to name a few. For all the attention the sedition law has received, it is the UAPA that does the heavy lifting.

It is expected that after the SC interim order, those imprisoned under the sedition law are likely to get immediate bail. However, retired Justice Manmohan Singh is, reportedly, of the view that this may not be the case for those charged with the draconian UAPA. He rightly says that the "UAPA contains many aspects of the sedition law with far-reaching consequences".

Civil liberties stand precariously poised in India today. The removal of the sedition law makes a dent, but it will be small and ineffective if the road-roller of civil liberties — the UAPA — remains untouched. We can celebrate the sedition law's much-awaited demise, but let's not miss the wood for the trees.

'Unworkable' (IE, May 21). The recommendation of the PM's Economic Advisory Council to launch an urban equivalent of the Mahatma Gandhi National Rural Employment Guarantee Act deserves serious attention. Urban unemployment is higher than rural, and though income levels are also higher, so is the cost of living. Though urban employment is not seasonal, it is sporadic, and the current trend of contract employment aggravates the problem. An employment guarantee could mitigate many hardships that the urban poor face and prevent reverse migration to rural areas, as so sadly seen during the pandemic. Above all, as the Mahatma Gandhi National Rural Employment Guarantee Act shows, guaranteed employment enables the poor to live with a modicum of dignity. Some states such as Kerala, Odisha and Rajasthan have seen the merit in an urban guaranteed employment scheme and it is time the nation too considers adopting it. The benefits will far outweigh

The writer has lucidly explained how the Centre can motivate the states to compete and cooperate to create a winwin situation required for the country's development. This is because the competitive spirit in federalism goads states to try each other for far-reaching reforms. Similarly, these states can join hands for the synergy required for undertaking innovative projects. The problem surfaces when the party ruling at the Centre does not get well with opposition parties ruling in states. They face problems in getting their share even in the much-touted federal tax, the Good and Services Tax. Apparently, this situation prevents these states from undertaking reforms and other welfare schemes. Unfortunately, the dwarfed NITI Aayog, the forerunner of the all-powerful Planning Commission often hesitates to come to their rescue when faced with such discriminatory situations.

Is unexpected hepatitis in children linked to Covid-19?

DR ARVINDER SINGH SOIN

From The Indian Express panel of specialists, exclusive insight

SEVERAL COUNTRIES are reporting severe hepatitis in children who have contracted Covid-19. A study from Madhya Pradesh, which is yet to be peer-reviewed, has shown that 8% of children in the group being investigated reported a unique form of hepatitis and subsequent asymptomatic Covid-19 infection.

Can we say there is a link between Covid-19 and hepatitis in children?

In the West, there have been some cases of hepatitis, which are unexplained by previously known causes. And there have been publications that have been peer-reviewed, including one published in The Lancet last week, where they have talked about several children reporting unexplained hepatitis, where every parameter they test usually is found negative. The majority of them actually get well. But there has been a small number of cases where children have actually developed severe liver cases that need a transplant. That is obviously of concern.

The timing suggests it is related to Covid. Because the chronology is suggestive of Covid having a role as such a condition wasn't seen before the pandemic, the theory of a link is gaining ground. I am talking about the Lancet paper. In the non-peer-reviewed data from Madhya Pradesh, they found 37 cases of hepatitis out of 457 patients of Covid-19.

The Lancet study detected adenovirus in nearly 80% of the cases. Normally, this virus is fairly harmless. It causes gastritis, diarrhoea and vomiting but so far has not caused any severe illness. But now nearly 80% of children with hepatitis have this virus. It is still not known if it is causally related. Researchers even analysed the type of adenovirus and found a

So, the theory going around is that somehow the immune system of children affected by Covid have developed abnormalities or been compromised to such an extent that the adenovirus, which is normally harmless, has

Could this have been triggered by an immune response caused by Covid-19?

Covid-19 activates the immune system. Whether you are symptomatic or not, you have some antigens. Over time, they will get absorbed and stimulate the immune cells, little by little, even long after the infection is gone. It is like inciting the enemy during a cease-fire. So, even the slightest skirmish on the bor-tion of Covid can trigger a large immune response. And when a large immune response happens, the patient can get hepatitis. Can we say children are at an increased risk of liver dysfunction after recovery?

the immune system activated by the viruses and the antigen hanging around in the gut after recovery from Covid, even a minor infection caused by the adenovirus or a repeat infec-

It would be fair to say there is a risk of liver dysfunction after you recover from Covid. But the proportion of children or patients who get it is not large. It would be somewhere between the 10-20% mark. But then that translates to a significant number. In all seroprevalence studies done in India, 60-70% of children have been found to have Covid antibodies. So, if you are surmising that 70% of kids have developed infection and antibodies, they are susceptible to this kind of hepatitis. That's still a large number.

What are the preventive measures? There are two things that you can do. First, prevent kids from getting Covid-19. That is easier said than done. We know that even without vaccination in India, 70% of them had antibodies. Second, boost immunity with nutritious food, adequate sleep and intake of vitamin and mineral supplements whenever needed.

I would say that families that have had Covid-19 infection in their homes are very likely to have children who will be at risk of developing hepatitis. They should see a paediatrician and make sure that nutritious food and supplements, if necessary, are given.

When should parents visit a specialist?

As I said, if a kid is known to have had Covid-19 in the past, he/she should follow up with a paediatrician for at least three months after recovery. Even if the parent has had Covid-19, it is likely that the child has been exposed. This is true for children younger than eight years because it is very difficult to contain them.

STORAGE GAIN IN WHEAT

Extra weight gained from absorption of moisture. How it is calculated, and why Punjab agencies want a waiver HAVING ALREADY got a relaxation in Fair and Average Quality (FAQ) norms for wheat procurement this season, Punjab's state procurement agencies are now seeking a waiver of 'storage gain'. If allowed, the waiver would stand at around Rs 150 crore for the current season.

HOW IT WORKS: Wheat tends to gain some weight during storage. This is what is known as 'storage gain' and it mostly happens due to absorption of moisture by the endosperm of the wheat. State procurement agencies are required to give 1 kg wheat extra per quintal to the Food Corporation of India (FCI) to compensate for storage gain.

While 20% of wheat procured by the FCI and the state procurement agencies, is moved immediately after procurement, it is usually on the remaining 80%, which is moved out after July 1 every year, that storage gain has to be accounted for due to longer storage duration.

CALCULATIONS THIS YEAR: This year 96 lakh metric tonnes (LMT) wheat was procured in Punjab by all agencies. As 80% of this figure comes to 76.80 LMT, it means that storage gain would be around 7.68 lakh quintals on this. At MSP rate of Rs 2,015, it would cost state agencies Rs 154.74 crore if they are unable to supply 7.68 lakh quintals extra during movement of 76.80 LMT wheat. The state agencies argue that grain procured this year is both shrivelled and broken and therefore will not gain much weight.

Battery-like device that captures carbon dioxide while charging

RESEARCHERS HAVE developed a low-cost device that can selectively capture carbon dioxide gas while it charges. Then, when it discharges, the carbon dioxide can be released in a controlled way and collected to be reused or disposed of responsibly, the University of Cambridge said in a press release. The device has been described in the journal Nanoscale.

The supercapacitor consists of two electrodes of positive and negative charge. The team tried alternating from a negative to a positive voltage to extend the charging time from previous experiments. This improved the supercapacitor's ability to capture carbon.

"We found that that by slowly alternating the current between the plates we can capture double the amount of carbon dioxide than before," the release quoted lead researcher Dr Alexander Forse as saying. "Our next questions will involve investigating the precise mechanisms of carbon dioxide capture and improving them. Then it will be a question of scaling up."

Behind current food inflation

The current inflation is supply shock-driven — and more about calories than proteins and micronutrients. What has been the impact of global calorie inflation on India, and what factors will determine trends?

ANNUAL CONSUMER FOOD INFLATION (%)

HARISH DAMODARAN& PARTHASARATHI BISWAS

NEW DELHI, PUNE, MAY 22

THE WORLD and India are witnessing a resurgence of food inflation. Between September 2021 and April 2022, consumer food price inflation in India has risen from 0.68% to 8.38% year on year. And with the UN Food and Agriculture Organization's (FAO) food price index hitting new highs, it has reignited memories of the last great commodity inflation (from the mid-2000s till around 2012-13, briefly interrupted by the 2008-09 financial crisis).

But there's a difference between the two food inflationary episodes, especially in India.

The former was a structural, demand-led inflation, driven by rising incomes. Real incomes going up resulted in declining per capita consumption of cereals and sugar (which basically deliver calories) alongside growing demand for foods incorporating proteins (milk, pulses, egg, fish and meat) and micronutrients (fruits & vegetables). This dietary diversification also had a bearing on inflation. Between 2004-05 and 2012-13, the cumulative rise in the wholesale price index was 93.1% for sugar. 99.9% for cereals and 48.1% for edible oils; and to 108.1% for milk, 110.1% for vegetables, 141.3% for pulses and 144.5% for eggs, meat & fish.

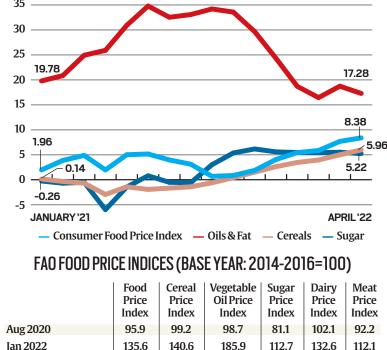

Now and then

The current food inflation, by contrast, is idiosyncratic and supply shock-driven. And it is more "calorie" than "protein" price inflation, a term coined by the former Reserve Bank of India deputy governor Subir Gokarn.

Since August 2020, when global demand started returning with the gradual lifting of lockdowns, the FAO's vegetable oil, cereal and sugar price indices have soared 141%, 71% and 50%, respectively. These exceed the 32% cumulative rise in the meat price index and 44% for dairy over the same period till April 2020.

Moreover, as the table shows, much of this inflation predated the war in Ukraine. Ukraine had drought in 2020-21, while Russia, in December 2020, announced export curbs on wheat, corn, barley, rye, sunflower and rapeseed for quelling domestic inflation. These coupled with shortages of migrant workers in Malaysia's oil palm plantations — drove up global prices of edible oils and cereals.

The war only worsened things - by squeezing supplies from the two countries having a substantial share of the world's wheat, corn, Indonesia's restrictions on palm oil shipments to contain local inflation, and surging petroleum crude prices made it all the more attractive to divert sugar, corn, palm and soyabean oil for bio-fuel production.

There has been no such major inflation in proteins. The FAO's dairy and meat prices indices have gone up, but that has had more to do with increased cost of feed ingredients.

Impact on India

The transmission of the higher global calorie inflation to prices in India has been limited largely to vegetable fats. From the chart, it can be seen that retail edible oil inflation ruled at 20-35% levels through 2021, well before the surge in the overall consumer food price index from January. Interestingly, inflation in the other two calorie food commodities – cereals and open to imbibing from

In the introduction to his biography, Sen writes, "He was simultaneously interested in religion, politics,

law and jurisprudence,

commerce and agrarian

enterprise, Constitutions and civic rights, the unjust treatment of women and the appalling condition of the Indian poor... And he studied matters not in the abstract or in academic

The main reason for no imported inflation, at least until recently, in cereals and sugar is because of the country being a surplus producer of both. India's exports of cereals and sugar were valued at a record $12.9 billion and $4.6 billion respectively in 2021-22. Also, despite some 32.3 million tonnes (mt) of cereals being shipped out, overflowing stocks in government godowns still enabled an unprecedented 105.6 mt of grain to be sold through the public distribution system.

There has been a pick-up in cereal inflation of late. But that, basically in wheat, has come on the back of crop yield loss caused by the sudden heat wave. In other words, not imported. The transmission mechanism here has worked the other way round: With lower domestic production and depleting stocks prompting the Centre to ban wheat exports from India, global prices have firmed up - translating into higher inflation for importing countries.

What about proteins?

All-India modal or most-quoted retail prices of dals (split pulses) are lower now than a year ago. That includes chana (Rs 70 versus Rs 75/kg), tur/arhar (Rs 97.5 versus Rs 110), urad (Rs 97 versus Rs 105) and moong (Rs 98.5 versus Rs 105). The only exception is masoor, whose modal price of Rs 90/kg is higher than the Rs 85 at this time last year, according to Department of Consumer Affairs data.

The crash in international skim milk powder and butter fat prices has forced some correction in the domestic market as well. One can expect a similar easing of egg and meat prices. The heat subsiding should help reduce growing time and mortality of poultry birds.

On the whole, while there has been a recovery of demand from the reopening of hotels and other lockdown restrictions going, it is unlikely to trigger any "protein inflation". The demand-pull from rising incomes isn't strong enough this time round.

There is not much inflation in onion, potato and watermelons, cucumber, pumpkin, okra/ladies finger, gourds and other vegetables. Tomato prices are high, but not abnormally so.

Summing up

Food inflation resulting from war, drought, unseasonal rains and heat waves is different from structural demand-pull factors. The inflation now is not only more of the former, but also in foods mainly delivering calories rather than proteins, vitamins and minerals. That, to some extent, makes it worse than the previous inflation, which, in Gokarn's words, was "an inevitable consequence of rising affluence".

While high prices would also induce supply response from farmers, a lot hinges on the monsoon. Last year's monsoon was "normal" overall, but marked by an extended dry spell in July and then too much rain from late-August, followed by heavy unseasonal showers in December-January. One has to see how normal the "normal" forecast by the India Meteorological Department turns out to be.

Meanwhile, the good news is the Centre, on Saturday, cutting the excise duty on diesel by Rs 6/litre and many states also announcing reductions. That should have a further salutary effect on food inflation in the coming days.

Ram Mohan Roy's legacy and its renewed relevance, 250 years on

PAROMITA CHAKRABARTI NEW DELHI, MAY 22

ONE OF the most influential social and religious reformers of the 19th century, Ram Mohan Roy, born on May 22, 1772, in what was then Bengal Presidency's Radhanagar in Hooghly district, would have turned 250 on Sunday, Amid changing social and religious circumstances in India, Roy's work in the spheres of women's emancipation, modernising education and seeking changes to religious orthodoxy finds new relevance.

Early life

Born into a prosperous Brahmin family, Ram Mohan Roy grew up when orthodox caste practices such as child marriage, polygamy and dowry were prevalent among the higher castes. He was himself married more than once in his childhood. The family's affluence also made the best in education accessible to him. Roy knew Bengali and Persian, but also Arabic, Sanskrit, and later, English. His exposure to the literature and culture of these languages bred in him a scepticism towards religious dogmas and social strictures. In particular, he chafed at practices such as Sati; his own sister-in-law had been a victim of Sati after his elder brother's death.

This was a time when the Mughals were waning and the East India Company was on the ascendancy in Bengal. Roy spent considerable time studying the Vedas and the Upanishads, but also religious texts of Islam and Christianity. He was intrigued by the Unitarian faction of Christianity and drawn by the precepts of monotheism. He wrote extensively on matters of theology, polity and human rights, and translated Sanskrit texts into Bengali, making them accessible.

"Ram Mohan did not quite make a distinction between the religious and the secular. He believed religion to be the site of all fundamental changes. What he fought was not religion but what he believed to be its perversion... (Rabindranath) Tagore called him a 'Bharatpathik' by which he meant to say that Ram Mohan combined in his person the underlying spirit of Indic civilisation, its spirit of pluralism, tolerance and a cosmic respect for all forms of life," said historian Amiya PSen, Sivadasani Fellow at the Oxford Centre for Hindu Studies, and author of Rammohun Roy: A Critical Biography (2012).

First among liberals

Even though British consolidation of power was still at a nascent stage at the time, Roy could sense that change was afoot. Confident about the strength of his heritage curing human happiness and freedom. That casteism, child marriage and other social ills. The Atmiya Sabha would make way for the Brahmo Sabha in 1828, set up with Debendranath Tagore, Rabindranath Tagore's father.

Sati abolition, other reforms

During his 15 years in Calcutta, Roy became a prominent public intellectual. He campaigned for the modernisation of education, in particular the introduction of a Western curriculum, and started several educational institutions. In 1817, he collaborated with Scottish philanthropist David Hare to set up the Hindu College (now, Presidency University). The Anglo-Hindu School followed in 1822 and, in 1830, he assisted Alexander Duff in setting up the General Assembly's Institution (later Scottish Church College).

His relentless advocacy alongside contemporaries such as Ishwar Chandra Vidyasagar finally led to the abolition of Sati under the governor-generalship of William Bentinck in 1829. Roy argued for the property rights of women, and petitioned the British for freedom of the press (in 1829 and 1830).

His Brahmo Sabha, which later became the Brahmo Samaj, evolved as a reaction against the upper-caste stranglehold on social customs. During the Bengal Renaissance, it ushered in social changes and birthed the Brahmo religion, a reformed spiritual Hinduism that believes in monotheism and the uniformity of all men, irrespective of caste, class or creed.

Non-conformism brought its share of infamy. Roy, who was given the title of Raja by the Mughal emperor Akbar II, and who was among the first Indians to gain recognition in the UK and in America for his radical thoughts, was also often attacked by his own countrymen who felt threatened by his reformist agenda, and by British reformers and functionaries whose views differed from his.

School trustee Krishna Damani told The Indian Express that usually, "follow speedboats" accompany the rowers and act during emergencies at most rowing venues. But Calcutta Rowing Club secretary Chandan Roy Chowdhury said intervention by activists had put an end to this practice at Rabindra Sarobar, which is shared by all rowing clubs in the city.

"We call the rescue speedboats 'follow boats' and they mandatorily accompany the rowers everywhere in India. What has happened here is that a few self-styled environmentalists were constantly writing to the Kolkata Metropolitan Development Authority to stop the use of speedboats to prevent water pollution and safeguard fish. We received an order from the Authority on May 18 that speedboats could no longer be used," Chowdhury said.

"Rowing started here in 1928 and for the first time, such a tragic incident has happened. We are devastated."

According to those who knew the two students, rowing was a passion for Pushan and Souryadeep. But in the end, that extra practice session proved to

Arjun Singh returns to TMC, jolt to Bengal BJP

Says BJP losing ground in Bengal, party calls exit 'huge loss'

SWEETY KUMARI KOLKATA, MAY 22

DAYS AFTER criticising the Central government over its jute policy, BJP MP from Barrackpore, Arjun Singh, on Sunday returned to the Trinamool Congress (TMC).

Singh's return to the TMC nearly three years after he had left the party ahead of the 2019 Lok Sabha elections is yet another blow to the BJP in West Bengal, plagued by the exit of several MLAs and leaders since its defeat in the last year's Assembly elections in the state. The BJP also conceded that Singh leaving the party was a huge loss for them. "What can we say if someone wants to do politics for their personal benefit. But it's a huge loss (to the party)," BJP national secretary Anupam Hazra said.

Addressing a press conference after joining the ruling TMC in the presence of its national general secretary Abhishek Banerjee at his Camac Street office in Kolkata, the Barrackpore MP said, "The way TMC is working on the development of Bengal is worth appreciating. I am from the jute mill area where people have been suffering due to the Centre's unjust

The BJP is losing ground in the state because its politics is limited to air-conditioned rooms and social media, he claimed. "The BIP as an organisation is limited to Facebook. It is not possible to do politics only on Facebook, Ground politics is important in Bengal. I am back in the party as I was facing problems working for the development of the people of Bengal," he added.

On holding the MP's post as a BJP member, he said, "Two TMC MPs who joined the BJP should first resign from the post first. If they do, I too will resign. If the party asks me, I will resign in a minute."

Abhishek Banerjee said on Twitter, "Extending a warm welcome to Arjun Singh who rejected

Sulking BJP 'strongman' now back in TMC camp

ATRIMITRA& SWEETY KUMARI

KOLKATA, MAY 22

ENDING DAYS of speculation, BJP vice-president and the party's Barrackpore MP Arjun Singh joined the Trinamool Congress on Sunday — the latest in a long list of BJP leaders to return to the /lamata Banerjee-led party.

Singh is among the biggest leaders to return to the TMC.

Within a month of the TMC's landslide victory in the Assembly election, Mamata's lieutenant Mukul Roy resigned from the BJP and joined his old party in the presence of the TMC leadership. He Joyprakash Majumder, Babul upriyo, among many others. However, according to a senior TMC leader, Singh's homecoming can only be compared to

was followed by Rajib Banerjee,

Mukul Roy's in scale. "TMC suffered the most when Mukul Roy, Arjun Singh and Shuvendu Adhikari left the party. Mukul has already returned and Arjun joined today. So, it's a big gain for the TMC and a huge, huge setback for the BJP," the leader said.

Singh's family originally hails from Siwan of Bihar, a connection that helped him build the TMC organisation in the industrial belt of North 24 Parganas, where most of the voters are Hindi-speaking migrants from Bihar and Uttar Pradesh.

In 2001, he became TMC MLA from Bhatpara and three more wins from the seat followed. In March 2019, ahead of the signed as TMC MLA and joined the party. His exit proved to be a setback for the TMC, which lost its organisation in the Barrackpore industrial belt and the larger North 24 Parganas. In the elections that year, Singh defeated TMC's Dinesh Trivedi to be elected BJPMP from Barrackpore. Seen as a 'strongman', Singh has a string of criminal cases against him, including on charges of corruption, attempt to murder, fraud and rioting. Though Singh was summoned by the state CID and police in many of these cases, he wasn't arrested. All the cases are under investigation. Over the last few months. Singh has been openly critical of the new BJP leadership in the state, with sources saying he felt sidelined under Sukanta Majumdar, the new state party chief.

Tour of Duty: Army's inclusive plan for new recruits likely to be ready by month end

KRISHN KAUSHIK NEW DELHI, MAY 22

THE ARMY is finalising the finer details of the Tour of Duty plan, which is planned to replace the existing structure of joining the force. Sources aware of the details told The Indian Express that the final structure of the programme could be ready as early as by May end.

Once the Army approves the plan, it will be up to the government to announce and implement it. Defence officials are hopeful that the government will give a go ahead soon as no new recruitment has taken place

There is a vacancy of more than 1 lakh Junior Commissioned Officers of Other Ranks in the Army at the moment, according to data shared by the Defence Ministry with Parliament on March 28. It also noted that while more than 90 recruitment rallies each were held in 2017, 2018 and 2019, only 47 were held in 2020-2021, and just four in 2021-2022, due to the pandemic.

Minister of State for Defence Ajay Bhatt stated that "all recruitment rallies by Army Recruiting Offices (AROs)/Zonal Recruiting Offices (ZROs) stand suspended due to COVID-19 pandemic". The suspension of recruitment in the armed forces has become a major concern among the youth. Defence Minister Rajnath Singh was even confronted by angry youth at some of his rallies in the run-up to the UP Assembly elections earlier this year.

While initially planned as a three-year Tour of Duty, the final structure could make it for four to five years, as one-year training and two-year service after that. it was felt was too short a time period. At the moment jawans retire after 17 years of service.

Unlike the current structure. where soldiers are inducted into the regiments based on their caste and the region where they come from, an inheritance of the days of the British empire, the new structure will make it pan-India and independent of the caste.

There are regiments like Rajputana, Jat, Sikh, Jammu and Kashmir, Madras etc, which have officers from all across the country, but the soldiers largely come from their respective regions and for some regiments, they belong to just a particular caste. Some regiments have soldiers from more than one region, though.

The new Tour of Duty system will slowly remove such barriers. allowing any applicant from any part of the country to be able to oin the Army.

The Tour of Duty is also expected to reduce the Army's pension burden, as the country has a large population of retired servicemen. For the current fiscal, the government has allocated nearly Rs 1.2 lakh crore for pensions for the Defence Ministry and the armed forces, which is about a quarter of the total defence budget and larger than the capital acquisition allocation, FULL REPORTON

A political message wrapped in hyperbole: Tripura minister compares Biplab to Tagore, Gandhi, Einstein, raises eyebrows Sources said Nath's comquick to react to Nath's com-

DEBRAJ DEB

AGARTALA, MAY 22

A WEEK after Biplab Kumar Deb stepped down as Chief Minister of Tripura, making way for Manik Saha, state Law Minister Ratan Lal Nath stirred the still simmering political pot by comparing the former CM with Nobel laureate Rabindranath Tagore, Mahatma Gandhi, Swami Vivekananda and Albert Einstein, among others.

Speaking at an event at Kamalpur, 93 km from the Agartala, on Friday, Nath, who is known to be a close associate of Deb since before the BJP came to power in Tripura in 2018, said, "Of the 50 years of my political career, I've been MLA for 29 years, been in politics for 20 more. I've seen everyone from Sachindra Lal Singh (first CM of Tripura)... I have seen them all... Biplab Deb is what you can call the people's leader. He is an exception. He has given the state a new direction, a new dream," Nath said. And then, there was more:

'There is a reason why people are born where they are born... for example, Netaji Subhash Chandra Bose, Rabindranath Tagore, Mahatma Gandhi, Vivekananda in our country or Einstein... not everyone is born everywhere. It's good for Tripura that Biplab

Kumar Deb was born here." While the clearly hyperbolic

Deb's removal as CM hasn't gone down well with a number of BJP members remarks raised eyebrows considering the sudden removal of Deb as CM hasn't gone down well with a number of BJP leaders and workers, the party leadership has so far been guarded in its response to Nath's comments.

Asked for his reaction, Chief Minister Saha said Saturday: "Of course, there is no scope to disregard Biplab Deb's contributions. I think it would be proper to ask him (Nath) about it."

Several Tripura BJP leaders, still to come to terms with the suddenness of Deb's removal, said his contribution towards bringing the BJP to power in Tripura can't be ignored.

"He was instrumental in ending 25 years of Left Front rule," said a leader while refusing to comment on why Nath compared Deb to Tagore, Gandhi and Vivekananda.

ments could be aimed at sending out a larger message to the central leadership of the party. While the BJP leadership has insisted that Deb was replaced as CM to allow him more time to work for the organisation and prepare for the 2023 polls, the reason for his removal is still contested, especially since Deb hasn't yet been given any political charge.

Sources said Nath, 71, was probably trying to build a hyperreal narrative to boost Deb's political prospects given that the former CM doesn't have a clear role yet. They also said Nath's flattery was probably aimed at exerting pressure on the new CM. Opposition parties have been ments. Sudip Roy Barman, who after stints in the Trinamool Congress and BJP is now back in the Congress, termed Nath's comments "insane". CPI(M) state secretary Jitendra Chaudhary said Deb's tenure as CM was replete with violence, economic crises, and shortage of work and food in villages, "To compare him with Mahatma Gandhi, Swami Vivekananda or Einstein is ridiculous...' TMC leaders said Nath's comments were mere "flattery". Amid the criticism, Nath, however, has stood his ground and said he didn't need to take lessons from people who don't agree with the great leaders of India.

WORLD BOXING CHAMPION NIKHAT ZAREEN

6'People told my father that boxing was a men's sport

World champion boxer Nikhat Zareen talks about how people ridiculed her choice to become a boxer as a girl, her struggles in a conservative society and how she feels women boxers wearing hijab is a matter of choice. The session was moderated by Mihir Vasavda, Assistant Editor, The Indian Express Mihir Vasavda: How has it been since the bout?

I haven't slept a wink the whole night. As I was going through text messages and social media DMs (direct messages) on my phone, I didn't even realise that it was daybreak. I was excited talking to my family and loved ones.

Mihir Vasavda: Your journey started in Turkey in 2011 when you won the junior and youth boxing championship. Now, you have won the senior world championship in the same city. How has the 11-year run been?

My journey has been a roller-coaster ride with plenty of ups and downs. Winning this gold medal makes me feel that all those challenges and struggles were totally worth it because they made me strong enough to win this world championship medal.

Mihir Vasavda: You mention struggle. Was that one of the reasons why you got so emotional when the referee raised your hand after the bout and declared you as the winner? We haven't seen you this emotional in the

When my hand was raised, I was the happiest person on earth. At the same time, I was also feeling emotional as it had taken a lot of hard work and struggle to finally win the world championship medal.

It was my dream all these years to win a big medal and be a champion in the elite professional world of boxing. In the youth championships, I had made it to every final but I couldn't get a medal in the senior world championship.

During the world championship in 2016, I lost in the quarters and missed a medal. I have now won one after six years. I got an opportunity this time and all that hard work has finally paid off.

Mihir Vasavda: If we go back to where

I remember asking my father why there were no girls in the ring. Could only boys deliver a punch? He said, 'no beta, girls can also boxing

it all began, in Nizamabad, how there? What was your childhood

I belong to an orthodox society where people think that girls should only be at home, take care of domestic chores, get married and look after their family. But my father was an athlete and he knows the kind of life an athlete lives. He has always been there for me and supported me even when people told him, "Arre Jameel bhai, why have you trained your daughter in boxing; this is a men's sport (mardon ka khel hai). If she gets hit, her career will get hit, who will marry her? You already have four daughters." My father never listened to them and instead told me, "Beta, you focus on boxing and when you do well, these same people will want to take photographs with you." He never allowed their comments to get into my head and affect me. I feel blessed to have

I started out in 2009 and in a year, I won the national championship. I was selected for the national camp. I won my first international medal at the youth championship in Turkey in 2011. Since then, my dream goal was to win an Olympic gold medal for my country. I am working hard towards ikhat Zareen won the World Boxing Championships in Turkey on May 19, becoming only the fifth Indian woman to be crowned world champion (flyweight). But her story to the podium is also about breaking free from the shackles of patriarchy, tradition, mindset and, most importantly, from inhibitions. She is now setting her sights on the Olympic gold Mihir Vasavda: You mentioned the support you received from your parents. You have three sisters, what is your relationship with them like and what did you all bond over?

I have two older sisters and a younger one, who is seven years junior to me. Both my elder sisters are physiotherapists and were not interested in sports. I had always been interested in sports and used to be a bit of a tomboy those days, hanging out with the boys. I had a boyish short hair too and preferred wearing T-shirt and jeans. Nobody thought I was a girl. Perhaps, I became strong because I have been, what you would call, "rough-and-tough" since childhood.

Before boxing, was into athletics. Since there were no proper facilities and coaches, I would accompany my father to the Collector's competitive sports took place. I saw girls in every sport except boxing. I remember asking my father why there were no girls in the ring and if only boys could box? And he said "no beta, girls can also box but people think they don't have the guts to do so. That's why they don't send their girls to

That challenged me to take up boxing as I couldn't understand why people would think that girls weren't strong enough to take up such a sport. So, I thought, let's give it a try. Bachpan sey mujhe khatron ki khiladi khelne ka bahut shauk tha (I have always wanted to be a daredevil since my childhood). I didn't quite anticipate what awaited me.

I was the lone girl practising in that stadium among boys. Initially, I used to get hit a lot but I did not give up. Maybe training in that atmosphere, surrounded by boys, helped me steel my resolve.

Sriram Veera: I was watching an interview of your mother talking about an early sparring session of vours. It was with a boy and he hit you in your face. Your mother said that she started crying and saying 'beta tumse shaadi kaun karega?'

(Nikhat laughs) Let me tell you that story. That was my first sparring session and I was pitted against a boy who was very experienced. The coach shouted "box" and he started attacking me. I wasn't ready for his attack and got hit on my nose, which started bleeding along with my eye which got bruised as well.

I went home with bloodstains on my T-shirt. When I entered my house, I directly rushed into the bathroom and didn't come out until I had changed everything. I then stayed in my room, hiding my eye. But then my mother called me for dinner. We eat food together, while watching serials on TV, like every other household. This is the usual ritual but that day I chose to stay in my room. My mother got worried, barged in and seeing me bruised and black, she shivered. Then she started crying and said, "Beta maine tujhe boxing mein isliye nahi dala ki tera face kharab ho jaye (I didn't allow you to pursue boxing so that your face would get scarred)." She then said that no one would marry me. I replied, "arre ammi, tension nako lo, naam hoga toh dulhon ki line lag jayegi! (Dear mother, don't worry, once I make a name for myself, grooms will queue up at the doorstep).

Now she's used to it. Whenever I get hit, she casually tells me to apply some ice and says that it will be okay. Sometimes I feel she has become my coach. My parents watch all my bouts in every competition that I participate in and they now have a good idea of what boxing is. Whenever I have a match, my mother watches me closely and post-match calls me to review my performance, pulling me up on the mistakes I made during the fight. My parents have become my coaches and say things like, "Try to avoid clinching and play from a distance because your punches look clear then." I find it funny that there was a time when they didn't know anything about boxing and now they give me gyaan (laughs). But it feels nice that they've come a long way from their old mentality and have grown Sriram Veera: Heard you say once that your plan B was to join the police.

In my childhood, I dreamt of becoming an IPS officer. When you are young, most children will say that they want to be a pilot, police, doctor or teacher. These were the professions we knew about and because of that, I wanted to be in the police. Also, the uniform looked cool and when we were in school, IPS officers would visit us as chief guests during special events and programmes. I saw the respect they commanded. Whenever I looked at them, I told myself that one day I would wear a uniform like them and come as a chief guest to my school. That's how I started dreaming about becoming an IPS officer.

Nitin Sharma: We talked about the gold medal you won as a junior boxer in 2011. You were 15 years old back then. Ten years later, you have got the senior title. What do these achievements mean to you and do you feel the senior title came a bit late?

Medal der aaya lekin durust aaya (better late than never). The medal I won in 2011 was memorable because it was my firstever international competition where I got a standing ovation on the podium... our national anthem was being played in front of so many people. I was overwhelmed. That experience will always remain etched in my memory.

Still, I was a kid in a junior level championship. The elite level is very different. The competition is better and the pressure, higher. In the juniors, you don't know your opponent - all you can think about is to enter the ring, beat the opponent and win the bout. But in the senior category, you know about your opponents' styles, strengths and weakness. So, you end up having to plan your moves strategically. There is a lot more pressure on your mind at this level. And yet, I managed to win the gold medal for my country. I am really happy about that. this and keep winning medals.

Nitin Sharma: In your weight category, you have had to compete with MC Mary Kom, whom you have idolised, over the past three-four years. We also saw your bid to get into trials against her for the Tokyo Olympic qualifiers. She did not want the trials and it turned into a spat. The bout eventually took place but how do you see her after that incident? Also how do you feel about the CWG trials knowing that Mary Kom is expected to take part?

She is an experienced boxer with many records in her past. So based on that it was her right, perhaps. But when two boxers enter the ring, only the one who's technically sounder wins. Because of that, when our trials took place, she won and was selected for the Tokyo Olympic qualifiers. I congratulated her on qualifying but unfortunately, she couldn't win a medal at the Tokyo Olympics.

When I lost in the trials, I decided to move on from Tokyo and focus on the Paris Olympic Games. With regard to the Commonwealth Games trials, I heard she's going for the trials in the 48-kg category, so I don't think we'll face each other.

Sandeep Dwivedi: What is so special about Hyderabad that so many worldbeating women athletes come out of the city? Is it common aggression, that is so important in sport and that you share with athletes like Saina Nehwal and Sania Mirza, which propels you to such heights?

Even I was nervous about the world championship. how I would play against my opponent, whether I would be able to make her play according to my style and dominate her or whether she would trap me in her boxing style. Such thoughts mind. I won all my bouts with unanimous decisions and I am happy about it.

Sandeep Dwivedi: You have been good friends with the likes of Tokyo Olympics champion Neeraj Chopra apart from CWG and Asian Games champion Vinesh Phogat and athletes like Tejaswin Shankar. Tell us how did this sharing of ideas start?

We met when all of us were going through a bad phase. We were suffering from injuries and were feeling low. Vinesh had a knee injury, I had a shoulder injury, Neeraj had issues with hamstring and even Tejaswin was struggling with some wound We were rehabilitating at the JSW Sport Centre in Bengaluru. We would eat meals and roam together always. So, it all started from there. Then we shared each other's stories and understood how much struggle each one of us had to face. That's how our friendship started. After the recovery, everybody got busy and now, Neeraj Chopra is an Olympic champion while Vinesh is a Commonwealth and Asian Games champion. They have made the country proud and seeing them achieve their personal highs inspired me to work hard. When they can do it on the world stage, it inspires me to push myself harder and achieve big on the world stage too. We can all meet together at the next Games.

Mihir Vasavda: You have mentioned a lot of ups, downs and struggles in your career. Was there any moment in your life, in your career to be precise, that shaped you as a boxer or inspired you to pack a punch?

Yes, before my shoulder injury, I was not mature enough. After the injury, I learnt a lot. I got to know who my real friends were and who weren't. Because most of them did not even message me or ask me how I was doing. But still I stayed positive and worked hard on my rehabilitation. I made my comeback in 2018 and took some time to recover before I won the gold at the Strandja Memorial in 2019. I have never looked back and have always thought of progressing ahead.

Mihir Vasavda: You have been a pathbreaker your entire career. You come from an orthodox family and have seen all kinds of struggle. In the last two-three weeks, we have seen referees and some boxers wearing hijab during the world championships. All over the world, there is a debate about whether athletes should be allowed to wear the hijab or not. In the normal course of life, too, there is a debate about this. What's your take?

According to me, it's their choice. If they feel comfortable, they should wear it. If they don't feel comfortable, they should wear whatever is normal for them. It's absolutely their choice. So, there is no need for my comment. I like boxing in shorts and a vest and nobody is forcing me to wear a hijab or stopping me from wearing shorts and a vest. It's everybody's choice and we should respect that.

Mihir Vasavda: It's known that you are a big Salman Khan fan and like watching Hindi movies. If a biopic is to be made on your life, which actor would you like to portray you?

I haven't given it a thought yet. When a movie is made on me, I don't know which actress will be on top of the charts at that time. Right now, I want Alia Bhatt to portray me. Kyunki usko bhi dimple aata hai and mere ko bhi dimple aata hai (Because she has got dimples like me). I guess she can portray me.

UKRAINE RULED out a ceasefire or any territorial concessions to Moscow as Russia stepped up its attack in the country's east and south, pounding the Donbas and Mykolaiv regions with air strikes

"The war must end with the complete restoration of Ukraine's territorial integrity and sovereignty," Ukraine's presidential chief of staff Andriy Yermak said in a Twitter post on Sunday.

The comments came as Polish President Andrzej Duda told lawmakers in Kyiv on Sunday the international community had to demand Russia's complete withdrawal and that sacrificing any of it would be a "huge blow" to the entire West.

"Worrying voices have appeared, saying that Ukraine should give in to (President Vladimir) Putin's demands," Duda said, the first foreign leader to address Ukrainian parliament in person since Russia's Feb. 24 invasion. "Only Ukraine has the right to decide about its future,"

'I want to reset my brain': Female US veterans turn to psychedelic therapy

ERNESTO LONDOÑO TIJUANA, MEXICO

PLUMES OF incense swirled through the dimly lit living room as seven women took turns explaining what drove them to sign up for a weekend of psychedelic therapy at a villa in northern Mexico with sweeping ocean views

A former US Marine said she hoped to connect with the spirit of her mother, who killed herself 11 years ago. An Army veteran said she had been sexually assaulted by a relative as a child. A handful of veterans said they had been sexually assaulted by fellow service members.

The wife of a Navy bomb disposal expert choked up as she lamented that years of unrelenting combat missions had turned her husband into an absent, dysfunctional father.

Kristine Bostwick, 38, a former Navy corpsman, said she hoped that putting her mind through ceremonies with mindaltering substances would help her make peace with the end of a turbulent marriage and perhaps ease the migraines that had become a daily torment.

"I want to reset my brain from the bottom up," she said during the introductory session of a recent three-day retreat, wiping away tears. "My kids deserve it. I deserve it."

A growing body of research into the therapeutic benefits of psychedelic therapy has generated enthusiasm among some psychiatrists and venture capitalists.

Measures to decriminalise psychedelics, fund research into their healing potential and establish frameworks for their medicinaluse have been passed with bipartisan support in city councils and state legislatures across the United States in recent years.

Much of the expanding appeal of such treatments has been driven by veterans of America's wars in Afghanistan and Iraq. Having turned to experimental therapies to treat post-traumatic stress disorder, traumatic brain injuries, addiction and depression, many former military members have become effusive advocates for a wider embrace

The Mission Within, on the outskirts of Tijuana, is run by Dr. Martín Polanco, who since 2017 has focused almost exclusively on treating veterans.

Dr. Polanco said he had treated more than 600 American veterans in Mexico. "They understand what it takes to achieve peak performance.

In the beginning, he said, he treated male veterans almost exclusively. But recently, he started receiving many requests from female veterans and military wives and began running women-only retreats. With the exception of clini-

In Mexico, two of the substances that Dr. Polanco administers — ibogaine, a plant-based psychoactive commonly used to treat addiction, and 5-MeO-DMT, a powerful hallucinogen derived from the poison of the Sonoran desert toad — are neither unlawful nor approved for

The women at the Mexico retreat understood the risks. But several said they had lost faith in conventional treatments like antidepressants and had heard enough inspiring stories from friends to take a leap of faith. NYT

POLICY WATCH EXTERNAL DEBT

India has space to attract $90 bn debt flows: RBI

GEORGE MATHEW MUMBAI, MAY 22

INDIA HAS the space to attract debt flows of another $90 billion (around Rs 693,000 crore), given the threshold level of the country's external debt, says a Reserve Bank of India study.

"The empirical results suggest that as against India's current external debt to GDP ratio of 20 per cent, the estimated threshold level is higher in the range between 23 per cent and 24 per cent of GDP, indicating space for attracting more debt flows of the order of $90 billion," says the RBI study on 'Growth maximising external debt of India'. Given the risk of amplifying external vulnerabilities because of higher exposure to external debt, the estimated space may be used carefully balancing the objective of growth and macro-stability,

India's debt market is being progressively opened up to the foreign capital in a careful and calibrated manner.

According to estimates, India's external debt stood at $614.9 billion as at end-December 2022. Commercial borrowings (CBs) at $226.4 billion, NRI deposits at $141.9 billion and short-term trade credit at $110.5 billion, together account for about 78 per cent of the total external debt. The external debt to GDP ratio as at end-December 2021 was 20.0 per cent.

The total external debt. which fell below the pre-crisis levels in the immediate aftermath of the pandemic lockdown, crossed the prepandemic levels as at end-December 2020 and consolidated further helped by NRI deposits crossing pre-pandemic levels as at end-June 2020, commercial borrowings crossing the pre-pandemic levels as at end September 2021 and shortterm trade credit crossing the pre-pandemic levels as at end-December 2021, the RBI said.

In contrast, India's external debt remained relatively immune to the global finan-

NRI deposits

Mumbai: Outstanding non-resident Indian (NRI) deposits in India fell by $2.875 billion to $139.020 billion in the financial year ended March 2022 as against $141.895 billion a year ago, according to the lat-

down $2.87 bn

India attracted only $3.23 billion NRI deposits in FY22 as against $7.36 billion a year ago. Nonresident external rupee account (NR(E)RA) witnessed a growth of $3.33 billion in FY22 as against $8.84 billion last year. FCNR (B) deposits declined by $3.55 billion in FY22. ENS

cial crisis (GFC) reflecting the resilience of commercial borrowings, the most growthsensitive and the largest component of India's external debt. "The resilience of commercial borrowings in the wake of the GFC stemmed largely from the relatively muted impact of GFC on growth in sharp contrast to that during GLD," the

At present, a rule-based dynamic limit for outstanding stock of ECBs at 6.5 per cent of GDP is in place. As India aims at higher, sustainable and inclusive growth, the need for attracting larger external debt flows within the estimated threshold may be assessed along with other external vulnerability parameters so that the growth objective is pursued while preserving overall macro-stability, the RBI study said.

External debt, by supplementing domestic savings, can help countries grow faster. But a large stock of external debt can potentially create vulnerabilities and dent growth prospects. Since the onset of the pandemic, many countries have expanded public spending to support the recovery, which has led to a build-up of their external debt, the IMF says.

FOCUS ON DISCLOSURES, COMPLIANCES FOR NEW-AGE COS

Front-running: Sebi likely to soon initiate stringent action

SANDEEP SINGH MUMBAI, MAY 22

CONCERNED OVER the recent case of front-running in the mutual fund industry and possibility of similar practices happening, the Securities and Exchange Board of India (Sebi) is likely to take stringent action, which may include action against top officials of the fund house. A source close to the development said Sebi is closely monitoring the situation and its actions may follow soon.

On May 19, Axis Mutual Fund terminated its chief dealer Viresh Ioshi, who was under investigation for irregularities, including front-running the AMC's transactions. A couple of days later, it sacked its second fund manager Deepak Agrawal on similar charges. The fund house had suspended the two fund managers on May 6, after irregularities running into several crores at the fund house came under the scanner of the market regulator.

Front-running involves purchasing a stock based on advance non-public information regarding an expected large transaction that will affect the share price of a company. When MFs purchase in huge quantities, it leads to rise in share price, resulting into illegitimate gains for the front runners.

Sebi has investigated and penalised several brokers, fund houses and fund managers in the past for front-running. In June 2021, it passed an order against three dealers of Reliance Securities for front-running the trades of an alternative investment fund. In the HDFC MF frontrunning case, Sebi passed several orders, over the last few years, including disgorgement of illegal gains and penalty on several entities including the former equity dealer of HDFC MF for numerous instances of front running in 2006 and 2007.

Stating that investor protection is one the key roles of the regulator, the source added that Sebi is looking at various aspects of primary and secondary market in order to safeguard retail investors, who have been entering the markets in large numbers over the last two years. The number of investor accounts with CDSL and NSDL has jumped from 4.06 crore in March 2020 to 9.2 crore at the end of April 2022.

hancing disclosure and compliance requirement for listing of new-age technology companies, for the secondary market participants, it is keen on enhancing awareness around responsible investing as lot of new customers are going for speculative trading. "What we worry about is the increasing amount of trading in the segment. As margins have increased for futures, they are shifting to options and largely in index options. It is pure trading ... People need to be educated and made aware of the risks of these trades and so there is a thinking that it might be the right time for the broking community to come out with campaigns like responsible trading," said the source.

As concerns have been growing around valuations being commanded by new-age lossmaking technology companies when they come out with their public issues, the regulator may be of the view that while it may leave the price determination with the markets, it may introduce disclosures that may take away liberty of the company management and merchant bankers from commanding unreasonable valuations.

The source said that the companies will have to disclose the change in financially quantifiable metrics that have resulted in increase in valuation and if there is no change in such metrics, then they will have to disclose upfront that there has been no change in the financial metrics but the valuation has gone up by 'x' times. So, they will have to disclose reasons for the increase in valuation

The source added that there was a thinking in the past that if the regulator had brought stringent regulations at the time of permitting loss-making new age technology companies to raise funds through public issues, it would have attracted lot of criticism. But now, with some not-sohappy experiences across several listings, additional regulations and compliances can be brought in and there is call for it, too.

"Sometimes you need to buy the time. And after what has happened with a couple of issues the regulator thinks that they can bring in the reform as people sometimes need to understand the need for reform and now everyone is aware of the issue and they feel that changes are needed," the source said.

The regulator is also looking at adding more disclosures for such companies.

Among some other key changes, the regulator is also learnt to be closely monitoring the appointment of chief financial officers (CFO) by several of these companies and may bring in a new compliance requirement with respect to CFO appointment for companies coming with public offering.

"It has been noticed that in several cases the CFOs are appointed few days before the issue and he/she signs up on all the financial details. Sebi is considering to make it mandatory for companies to appoint the CFO atleast 2-3 quarter before the IPO and deliberations are going on this particular issue as of now," the source said.

AANCHAL MAGAZINE & KARUNJITSINGH NEW DELHI, MAY 22

PROVIDING DETAILS of the cut in excise duty on fuels, Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman on Sunday said the excise duty cut of Rs 8/litre on petrol and Rs 6/litre on diesel has entirely been made in Road & Infrastructure Cess (RIC), which is not shared with states and, hence, the burden lies with Centre. The duty cut, effective Sunday, has a revenue implication of Rs 1 lakh crore annually for the Centre, which, coupled with the earlier duty cut of November 2021, will result in a total revenue loss of Rs 2.2 lakh crore a year, she said.

"Basic ED which is sharable with states has not been touched. Therefore, the entire burden of these two duty cuts (made in Nov. 21 and yesterday) is borne by the Centre. The duty reduction made yesterday has an implication of Rs 1,00,000 cr a year for Centre. The duty reduction made in November'21 has an implication of Rs 1,20,000 cr a year for Centre. Total revenue implication to Centre, on these two duty cuts is thus Rs 2,20,000 cr a year," she Opposition leaders had said that this round of excise duty cut would reduce the share of states in central taxes.

The excise duty reduction on petrol and diesel effective Sunday has entirely been made in RIC and this was the case even in November 2021 when tax on petrol was cut by Rs 5 and that on diesel by Rs 10, she said.

"Basic Excise Duty (BED), Special Additional Excise duty (SAED), Road & Infrastructure Cess (RIC) and Agriculture & Infrastructure Development Cess (AIDC) together constitute Excise Duty on petrol and diesel. Basic ED is shareable with states. SAED,RIC & AIDC are nonsharable," she said.

Total Central tax on petrol before this duty cut was Rs 27.9 per litre, while basic excise duty was only Rs 1.4 a litre. Of Rs 21.80 a litre, total Central tax on diesel basic excise duty was Rs 1.80. Special additional excise duty of Rs 11 a litre on petrol and Rs 8 per litre on diesel was levied. A Rs 2.50 a litre agriculture infrastructure and development cess (AIDC) was levied on petrol and Rs 4 per litre on diesel, Petrol had Rs 13 a litre additional excise duty in form of RIC and Rs 8 of such tax was levied on per litre of diesel, which has been cut now.

As per the tax sharing for-

How it breaks up

BEFORE THIS round of duty cut, total central tax on petrol was Rs 27.90 per litre and Rs 21.80 a litre on diesel, Basic excise duty, which is shared with states, was only Rs 1.40 a litre on petrol and Rs 1.80 a litre on diesel. Special additional excise duty and agriculture infrastructure and development cess, accounted for Rs 13.5 a litre on petrol and Rs 12 per litre on diesel, not forming a part of the shareable pool with states but have been reduced now by the Centre.

with states, while cess collections accrue to the Centre. Cess constitutes the majority of the tax on petrol and diesel.

Before this round of excise duty cut, Central and state taxes accounted for about 43 per cent and 37 per cent of the retail price of petrol and diesel, respectively, in Delhi. States apply an ad valorem VAT or sales tax on the base price, freight charges, excise duty and dealer commission on petrol and diesel. Therefore, state collections also increase/decrease as the Centre hikes/reduces excise Former Finance Minister and Congress leader P Chidambaram had on Saturday evening stated that the cut in excise duty was egual to rob Peter more & pay Peter less!" "FM's exhortation to States is meaningless. When she cuts Central Excise by one rupee, 41 paise of that rupee belongs to the States," he had stated. On Sunday, he tweeted stating that contrary to what he said on Saturday "the entire burden of the reduction falls on the Centre. To that extent, I stand corrected. The states are getting very little by way of share of duties on Petrol and Diesel. Their revenue is from VAT on Petrol and Diesel."

"The Union Government's levies on petrol have gone up substantially in the past 7 years. Though the revenue to the Union Government has increased manifold, there has not been a matching increase in the revenues to states. This is because the Union Government has increased the cess and surcharge on petrol and diesel while reducing the basic excise duty that is shareable with the states," Tamil Nadu Finance Minister Palanivel

Thiem out of sync, out of French Open

ASSOCIATED PRESS

PARIS, MAY 22

IT ALL used to come so easily for Dominic Thiem on a tennis court _ his powerful forehand, his elegant backhand, his hit-whichshot-when calculations, all fine-tuned to the point of a title at the U.S. Open and three other Grand Slam final appearances, including two at Roland Garros.

 $Now adays, even \, though \, the \, pain \, from \, last$ year's torn tendon in his right wrist is no longer there, the strokes and, most disconcertingly, once ranked No. 3 but now No. 194, acknowledged after being beaten 6-3, 6-2, 6-4 by Hugo Dellien that perhaps it's time for him to head to the lower-level Challenger Tour to get a win and gain some confidence.

After lamenting his forehand, his backhand and a too-low first-serve percentage, Thiem got to the bigger issue:"Sometimes, I do really stupid decisions during the rally, drop shots or down-the-line (groundstrokes) at the wrong moment.(In) match match situations, I'm not playing well. ... Then, for example, there was one game today where I did four or five forehand return mistakes in a row, where I'm thinking, 'What the heck is happening?"' His quick departure was not the only noteworthy development on a cloudy, occasionally drizzly Day 1 at the year's second major tennis tournament, which welcomed back pre-pandemic sights and sounds of full attendance and no masks in the stands Given Thiem's troubles _ sure, he was the runner-up to Rafael Nadal in Paris in 2018 and 2019, and to Novak Djokovic at the Australian Open in 2020, but his last victory came in May 2021—there were other results that probably were more surprising.

 $Chiefly in that \, category \, would \, be \, No. \, 6 \, seed$ Ons Jabeur's 3-6, 7-6 (4), 7-5 loss to 56thranked Magda Linette of Poland.

Jabeur, a Tunisian who is the first Arab woman to win a WTA title and first to reach a Grand Slam quarterfinal, acknowledged: "I was expecting myself to go far in this tournament." As were others. That's because Jabeur began the day with a tour-leading 17 wins on clay this season, including taking the title at the Madrid Open and reaching the final of the Italian Open.

Another top-10 women's seed _ and the 2016 champion at the place _ was sent home when Garbine Muguruza was defeated 2-6,6-3, 6-4 by 46th-ranked Kaia Kanepi of Estonia. Muguruza beat Serena Williams in the final at Roland Garros six years ago and Venus Williams in the final at Wimbledon in 2017, but she now has lost her opening match in Paris two straight years.

Patel hopes FIFA doesn't ban India after SC intervention

MIHIR VASAVDA

FEARING A FIFA ban, which could grind most activities to a halt, former All India Football Federation (AIFF) president Praful Patel said he will talk to FIFA president Gianni Infantino and secretary-general Fatma Samoura to request them not to take such strong action. Patel also said he'll speak with the Supreme Court-appointed Committee Administrators (CoA) and ask them to expedite the election process, underlining that 'dragging this issue can be very disastrous' for Indian football.

On Wednesday, due to a logjam in finalising AIFF's constitution to hold elections, the Supreme Court formed a three-member CoA to look after the day-to-day affairs of the federation, thus bringing an unceremonious end to Patel's stint as president. The Supreme Court also empowered the CoA - comprising Justice Anil Dave, ex-Chief Election Commissioner SY Quraishi and former India captain Bhaskar Ganguly - 'to take decisions on holding of tournaments, selection of players and all other matters necessary for the proper governance of the federation.'

Patel said the AIFF lawyers had pointed out to the court that this could amount to third-party interference and thus violate FIFA's statutes, leading to India's suspension. "All possible scenarios were pointed out and after that, it was up to the honourable court to decide," Patel, whose term officially ended in December 2020, said. "There was a phone call from FIFA on Friday asking for the order of the Supreme Court as they wanted to

As per FIFA statutes, its Congress can suspend a member association at the request of the Council. However, the all-powerful FIFA Council can also temporarily suspend an association with immediate effect without a vote in the Congress.

The impact of FIFA's suspension could be 'drastic', Patel said. To start with, it could lead to India being thrown out of the Asian Cup qualifiers, which are scheduled to begin in Kolkata on June 8. The country could also lose the hosting rights of the Under-17 Women's World Cup, set to take place in October this year, Indian clubs will be barred from competing in continental tournaments and additionally, they will also be unable to sign foreign players other than those already given time until July 15 to finalise the draft of the constitution before the next hearing takes place on July 21. The CoA has hinted that elections will be held within two or three months from the day the court approves the new constitution.

Former AIFF head Praful Patel says he will talk to the world body, and wants CoA to expedite election process

'Don't underestimate FIFA's power'

Patel said he will use his position as a Council member to request his colleagues to give the country time till July-end to complete the election process. "I don't want to pre-judge. FIFA is like a government, it's systems-driven. You have seen how FIFA reacts very strongly. They have suspended major football countries," Patel said, adding that he got an impression that 'AFC and FIFA legal teams have offered their services to quickly find a solution." I will do my best to tell them that if the court allows early elections, do not punish Indian football, but that can only be in the form of a request. I will do my best to talk to them in writing and in person."

The Rajya Sabha member added: 'Dragging this issue can be very disastrous. If it's expeditiously dealt with, it'll be the best for Indian football. In the BCCI, we saw years and years of the CoA running the sport. For the ICC, if India doesn't play, there's no cricket in the world. In football, if India doesn't play, no one will miss it, I can't tell the courts what to do, but my suggestion is, please do not underestimate FIFA's strength to take radical decisions.'

Patel looked back at his decade-plus long stint as the head of Indian football, which has been riddled with controversies, without any regrets and 'with a sense of satisfaction that one has laid the foundation for many more

During his tenure, the AIFF was accused of succumbing to pressure from its commercial rights holders, IMG-Reliance (now Reliance Sports), on many football-related issues. And while the federation's dependence on corporate sponsors' money increased, its government grant got slashed due to poor performance of the national team.

Patel insisted that the government supimal' and lashed out at their policies. "They say 'you win a medal and we'll give you more money'. This is not the right approach. How can you say that? It's a very ridiculous argument," Patel said.

'Challenge to balance interests'

'challenge' to balance the interests of corporates who pour in money, but said he 'never let anybody dictate the way AIFF does its duty. "Nobody is doing charity. They give us money and get rights for lots of things," Patel said.

He cited the example of the impending merger of the Indian Super League and I-League, which has been one of the prickliest

"There was so much resistance from our partners (to merge the two leagues). But we could not let Indian football be driven by a closed league that would destroy it in the future. I can say with a sense of pride that I did push for it. I said, 'nothing doing, unless this issue is resolved, there is no future for Indian football'.

of the I-League will get promoted to the ISL and from the 2024-25 season, a promotionrelegation system will be introduced in the top division. "The next people (in charge of AIFF) also will face that challenge. Integrating ISL with I-League will be a major challenge," he said, guaranteeing that there will be no going back on the merger prom-

'My position in politics would've helped AIFF than hurt them'

Patel said juggling issues like these showed that heading a federation required people with all kinds of skill-sets, going against the argument that former players should be elected to the top posts. Last month, the Madras High Court observed that only sportspersons, and not politicians, should be office-bearers of sports federations.

Patel said a democratic process should be followed to elect office-bearers, and everyone should be allowed to be a part of it. 'Administration of football has nothing to do with just understanding the game. I understand the game as well but running the federation is not playing the game. The leader of the federation has to be administering the game, and balance various interests," he said. "I don't think it is right to say politicians cannot perform a job. My position in politics would have helped the AIFF on more occasions than hurt them."

BIRENDRA LAKRA and SV Sunil smiled sheepishly when asked how they felt playing in a team coached by former teammate and captain Sardar Singh. "It's not weird under him. He's a strict disciplinarian," Sunil said. Lakra chipped in: "He has been a role model. He's always been known for his fitness and discipline.

It's come full circle for the trio that formed the core of the team when India clinched the Asia Cup at the previous edition in 2017. Then, after heading in different directions, they are reunited.

Sunil, playing his fourth Asia Cup, a testimony to his longevity, was on a sabbatical when he was summoned to join the training camp for the Commonwealth Games. Lakra was enjoying his retirement, juggling time between family and office work, when he, too, got the call-up. Sardar, who'd been earning his coaching credentials, had been waiting for this opportunity.

The Asia Cup, starting in Jakarta on Monday, might not be of huge significance for the defending champions. The teams that reach the semifinals of the tournament will make it to January's World Cup, but India, being hosts, do not have to worry about qualification. Yet, when they take the field against Pakistan in their opening match, there'll be some fascinating storylines to follow. Sardar's debut in the dugout - he'll be working alongside junior team coach BJ Kariappa – will be one of them.

The other important thread to follow during the tournament will be the return of Simranieet Singh. The forward last played in India's bronze medal playoff at the Tokyo Olympics against Germany, where he scored two goals that had a decisive role in the outcome of the match.

Since then, he'd been nursing an injury and missed all Pro League matches as well as the Asian Champions Trophy.

New faces

Simranjeet's comeback, coupled with the return of Sunil and Lakra, will be crucial for India given that the rest of the team has littleto-no senior international experience. Ten players, who were all part of last year's junior World Cup, will make their senior team debut on Monday. This includes the likes of drag-flicker Yashdeep Siwach, defenders Abhisek Lakra and Manjeet, midfielder Vishnukant Singh and forward Uttam Singh. Midfielders Mareeswaren Sakthivel and Sheshe Gowda BM, and forwards Abharan Sudev, Pawan Rajbhar and S Karthi will also make their first India appearances on Monday. The youngsters will immediately be thrown at the deep end when they open their campaign against Pakistan, who too have travelled with a young squad as part of their rebuilding process. "We'll need to motivate them, guide them. If we get affected by the excitement and the pressure of playing Pakistan, the younger players too will come under pressure," Sunil said.

This young bunch, led by two veterans and coached by a former India captain, was selected for this tournament as preparation for July-August's Commonwealth Games. With an eve on the Asian Games, India had decided to send their second-string squad to Birmingham. To give the hastily-assembled group some match practice, Hockey India chose to send the group for the Asia Cup, where not a lot is at stake from an Indian point of view.

Now with the Asian Games postponed, it's unclear whether the main playing group coached by Graham Reid will take part at the CWG or the team currently in Jakarta. The players aren't fretting over it. "I am at a stage of my career where I approach each tournament as if it's my last," Sunil said. "So, I hope to win this one, and not worry about what's in store in the future."

Man City eclipse rivals United to become EPL's dominant force

SHASHANK NAIR

JUST DAYS before Manchester City won their fourth league title in five years, Pep Guardiola compared his team's consistency in winning the Premier League to Alex Ferguson's golden era when he achieved the same level of dominance. Perhaps, it was a statement designed to rub salt into the wounds of their neighbours. On Sunday, Guardiola and City won the title in a dramatic finale. City came back from 0-2 down to beat Aston Villa 3-2 with Liverpool breathing down their necks.

When a cash-strapped City was bought by Sheikh Mansour, their initial days of playing catch-up to an English football dynasty prompted a 'money can't buy everything' admonition. Yet City stuck to their guns, stressing that their project had nothing to do with United.

City's 2011-12 title confirmed that the threat was real. Ferguson came back next season to win the Premier League, but the writing was on the wall.

In 2012, City hired Ferran Soriano and Txiki Begiristain – the architects of Barcelona's famed success in the late 2000s and early 2010s. The owners of City Football Group then opened a £200m football campus - one that left behind Manchester United's famed youth facilities in the rearview mirror by some margin.

Just as City continued to lay the red carpet for one of the greatest managers football has seen, United embarked on life after Ferguson and club CEO David Gill. City waited while Guardiola took over Bayern Munich. And in 2016, they finally had their target.

During this time, and in the years to come, City flouted financial rules, unlike any club before them with inflated sponsorship deals. When they were taken to task by UEFA for breaking Financial Fair Play rules, the Court of Arbitration for Sport provided the Citizens with get-out-of-jail cards. Money talked and titles started to flow.

Meanwhile, at the other end of town, a club geared towards proactively searching for the best deals in the market was now trying to break transfer records in a desperate attempt to close the gap. In three seasons at United, Jose Mourinho, Guardiola's eternal rival, had a net transfer spend of just under 315 million pounds. The money resulted in Paul Pogba, Romelu Lukaku and Zlatan Ibrahimovic signing for the Red Devils.

While rebuilds and managerial changes were taking place at United, City's golden period under Guardiola began in 2017. Their closest challenge has come from Jurgen Klopp's Liverpool, who managed to win their first-ever Premier League title, spending far less, but wisely. The Champions League is the only crown that evades the Citizens but signing a striker like Erling Braut Haaland could wipe away that blemish as well.

How City nearly blew up 14-point cushion & became champions on the final day

In mid-January, Manchester City were coasting to another EPL title. Guardiola's side had opened up a 14-point gap over Liverpool. However, Liverpool's incredible form since the start of 2022, coupled with a few slip-ups by City, helped them trim the lead to just one point by mid-March and take the title race right to the very last day of the season. MANCHESTER CITY won their fourth Premier League title in five years on Sunday but nearly let the trophy slip from their hands, coming back from two goals down to beat Aston Villa with three goals inside an electrifying five minutes late in the second half.

After an afternoon of high nerves, laced with fear of Liverpool pipping them to the title at the post, relieved and jubilant City fans poured on to the field at the final whistle.

Matty Cash put Villa in front in the 37th minute with a fine header from a Lucas Digne cross from the left flank, and the mood in the stadium instantly changed. The edgy mood among the home fans turned to desperation after Philippe Coutinho then doubled the lead for Villa with a goal of pure simplicity. Ollie Watkins headed on from a goal kick by keeper Robin Olsen long, and the former Liverpool midfielder Coutinho produced a brilliant first touch to cut inside and then drilled the ball into the bottom corner. Liverpool were level with Wolves at the time of Coutinho's goal, but City knew that a goal for Juergen Klopp's side could now take the title away from them. But then came the City comeback blitz that sealed the title regardless of events at Anfield. Two substitutes combined for the first, with Ilkay Gundogan heading in a Raheem Sterling time substitute Oleksandr Zinchenko, on the left flank, then showed composure to pull back to Rodri, and the Spaniard delivered a pinpoint finish -- side-footing into the bottom corner from 20 metres out. The title-winning goal came in the 81st minute when De Bruyne whipped in a low cross to Gundogan, who tapped in from close range, sending the crowd into rapturous delight.

Arsenal hammered Everton 5-1 on Champions League place - and it was the visiting fans who were celebrating at the end after Liverpool missed out on the title.

Arsenal were on top from first to last and led 2-1 at the break through a Gabrie Martinelli strike and an Eddie Nketiah header. Second-half strikes for Cedric Soares, Gabriel Magalhaes and Martin Odegaard were a fair reflection of their dominance. However, Tottenham Hotspur's 5-0 thrashing of Norwich City ensured they remained fourth, leaving Arsenal in fifth. The Londoners, who last played in the Champions League in 2016-17 after 19 straight years of qualifying under Arsene Wenger, will have to settle for a place in the Europa League, which itself is something of a success after they began the season with three straight defeats. Two goals from Dejan Kulusevski for Tottenham and Heung-Min Son, and Harry Kane header guaranteed Antonio Conte's side a fourth-place finish and a spot in Europe's elite club competition for the first time in three seasons.

At full time the home fans gave Arsenal a good send-off after a troubled season but it was the Everton supporters, still giddy from their great escape on Thursday, who were making all the noise.

Manchester United secured a ticket to next Premier League campaign in sixth place - despite losing 1-0 away at Crystal Palace.

Forward Wilfried Zaha scored against his former team in the first half as Palace celebrated their first-ever Premier League victory over United at home. Ralf Rangnick's tenure as interim manager came to an end with United collecting 58 points, their lowest tally in Premier League history.

United were nevertheless able to hold on to sixth place after West Ham United suffered a 3-1 defeat at Brighton & Hove Albion and had to settle for seventh.

Watched by new manager Erik ten Hag, who joined them from Ajax Amsterdam, from the stands, United produced a lacklustre display and went behind in the 37th minute as Zaha finished smartly from the edge of the box after picking up a loose pass and cutting across the United defence.

The visitors tried to improve their game in the second half but they looked poor in attack and barely created chances as Patrick Vieira's Palace ended the season on a winning note and took the 12th spot.

IPL snub turns out to be blessing in disguise as Pujara returns

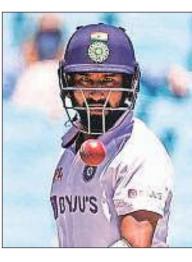

DEVENDRA PANDEY MAY22

GOING UNSOLD in the Indian Premier League auction in February has turned out to be a blessing in disguise for Cheteshwar Pujara. While the IPL was on, Pujara travelled to England for a highly successful county stint with Sussex, which has helped him force his way back into the India Test squad for the deciding Birmingham Test in July.

'You can say that now in hindsight. Had I been picked by an IPL team, there were major chances that I wouldn't have got any games. I would have just gone (to nets) and practised. Getting match practice and practice in the nets is always different. So when the county thing happened, I just said yes. The major reason I said yes was that I wanted my old rhythm back," Pujara told The Indian Express from Paris, where he is on holiday.

With scores of 6, 201 not out, 109, 12, 203, 16, 170* and 3, Pujara slammed 720 runs for Sussex in five County Championship games at a staggering average of 120 across April and May. The stunning performance raised his hopes of making an India comeback in whites

"I was positive, there was no doubt about it. The way my county stint went, I was hopeful that I will make a comeback to the Indian team, But when I went to play county cricket, the India comeback was never on my mind; I just wanted to find my rhythm and I knew one big innings would help me find my rhythm back."

Cheteshwar Pujara has scored 720 runs in five County matches for Sussex. File Pujara is back, but the other veteran batsman who had also been dropped for the home Tests against Sri Lanka in March, Ajinkya Rahane, hasn't made it back. The fates of the two middle-order stalwarts had been seemingly intertwined for quite a while. Their struggles to post big runs had played out in parallel; they had fought against their fading fortunes with a brave, counter-attacking century partnership in the second innings of the Johannesburg Test against South Africa in January. Nevertheless, time had appeared to run out when the na-

Umran, Arshdeep get maiden call-ups

New Delhi: Umran Malik and Arshdeep Singh, young pacers with vastly contrasting styles, have been given maiden callups to the India squad for the five-match home T20I series against South Africa starting June 9.

With speeds often above 150kph, Sunrisers Hyderabad tearaway Umran has been among the leading wickettakers in the IPL, and the sight of him shattering stumps has captured the nation's imagination, although he's gone for runs too. Meanwhile, left-armer Arshdeep has conceded just 7.70 runs an over for Punjab Kings, which is highly creditable considering he is regularly used at the death.

Hardik Pandya and Dinesh Karthik

tional selectors opted to try out fresh talent for the Sri Lanka Tests. In February, the IPL auction had taken place, where both Pujara and Rahane had put in their names. Pujara would go unsold, and it had seemed even Rahane would, before he was picked up at his base price of Rs 1 crore, the sole bid coming from Kolkata Knight Riders. And that is where, in hindsight, the duo's fortunes diverged.

By the time Pujara began his county stint against Derbyshire on April 14, Rahane's IPL season had ground to a halt after only 80 have made comebacks, riding on their IPL showing. Pandya has led debutants Gujarat Titans to the top of the table, batted responsibly and bowled nearly 25 overs. Karthik, who hasn't played for India since the 2019 World Cup, has finished multiple games for Royal Challengers Bangalore at a strike-rate of 191.33.

runs at just a-run-a-ball strike rate from his first five matches. From their sixth game on April 15, KKR would drop Rahane. And by the time he got his next game, on May 9, Pujara had racked up 720 runs. A 95-Test veteran churning out doubles and daddy tons in the country where the team is set to play a series decider - the timing, weight and significance of Pujara's runs forced the selectors to bring him back.

For Pujara, the aim at Sussex was to get 150-plus scores. "If you look at my innings in the past, I was getting 80s, 90s, so I never felt

I was out of form even when the big runs were not coming. I was just hoping to get big runs. Big runs means not 100 but 150-plus scores. Because to get back to my usual concentration level, I needed those big scores. And I found that in England. I found my rhythm and as I got those runs, things began to fall in place.

Spending hours batting in the middle is what Pujara is known for, and he said that getting into that mode again also made him more aware of where his fitness levels were. "Once I bat for long, it not only improves concentration, but it also improves fitness. The county stint helped me to see where my fitness stands. One cannot play big innings if one does not have proper fitness. So everything went well," Pujara said.

Mayank dropped

With KL Rahul returning to the Test squad as vice-captain, and Shubman Gill retaining his spot as well, Mayank Agarwal has been eft out. Agarwal opened along with skipper Rohit Sharma in the Sri Lanka Tests and had managed underwhelming scores of 33,4 and 22. Before that, he had had a tough tour of South Africa, where he could average just

Punjab Kings beat SRH to finish sixth

PRESSTRUST OF INDIA MUMBAI, MAY 22

PUNJAB KINGS ended their campaign on a winning note, crushing an already demoralised Sunrisers Hyderabad by five wickets in an inconsequential final IPL league match here on Sunday. Batting first, Sunrisers Hyderabad managed only 157 for 8 on a good batting track.

But it was never going to be enough as Liam Livingstone made mincemeat of a hapless SRH attack, scoring 49 not out off 22 balls, and also hitting the coveted 1000th six of the tournament.

Shikhar Dhawan (39 off 32 balls) and Jitesh Sharma (19 off 7 balls) also contributed handsomely to the team's cause as the chase was completed in just 15.1 overs.

Punjab Kings, who haven't made the play-offs since their final appearance in 2014, finished sixth while the Sunrisers ended their high-spending IPL on eighth in the 10team competition. For Livingstone, it was all about smashing big sixes once again as he hit five in all, while Dhawan helped himself to two fours and two sixes.

BRIEF SCORES: Sunrisers Hyderabad 157 for 8 in 20 overs (Abhishek Sharma 43; Harpreet Brar 3/26, Nathan Ellis 3/40) lost to Punjab Kings 160 for 5 in 15.1 overs (Liam Livingstone 49 not out; Fazalhaq Farooqi 2/32) by 5 wickets
